George Abbot, a witness, being produced, under oath saith, Lieutenant Nowell brought John Bardan to Colonel Prescott's quarters, from whence Benjamin Lee set out with him to the guard by Lieutenant Nowell's order, but said Lee came back and told him much the same as the said Lee has witnessed concerning said Bardan being a Tory, &c. Further he says, that Bardan offered to pawn money until he got somebody to plead for him, and supposes he meant to deposite it in the hands of the man of the house, and not give it; but says he did not see any money given, or hear any thing said about it. Further he saith not.

Captain Tine Vanzandtz, on oath says, that Bardan came to General Heath's to complain, and said he offered to give money to Lieutenant Nowell, and did give him seven dollars to let him go; and further the witness says, that Bardan informed the General that he had fifty dollars; and being searched, no more than forty-three remained, which, with the seven, made the fifty, and that Bardan confessed to the General, being surprised. He confessed himself somewhat friendly to Government; and further the witness saith not.

Major Gray, on oath, agrees with Captain Vanzandts; and further says, being ordered by General Heath, he went to Lieutenant Nowell, and asked him whether he had seen any traveller between his lodgings and the church? Affirmed he had not. Being searched, some small change was found with him, which he declared was all he had; but on further search, he found six dollars in his pocket, and that said Nowell appeared in much consternation. Further the witness saith not.

Adjutant Marsden, on oath, agrees in full with Major Gray as to examining said Lieutenant Nowell, and finding the money; and further he saith not.

The Court having heard and considered the evidences maturely, do adjudge the prisoner to be guilty of the crimes laid to his charge; and do therefore sentence him to be dismissed from the Army with infamy, and make restitution of the one dollar remaining to the person from which he so wickedly took them.

Sam'l Wyllys, President.

The above sentence is approved of.

W. Heath, M. G.

GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Pyramus, 21st December, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am this moment favoured with the letter of your honourable House of the 17th instant. Being sensible of the importance of the passes of the Highlands, the security of them shall always be my first object, from which I will not suffer myself for any other consideration, however specious, to be diverted. The stores taken at Hackensack are now principally removed to the Highlands or Peekskill, and General Heath, agreeable to orders, proposes marching with his division to-morrow morning for the latter place. As this movement of General Heath's will leave the pass near Sydman's bridge without a man, I propose marching the two regiments I have here to Ramapough and that place, and to extend my guards and patrolling parties from thence towards Ringswood and this place. In this way I will give all the protection to the few friends we have in this quarter in my power, and at the same time scourge our enemies; but I can't think it would be advisable to continue these regiments so far advanced as this, as the enemy, who have a whole brigade at and near Achquakannock and Newark, might by a forced march get between us and the posts we are desired to defend.

The night before last General Parsons and myself, with five hundred of his troops and mine, set out about dark on a visit to our friends in the English Neighbourhood, where we were informed Colonel Buskerk's regiment of new levies and some companies of Light-Infantry were quartered. When we came to the first house in the English Neighbourhood, we detached Colonel Woodhull, with two hundred, to march east of the settlement, through the fields, to the edge of Bergen woods, to fix guards on the roads leading to Burdett's and Bull's Ferry, and with the remainder of his force to come in on the back of the enemy up the highway, so as to prevent their escape, while we, with the remainder, marched through the neighbourhood. About break of day we surprised and took their advanced guard, about a mile from Bergen woods. At the instant we effected this, and were about advancing to attack their main body, one of their horse rode up, and not standing on being challenged, was fired on by one of our people. This alarmed their party. They turned out, fired on us; we returned the fire, upon which they fled, and got off before Colonel Woodhull with his party, who had a rough march, could reach the main road. It was however a successful little expedition. We took twenty-three prisoners, eighteen excellent muskets, a wagon and Light-Horse, and killed four or five. It might have been much more so had it not been so exceeding cold, and the men beat out with the length of the march, which the road we took was at least twenty-eight miles going. I have not the least doubt but we should have killed and taken the whole party, and have cleared Bergen wood of their wood-cutters.

The Militia of the Counties of Ulster and Orange think it exceeding hard at this time to be called out while those of other Counties, equally interested in guarding the passes of the Highlands, are exempted from any part of the duty. They think one half of them, to wit, about one thousand, would be fully competent for the purpose; and considering the business they were first intended for is now in a great measure accomplished, I am of their opinion. That number, I believe, would continue with cheerfulness. If the whole is kept out, though I know they will—they must submit to it, if desired, it will be with a degree of reluctance. I wish, therefore, I might have liberty to dismiss one half of them. I am sure it will be best.

We are distressed about provisions; how are we to be supplied? Who is to be our Commissary?

I am your most obedient servant.

I forgot to mention that Fort Lee is demolished—we were five miles below it—and to inform you that Colonel Ford, with about five hundred of his Militia, attacked a much superiour number of the enemy on the 19th instant, drove them, killed twenty on the spot, with the loss of three wounded only.

The enemy's main Army are retreating towards Brunswick. Our people have had several successful skirmishes with them, and are in high spirits.

To the Hon. Abraham Ten Eyck, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York, Fishkill.

COLONEL ALLISON TO CAPTAIN JOHNSON.

SIR: I am directed by General Clinton to deliver all persons taken up by us, lurking about or in arms, over to the civil authority; and as the two fellows now under guard are inhabitants of Ulster County, I have thought it advisable to deliver them into the custody of Major Johnston, who, if he is in opinion with me, will send them to the Committee of your County. You are therefore directed to take the charge of conveying them to the commanding officer of your regiment.

Given under my hand, Tappan, December 21st, 1776.

WM. ALLISON, Col.

To Captain Matthew Johnson.

COLONEL SWARTWOUT TO DR. M'KNIGHT.

Fort Constitution, December 21, 1776.

As we are necessitated for some salts and other medicine for the use of our regiment, should be glad Dr. Osborn could be supplied with them.

Your humble servant,

JACOBUS SWARTWOUT, Colonel.

Dr. McKnight.

I can make no other demand for the medicine, as it belongs to the new Convention of New-York, than to urge the Colonel's request may be granted.

RESOLVES OF THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

In Convention of the Representatives for the State of New-York, } Fish Kill, December 21st, 1776. }

Whereas the condition of this State, invaded and surrounded by numerous enemies, requires the constant sitting of Convention for the despatch of the publick business: And whereas the enemy have possessed themselves of Long-Island, Richmond County, and the City and County of New-York, and it is out of the power of the Committees of those Counties to provide for the support of their respective Representatives, who, being driven from their habitations and deprived of their estates, are the less able to subsist at their own private expense, while they are burthened with the accumulated charge of maintaining their families and attending on the business of the State:

Resolved therefore, That this Convention will advance, on the credit of the said respective Counties, the allowances heretofore given to the Representatives of the said Counties in Convention, and which are in arrear since the 14th day of May last, and to the Representatives of the City and County of New-York, ten shillings per day, respectively; such allowance to be computed from the time the Convention removed to the White-Plains.

Resolved, That the said allowances be made on the certificate of the President or Vice-President of the Convention, or of the Chairman of the Committee of Safety. And that the Treasurer pay the same on such certificate accordingly.

Resolved, That the sums allowed and paid to such Representatives be charged to the account of the City and Counties which they respectively represent.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, } December 21st, 1776. }

Whereas, from various intelligence received of the motions and designs of the enemy's Army, it appears highly probable that they meditate an attack upon the passes of the Highlands, on the east side of Hudson's river: And whereas the term of the inlistment of the Militia under the command of Brigadier-General George Clinton, which is at present stationed to defend the pass at Peek's Kill, expires on the last of this month, and that of great part of the division commanded by Major-General Spencer, which is stationed at North-Castle, on the 29th instant: And whereas his Excellency General Washington, by his letter of the 15th instant, has warmly recommended to this State to exert themselves in procuring temporary supplies of Militia till the new levies of the Continental Army can be brought into the field:

Resolved, That the whole Militia of the Counties of Westchester, Dutchess, and that part of the County of Al- bany which lies to the southward of Beesen Island, be forthwith marched to the North-Castle, in Westchester County, well equipped with arms and ammunition, and furnished with six days' provisions and blankets, and a pot or campkettle to every six men, except such men as the Field Officers of the respective regiments shall judge cannot be called into service without greatly distressing their families, or who may be actually engaged in the manufacturing saltpetre, or of shoes and clothing for the use of the Army.

Resolved, That the said Militia be allowed Continental pay and rations, and that such men as cannot furnish themselves with arms, shall be supplied from the publick stores.

Resolved, That the Colonels or commanding officers of the respective regiments be empowered to hire or impress as many wagons or sleighs as shall be sufficient for transporting the baggage of the respective regiments to their place of rendezvous.

And whereas a Secret Committee, appointed by the Convention of this State on the 19th instant, have, in pursuance of the authority given them, directed a number of volunteers to be raised under the command of Colonels Dubois, Graham, and Thomas, and Lieutenant-Colonel Hammon, and Captain Dutcher:

Resolved, That all such volunteers be left under the direction and command of the officers under whom they have been respectively engaged, and not marched out with the body of the Militia.

Resolved, That the said Militia, when called out, shall be stationed at such posts, and obey such orders as they shall from time receive from a Committee for that purpose, to be appointed by a Convention of this State.

Resolved, That Robert R. Livingston, Henry Wisner, and Zephaniah Platt, Esqs., be a Committee for that purpose, and that they be further empowered to discharge from the Militia such mechanicks as the publick service or the necessity of the inhabitants may render expedient.

Resolved, That a Letter be written and sent by express to General George Clinton, informing him that the Convention of this State have reason to think that the enemy have in view to penetrate the passes of the Highlands, on the east side of Hudson's river; that the term of inlistment of great part of the division under the command of Major-General Spencer expires on the 29th instant, and submitting to his discretion the propriety of immediately crossing Hudson's river, with the whole, or part of the Militia under his command, to secure the posts at North-Castle, till such time as the Militia of Albany, Dutchess, and Westchester, shall march to that post, or a proper provision shall be made for defeating the designs of the enemy.

Resolved, That General Spencer be requested to exert his utmost influence with the troops under his command, to continue in service until such time as the Militia of this State shall arrive at the post now occupied by his division.

Resolved, That Colonel Trumbull, the Commissary-General of the Continental Army, and Colonel Hughs, Assistant Quartermaster-General, be informed that a body of Militia of this State will march to secure the post now occupied by General Spencer, in Westchester County, with the utmost despatch, in order that they may make a proper and timely provision for the accommodation and subsistence of the said Militia.

Resolved, That application be made to Colonel Chevers, Commissary of Ordnance Stores, for the loan of as many firelocks and cartouch-boxes as may be necessary to equip such of the said Militia now called into service as may be destitute of the same, and that this Convention will indemnify him for this loan.

Extract from the Minutes.

ROBT. BENSON, Secretary.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON.

December 21, 1776.

SIR: From various intelligence received by the Convention, they have great reason to believe that the enemy are meditating a vigorous expedition against the passes in the Highlands, on the east of Hudson's river, and sundry circumstances in the operations of the disaffected tend to confirm this apprehension. Those passes will next week be in a very defenceless situation; the term of the inlistment of General Spencer's division will then expire, and in all probability they will return home. When General Heath, who has received orders to cross the river, will arrive at Peek's Kill, is uncertain.

The Convention have for these reasons thought it necessary to call out all the Militia of Westchester, Dutchess, and of all that part of Albany which lies to the southward of Barn Island, and directed them to march to North-Castle.

As some time will be necessary to collect and march them to that place, and as there is reason to suspect that the enemy mean to take that route, they refer to your discretion, if the security of the passes on your side will admit of it, the propriety of immediately detaching the whole, or part of your brigade, to secure that post till such time as the Militia of Westchester, Dutchess, and of Albany, shall have arrived at that place, and proper provision made for defeating the design of the enemy.

To Brigadier-General George Clinton.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO GENERAL SPENCER.

December 21st.

SIR: From various intelligence received by the Convention, there is reason to believe that the enemy are meditating a vigorous attack on the passes in the Highlands, on the east side of Hudson's river; for which reason all the Militia of Westchester, Dutchess, and part of Albany Counties, have been ordered to march to North-Castle.

The Convention have been informed that the terms on which great part of your division have been inlisted are nearly expired, and on their quitting that post before the arrival of the Militia would expose those very important passes to the most imminent danger. The Convention beg you will exert your utmost influence to detain them till such time as they may be discharged with less danger and injury to the American cause.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient servant.

By order.

To Major-General Spencer.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Fishkill, December 21, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the Convention to make a further application to Congress on the subject of clothing for our levies. The situation of this State is such that it is impossible for us to get the usual articles necessary for this purpose; and after we had procured at Philadelphia a very considerable quantity, it was taken by the Committee of Safety in that city, and applied for the use of their own soldiery. It gave the Convention great pleasure to learn, about a month ago, that our sister Colony of Massachusetts-Bay had been able to procure materials for clothing their quota of troops, and that pleasure hath been greatly increased by our information of the capture of clothing for twelve thousand men by a Continental ship-of-war, and of the arrival of a vessel from France with a large assortment of clothing on account of Congress. As there is not any one State in America which has suffered so severely as New-York in the present war, as there is not one whose commercial resources have been so entirely cut off, we submit it to Congress whether she ought not to have a particular attention in the distribution of those articles which belong to the United States, and which by no care or industry can be procured on her separate account. In a word, sir, I am directed by the Convention to assure Congress that they are of opinion our regiments will be speedily filled, if we can get any thing to cover them; and that without clothes they cannot possibly get troops. General Morris, who is directed to repair to Congress, is charged with this letter, and instructed to urge for their answer.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, very humble servant.

By order: AB'M TEN BROECK, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO GENERAL MIFFLIN.

In Convention for the State of New-York,
Fishkill, December 21, 1776.

SIR: The Convention of this State have received information that a quantity of goods proper for clothing the Continental troops, are now at Fairfield, in Connecticut, under the care of Mr. Thaddeus Burr, and that those goods are your property. The levies raising in this State will probably be soon completed, if it were in our power to give the recruits their clothing. You are sensible, sir, that this State, by the loss of the sea-ports, have been wholly deprived of the means of importation. They, therefore, embrace the earliest opportunity of attending to this necessary object, and directed their State Commissary to purchase in other States such as were to be found. He was so far successful as to obtain a quantity in Philadelphia, which we are since informed have been expended for the use of the troops imbodied to the southward. We are much distressed by this disappointment, seeing that no resource is left but from the goods belonging to you; for though we have written to Congress with great importunity on this subject, we are very apprehensive that in the present critical state of the military operations, we cannot depend on their immediate assistance. I am, therefore, directed to request that you will be pleased to order Mr. Burr to deliver the goods in his possession to the agent of this Convention, for which we will readily pay you a reasonable price.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servant.

By order: Ab'm Ten Broeck, President.

Major-General Mifflin.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO GENERAL HOWE.

In Convention of the State of New-York, at Fishkill, December 21st, 1776.

Sir: On the application of the Rev. Mr. Inglis, and Messrs. Philip I. Livingston and John Moore, who came up the river protected by a flag from your Excellency to the Convention of this State, have consented to permit their ladies, with their families and effects, to go to New-York. Mrs. Bruce, and Mrs. Lake and her daughters, have obtained the like indulgence. Messrs. Miles Sherbrook and Alexander Wallace have license to proceed to New-York, to take the necessary care of their families and property. In order to give those ladies and gentlemen full protection, we have sent Major Nicholas Fish, under the sanction of a flag, to see them safe to New-York. As that gentleman may have it in his power to facilitate the removal of the families and effects of some of the subjects of this State, we have not the least doubt, sir, of your permission to him to bring out with him those women and children, with their property, of whom he will do himself the honour to inform you.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient servant

To his Excellency General Howe; and in his absence, the Commanding Officer of the City of New-York.

[WILLIAM DUER] TO NEW-YORK DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

[Without date.]

Gentlemen: I am directed by Convention to represent to you the difficulties that this State will labour under in procuring clothing for the troops they were to raise. Owing principally to the great supplies that have been all along drawn from here for the Northern and Eastern armies, more particularly for the first; to the removal of our merchants, who have for the most part carried their stores with them, out of this State; to the loss of Long-Island and New-York; to the wants of the inhabitants who are drawn from thence, and the stoppage of the only port by which we might hope to obtain them,—the Convention are fully persuaded that they will not only be unable to supply the Army, but that their own poor will be greatly distressed for want of necessaries, more especially as the few goods that remained have been purchased up by General Schuyler, agreeable to the directions of Congress, and are now in the Continental store at Albany. To these they cannot help setting up some claim, though perhaps it may be founded more in sheer necessity than their right. May request you, therefore, to lay these facts before Congress, and to obtain their leave to apply a part of them to the clothing of our men, assuring them at the same time that no means will be left unessayed to make our demand on the Continental store as small as possible.

Enclosed you have some resolutions relative to the hides of cattle killed for the use of the Army. We wish you to urge this matter with Congress as soon as possible. Our distresses are inconceivably great for want of that article, shoes having within this two months doubled in their price. The Convention have no doubt that that measure will meet with the approbation of Congress, not only from the pleasure they take in relieving the distressed, but because it will be a saving to them of near two dollars; since, because damaged for want of proper care, or for some other reason unknown to the Convention, they are sold by the Deputy Commissary in the Northern department, to people out of this State, on contract, for ten shillings apiece, when they are, or would, if properly preserved, be at least worth three dollars at Albany. At the same time, I must inform you that nothing can be effectually done unless a particular charge is given to the Deputy Quartermaster to afford every necessary assistance in preserving and transporting them across the lake.

I am, &c.

JOS. TRUMBULL TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Fishkills, 21st December, 1776.

Honoured Sir: Yours of 8th instant is now before me. I hope the battalions for immediate service will be here soon. The inlistments go on very well; much better than last year. The inducements are great, the clothing especially, in this weather, to naked men. I hope the Colony are well prepared for that part of the encouragements. Brother Jonathan, I suppose, is at home by this time. Brother Jack passed Easton some days ago, with General Gates. Is now at Head-Quarters. Barnard, my rider, returned this morning from Head-Quarters, opposite Trentown. By letters from the General and others to Convention here, and to myself, I find things wear a much better face that way than they have done, and that General Howe is retiring back to New-York, finding it impossible to cross Delaware. The Jerseys have been dispirited and discouraged, but they begin to come again to themselves. General Heath has been down to Hackensack and below, and has taken very considerable stores, &c., and is on the enemy's rear. General Washington is apprehensive the enemy's march, as if retreating, may be a feint, and is guarding against a surprise. He is pretty strongly reinforced from Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia, and troops are coming over from Carolina.

I have the General's leave to retire to Hartford for the winter. I shall set off in the course of all next week, by which time I expect to have finished my matters here, and to hear further from Head-Quarters and Congress.

I am, honoured sir, your dutiful son,

Jos. Trumbull.

I wish Mr. Phillips, of Rhode-Island, my Deputy, may have leave to carry pork and beef out of your State to that for the Army there, as the salt is there, and the driving there may save transportation.

Governour Trumbull.

RICHARD VARICK TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Saratoga, December 21st, 1776.

Sir: I do myself the honour to enclose you an exact return of the state of the garrisons at Tyconderoga, Mount Independence, and Fort George, abstracted from the muster-rolls of the several companies of the battalions stationed at those posts. The muster-rolls I will send down by the speediest safe conveyance. The Congress will observe, that though the strength of the garrisons at Tyconderoga and Mount Independence (as appears from the return) amounts to two thousand three hundred and eighty-four, including commissioned and non-commissioned officers, and including two hundred and ninety-six returned as sick, yet that a great part of those who are returned as having appeared at muster, were unfit for duty, and scarcely able to bear the fatigue of being a few minutes on the parade.

I thought it needless to mention in the muster-rolls or return, the terms for which the troops were engaged, as I supposed the Congress was fully acquainted with this matter; I shall only mention that most of the inlistments expire on the 31st instant, and 4th, 5th, and 9th January.

The muster-rolls of the commissioned officers are not so accurate as the articles of war require, the officers commanding battalions not having it in their power strictly to comply therewith.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient and very humble servant,

RICH'D VARICK.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the honourable the Continental Congress.

GENERAL HERCHKEIMER TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Canajoharry District, December 21, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: The petition of your petitioners humbly sheweth, that whereas a certain case of military proceedings in General Herchkeimer's brigade was taken before the Committee of this County, and countermanded, whereby we, as well as part of the publick are aggrieved, we are urged to appeal to your honourable Board for relief. The true circumstances of the case are as follows, viz: John Kayser, of New-Germantown, in Palentine district, a Captain of a company of Militia in Colonel Jacob Klock's battalion, of Gen. Nicholas Herchkeimer's brigade, some time ago, by a vacancy of a corporalship in his company through his corporal's inlisting as a Ranger, appointed and ordered John Remersnider, son of Henry Remersnider, of New-Germantown aforesaid, to be a corporal in the other's stead; which order was refused by both Remersniders, the father and son, under the pretence alleged by the father that his son was a miller, and therefore exempted of such military duties by law, according to the acts for the Militia of the State of New-York; but as it was well known, not only to the Captain, to his subalterns, and to the company, but to the whole neighbourhood, that the father, Henry Remersnider aforesaid, who has an old ragged mill in the neighbourhood, most always out out of order, has constantly been the miller himself when the mill was fit, and had water to grind, being but a small stream to it,—the said Captain therefore, considering the scheme of the old man in regard to the publick, put the lawful fine, agreeable to the Militia rules, upon the said John Remersnider, for refusing to accept and serve as a corporal; and upon still refusing of both Remersniders to pay the said fine, the Captain proceeded further in the recovery of the same, and distrained him. The father hearing of being distrained, threatened that if any man would come upon his ground in order to distrain for that purpose, he would kill him. Therefore the sergeant thought proper to take assistance along with him, to execute his office. It is true the father may be a man of sixty-odd years of age, and is exempt thereby of training, but yet of a hearty and strong constitution, well able to tend his mill, and truly better than the son, who has no knowledge of it, and almost never before tended the mill, nor yet, but at the time when the Captain calls a training. The father often before declared, that if one applied to him for the loan of horses or in other farming business, he had nothing to say in it; that his son was the farmer, and he had to dispose of such things. The father and son further, after the last voting of officers for that company aforesaid, said that if the son had been chosen an Ensign, he would have treated the electors, and provided the colours at his own cost; but for a private the father said he should not train. All these circumstances here related, and more in behalf of the said proceedings when called upon, can be proved by evidence. The said father, seeing that his scheme would not be accepted by the Captain, nor his will obtained, made then application to the Committee of this County, with the complaint that his son being a miller, was unjustly fined and prosecuted. The Committee upon such complaint, without hearing of one of the evidences in the Captain's behalf, resolved that the said John Remersnider shall be exempted from military duty, except in invasions, pursuant to the eleventh article of the Militia, and also that the fine recovered by the Captain for such refusal, save as above-mentioned, shall be rendered by the said Captain to the said John Remersnider. Considering this resolve of the Committee, and the proceedings thereof, we thought we were in duty bound to resent it as a grievance and imposition upon the officers of Militia of every rank, which will disturb the service in general, and in particular the company of said Captain Kayser, which, as we are informed, will take the same privilege, and not training, in case this John Remersnider shall be free through a deceitful scheme. Therefore, hoping that the rules and regulations of the Militia are not made, nor intended to be understood, explained, taken in deceit particularly or to the fraud of the publick, we, the superiour officers, who are resolved and willing to serve our country faithfully, and to have the Militia under our command ruled impartially, find ourselves aggrieved, and beg that your honourable Board would look into the case maturely and procure that justice may be done to the officers as well as to privates. We don't doubt that in particular the proceedings of the said Captain Kayser will be approved to be just and lawful, and therefore the abovementioned resolve of the Committee recalled.

We could add some other instances of like cases of fines tried by the Committee, and the resolutions thereof by them determined, which at most causeth a disrespect of their officers and discourtesy. The latter without prescription to your honourable Board. We would that any Militia case should be tried by a Court-Martial; and if one should think himself aggrieved, might apply to the Field Officers, and so on by degrees to the Brigadier-Generals, for a just inquiry and determination of the matter. If such an appeal to the Committee for every case tried by officers is allowed to the Militia, they always will run there for relief, and the trust reposed in us appears to be checked, and our authority void.

We remain, with respect, your humble petitioners, for ever pray, &c. Honourable gentlemen, your obedient humble servants,

NICHOLAS HERCHKEIMER, Brig. Gen'l.
JACOB KLOCH, Colonel.

MEMORIAL OF HENRY VAN SCHAACK.

To the Honourable JONATHAN TRUMBULL, Esq., Governour and Commander-in-Chief in and over the State of Connecticut.

The Memorial of HENRY VAN SCHAACK, Esq., of the District of KINDERHOOK, most humbly sheweth:

That your memorialist, in conformity to his engagements, returned to the State of Connecticut some days ago, without any restrictions on his conduct from those who are the occasion of his being your Honour's prisoner. That your memorialist left his family at the time his presence was most essentially necessary, on account of his father's death and the very bad state of his wife's health. That the extensive concerns of your memorialist's father, and other domestick concerns, makes it necessary that he should have it in his power to have frequent personal intercourse with the heirs and executors of his said late father. That in order to obtain an indulgence of so much consequence to his aged mother, and all her offspring, he begs leave, with all due respect, to propose entering into a parole, herewith shown to your Honour, subjecting the same to such alterations as may be prescribed. That in case this mode of security should not be approved of, your Honour's memorialist humbly begs leave to propose pecuniary collateral security, to any amount that can in reason be required, that he shall be forthcoming in the State of Connecticut at any time and place your Honour may please to direct.

Your memorialist, for the urgent reasons above assigned, prays that your Honour will be pleased in your wisdom to take the peculiar situation of an aged parent and her large family into consideration; but more particularly that of his wife, whose weak frame is tottering under the weight and pressure of a number of incidents too tedious to particularize, at the time when your Honour's attention must necessarily be taken up in matters of great magnitude to the publick.

And your Honour's memorialist, in duty, as well as inclination, will ever pray, &c.,

H. V. SCHAACK.

Middletown, 21st December, 1776.

PETITION OF ROBERT R. WADDELL AND SAMUEL BURLING.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: We the subscribers, your humble petitioners, having been informed that we are not to be included in the permission to return home, now agreed to be given by your Honour and the honourable Council to the gentlemen belonging to New-York, who were taken up on suspicion, and sent with us into this State, and that the reason why we are not permitted the same indulgence is on account of an accusation brought against us of some improper behaviour on the 30th of last month, we beg leave to acquaint your Honour that we do not pretend to justify our conduct at that time, but your Honour may rest assured, that whatever improprieties happened that night were occasioned by our being in liquor, and not with any design or intention of offending your Honour, or any of the gentlemen in authority.

We are very sensible, and acknowledge with gratitude, the indulgences your Honour has shown us since we have been in this State. On that account we are extremely concerned that this unfortunate affair has happened, and we are ready and willing to make any concession your Honour may think proper. We hope your Honour and the honourable Council will reconsider our case, and grant us the same indulgence which your Honour has been pleased to allow the other gentlemen in our situation, and which is so absolutely necessary to our private affairs.

We are, with the greatest respect, your Honour's most obedient, humble servants,

ROBT. R. WADDELL,
SAMUEL BURLING.

Middletown, 21st December, 1776.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour in chief in and over the State of Connecticut.

PAROLE OF BENJAMIN WHITEHEAD AND OTHERS.

Whereas we, the subscribers, of the City and Province of New-York, have for some time past resided at Middletown, in the State of Connecticut, being apprehended and sent thither by his Excellency General Washington, as persons suspected of disaffection to the United States of America; and whereas, upon our application, his Honour Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of said State of Connecticut, hath permitted us to return to our families in New-York, and reside there till otherwise ordered, we do hereby pledge our faith and word of honour to said Governour Trumbull, that we will neither bear arms, nor excite or encourage others to bear arms, against this or any of the United States of America, and that we will not do or say any thing in prejudice of the interest or measures of this or any of said United States; that we will give no intelligence to the enemies of said States of any of the counsels, operations of war, or other transactions of this or any of said States; and that we will return to any place in this State, when required by his Honour Governour Trumbull, the General Assembly of Connecticut, or his Excellency the General of the Armies of the United States for the time being.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set out hands, this 21st day of December, A. D. 1776.

BENJA'N WHITEHEAD,
RICHARD BETTS,
GEORGE HEWLETT.

HENRY NEWMAN TO MASSACHUSETTS BOARD OF WAR.

Providence, 21st December, 1776.

SIR: On my arrival here, my determination was to comply with my instructions from the Board of War as fully as possible. I accordingly applied to Captain Melvill, who delivered the articles he had received, which he has a receipt for, and are now in my possession; also one hundred and seven pounds sixteen shillings, for which I expect to account. The provisions remain in the same stores I found them in. I have taken an office in a convenient place for the business, and have applied to many of the principal people of trade in this place for such articles as are necessary for the subsistence of the Army, but found them very scarce and difficult to be obtained; upon which I wrote an advertisement for this day's paper, for such articles as are unsupplied by the Board, the result of which the next week will determine. I applied to the Commissary for this State (who at present supplies the Massachusetts Army) for information where to get the necessary articles. He informed he found it impossible to get all the articles specified in the establishment, and was obliged to substitute rum and molasses instead of beer and cider, and chocolate and coffee instead of milk, the latter being five pence per pint, and not a sufficiency at that price. He made me an offer of eight hundred or one thousand bushels of peas, at ten shillings per bushel, which, though very dear, I would have taken, but he refusing an order on the Board, on account of its being inconvenient, I was obliged to decline. There is now in the stores a quantity of fresh beef, which must be delivered some time next week, which, excepting the bread, is the only article we have at present to deliver. The pork is so bad, I am confidently informed the soldiers will not take it. Captain Mellvill has assisted me all in his power. There are two young men belonging to his company who appear to be acquainted with the business, and I believe would make very good assistants to whoever may officiate as Commissary, which berth I must beg leave to resign, as I think it will be more for the interest of the State to appoint somebody more acquainted with the business than I am. This, with several reasons that did not appear when I accepted, induces me to this request; in compliance with which, as soon as may be convenient, the Board will add to the obligation I am already under for the honour conferred in the appointment.

I am, with great respect, your humble servant,

HENRY NEWMAN.

To Samuel Phips Savage, Esq., President of the Board of War.

JOHN PROUD TO COMMODORE HOPKINS.

Bedford, December 21st, 1776.

SIR: Mr. Leonard Jarvis being in Boston, I have the pleasure of informing you of the safe arrival into this port of the Alfred's valuable prize-ship. She got in last evening. Early this morning I despatched an express to Mr. Jarvis, to acquaint him of this good intelligence, that necessary measures may be taken for the security of her cargo. Mr. Bucklin, the mate of the ship, will soon be in Providence, who can give you an account of her loading.

I am, in Mr. Leonard Jarvis's behalf, most respectfully, your humble servant,

JOHN PROUD.

Esek Hopkins, in Providence.

I expect to see Mr. Jarvis, or receive his directions about the ship, Monday night.

JAMES BOWDOIN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Referred to the Board of War.]

Boston, December 21st, 1776.

SIR: I lately informed you that Monsieur Fanieul, and a number of French gentlemen, had arrived here from Cape François, to offer their services in the Army of the United States. Two of them proceeded from hence with the letter, since which a petition of theirs to our General Court has been sent to you, for the consideration and determination of Congress. Mr. Fanieul being engaged much in this matter, and having some proposals to make to Congress, intends setting out for Philadelphia in a few days, and it is in consequence of his request I have the honour of transmitting to you this letter, to introduce him to you for that purpose.

The posts, ever since the new regulation took place, have been, and continue, very irregular, and have answered no purpose of intelligence from the Army, nor of quick communication between the several States and with Congress, which, in times like the present, are highly necessary, and to effect which was the reason of that regulation. It is of great importance that this business should be put on such a footing as to answer effectually the end intended.

I am, with great esteem, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JAMES BOWDOIN.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

GOVERNOUR OF VIRGINIA TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Williamsburgh, December 22d, 1776.

SIR: I do myself the honour to transmit to you the enclosed resolutions, and beg leave to assure your Province of the most cordial coöperation of Virginia in every measure for your particular safety and the general interest of America.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

P. HENRY, Jr.

The Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, President of the Council of Safety, Maryland.

In the House of Delegates, December 21st, 1776.

VIRGINIA.

It being of the utmost importance that the nine Battalions heretofore raised within this Commonwealth and now in Continental service, should be completed, and the six new Battalions for the same service, as well as the three Battalions on the pay of the Commonwealth, raised with all possible expedition:

Resolved, That it be earnestly recommended to the Justices, the Members of the County Committees, the Militia Officers, and the other good people of this Commonwealth, to use their best endeavours to forward and encourage the recruiting service, upon which the safety and happiness of their country so much depends.

And whereas the present imminent danger of America, and the ruin and misery which threatens the good people of this Commonwealth and their posterity, calls for the utmost exertions of our strength, and 'tis become necessary for the preservation of the State that additional powers be given to the Governour and Council during a limited time, for the more speedy execution of the most vigorous and effectual measures, to repel the invasions of the enemy:

Resolved therefore, That the Governour be, and he is hereby, fully authorized and empowered, by and with the advice and consent of the Privy Council, from henceforward, until ten days next after the first meeting of the General Assembly, to carry into execution such requisitions as may be made to this Commonwealth by the American Congress, for the purpose of encountering or repelling the enemy, to order the three Battalions on the pay of the Commonwealth to march, if necessary, to join the Continental Army, or to the assistance of any of our States; to call forth any and such greater military forces they shall judge necessary, either by imbodying and arranging Companies or Regiments of Volunteers, or by raising additional Battalions, appointing and commissioning their proper officers, and to direct their operations within this Commonwealth, under the command of the Continental Generals, or other officers, according to their respective ranks, or order them to march, to join and act in concert with the Continental Army, or the troops of any of the United American States, and to provide for their pay, supply of provisions, arms, and other necessaries, at the charge of this Commonwealth, by drawing on the Treasurer for the money which may be necessary from time to time; and the said Treasurer is authorized to pay such warrants out of any publick money which may be in his hands, and the General Assembly will, at their next session, make ample provision for any deficiency which may happen. But this departure from the constitution of Government, being in this instance founded only on the most evident and urgent necessity, ought not hereafter to be drawn into precedent.

Resolved also, That the Governour be desired to transmit by express, copies of these Resolves to the American Congress, and to the neighbouring States of Maryland and North-Carolina, to satisfy them that we are exerting ourselves in defending the liberties of America.

Resolved, That our Delegates be instructed to recommend to the consideration of Congress whether it may not be necessary and expedient, in the present dangerous and critical situation of America, in order to give vigour, expedition, and secrecy to our military measures, to invest the Commander-in-Chief of the American forces with more ample and extensive power for conducting the operations of the war; and that they will earnestly exhort the different Legislatures of the United American States to adopt the most speedy and effectual methods for calling their Militia force into action and coöperating with the Generals of the American Armies.

JOHN TAZEWELL,
Clerk of the House of Delegates.

Agreed to by the Senate. J. PENDLETON, C. S.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 26th December.]

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, 22d December, 1776.

SIR: We have received from Mr. Henry Fisher the enclosed papers, wherein it appears that a certain John Wilbank, at Lewis-Town, a person in several important publick stations, endeavouring to enforce submission to Great Britain. As he is not resident of this State, nor a subject of the same, we conceived it to be our duty to give you this information, as it is of great importance that severe examples be made of such traitors. A spirited exertion of the powers of the United States to apprehend such, when the enemy is in their neighbourhood, will give spirit to our friends, and discourage our enemies from making an open declaration of their principles.

By order of Council:

DAVID RITTENHOUSE, Vice President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

---

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, December 22d, 1776.

SIR: The Council this day received the enclosed letters from Ticonderoga. Their contents are so melancholy and important that we think it our duty to transmit them to you without delay. America has suffered more from herself than her enemies, and until a thorough reform can take place in the several departments, opposition will be vain. While more offices and a greater share of the publick business are heaped upon the same person than he can possibly attend to, the fault is not his if they are but indifferently executed.

It is the most important matter which can at this time attract the attention of Congress, and we hope to meet with their indulgence when we press it upon them. A few naked, sickly, and ill-attended troops, must fall a prey to their own distresses, if not to the enemy. The blessing of Heaven can scarcely be expected to attend a cause, however good, while the men who expose their lives in support of it, are so ill rewarded.

I have the honour to be, by order of Council, sir, your very humble servant,

DAVID RITTENHOUSE, V. P't.

Ticonderoga, December 4, 1776.

SIR: I received yours, as President to the Council of Safety, by Captain Fishbourn, complaining that the soldiers was not paid. I cannot answer for any neglect of that sort before I had the regiment. I very well know that all the sick was discharged from the general hospital by the Doctors, as unfit for service, said to be by General Gates's orders, which the General positively denies. I have ordered an advertisement in the papers, setting forth the mistake of their being discharged, and that they shall be paid all that's due them. Is it not very extraordinary, that Messrs. Mease & Caldwell will not let us know what the soldiers is to pay for their clothes, &c., and that one half of the wages is stopped, now almost for a year? How is it possible the men should have justice done them, when the pay is withheld by all the Paymasters, by Mease & Caldwell's orders? Even the half-pay that's received, is very lately, for want of cash. Pray now, who is in fault? We have enough to answer for from our own neglect, but if the soldiers have just cause of complaint, which I aver they have, let the saddle be put on the horse it belongs to. Fair play is a jewel.

For all this Army at this place, which did consist of twelve or thirteen thousand men, sick and well, no more than nine hundred pair of shoes have been sent. One third at least of the poor wretches is now barefoot, and in this condition obliged to do duty. This is shocking to humanity. It cannot be viewed in any milder light than black murder. The poor creatures is now (what's left alive) laying on the cold ground, in poor thin tents, and some none at all, and many down with the pleurisy. No barracks, no hospitals to go in. The barracks is at Saratoga. If you was here, your heart would melt. I paid a visit to the sick yesterday, in a small house, called a hospital. The first object presented my eyes, one man laying dead at the door, the inside two more laying dead, two living lying between them; the living with the dead had so laid for four-and-twenty hours. I went no further; this was too much to see, and too much to feel, for a heart with the least tincture of humanity.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOS. WOOD.

N. B. At present we have not one pair of shoes nor blanket in the store.

Thos. Wharton, Jun., Esq., President to the honourable Council of Safety, Philadelphia.

Ticonderoga, 4th December, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yours of the 19th October I received, and note the contents. I have made strict inquiry concerning the supposed fraud you mention, and find no just foundation for a charge of that nature. If any of the soldiers have gone home without their pay, it is not the officers who were to blame. I believe there was some discharged the service, contrary to orders, by the Directors of the General Hospital, at Fort George. These were not paid off.

But lest that you should still conclude that it was the officers' fault, I am to inform you that our regiment never received pay but twice since they left Philadelphia, consequently had it not in their power to pay the men monthly. Add to this, one half of their wages is stopped by order of Congress, amounting to fourteen pounds, for the payment of not more than seven or eight pounds. Here there may be some ground for complaint, although none where it is so liberally bestowed.

You may rest assured I make it my study to see justice done to the soldiers. I could wish equal care had been taken in every department. The wretched condition they are now in for want of almost every necessary of the convenience of life, except flour and bad beef, is shocking to humanity, and beggars all description. We have neither beds or bedding for our sick to lay on or under, other than their own clothing; no medicine or regimen suitable for them; the dead and dying laying mingled together in our hospital, or rather house of carnage, is no uncommon sight. These are objects truly worthy of your notice, as well as of your most obedient, humble servant,

ANT'Y WAYNE.

To the Committee of Safety for the State of Pennsylvania.

Information received from Captain FARMER, Captain ERWIN, Lieutenant LANG, Lieutenant GOURLEY.

Thursday, 19th September.—The three battalions mutinied, and appeared on the parade under arms. After this, they deserted in parties, with their arms—about two hundred men in the whole, fifty of whom are here now, the rest have taken other roads.

As to their complaints, the want of pay, the want of clothes, the want of blankets, the not receiving the particular species of rations: As to the pay, they had the whole to the 1st of August, and some have deserted immediately after having their full pay to the 1st September. The Musket battalion were clothed. Part of the Rifle battalion had left their clothes at Philadelphia, but had rifle-shirts, and they have about half the quantity of blankets necessary, but are scarce of shirts and stockings. Their complaint of want of provisions is not just. They cannot indeed procure the particular species mentioned in the rations.

A very great cause of desertion is owing to the loss of their Field Officers.

A party attempted to desert, (about thirty,) but were prevented by force. A corporal at their head thrust with his bayonet at Lieutenant Lang, which he parried. The corporal is in custody. The same corporal cocked his piece at Ensign Davis, and attempted to fire. One Kelly, of Captain Brown's company, and Sergeant Scannel, of Howell's company, are principal ringleaders.

Sussex, in Delaware, December 19th, 1776.

Isaac Smith, of Egg-Harbour, of Gloucester County, in the State of New-Jersey, says that he was at the town of Lewis, on the 18th instant; that he saw Major John Willbank come to the house of Major Henry Fisher, in said town, and that he heard the said Willbank ask Mr. Fisher if he had any of the proclamations sent on shore from the Roebuck man-of-war, for that he had advertised the people to meet, and that he wanted one of them to read to them. Mr. Fisher answered, he had given them out to any body that asked for them, and at present had not any in the house. Which I do hereby certify.

ISAAC SMITH.

The same Major John Willbank, above-mentioned, was one of the Convention for the Delaware State, and has taken the oath of allegiance to the said State; is now one of the Legislative Council for the same, one of the Council of Safety for the County of Sussex, and Military Treasurer for the same. Query, Is he a proper person to serve in these important stations at this critical juncture?

HENRY FISHER.

Witness present when the above request was made:

Witness to prove Major Willbank's willingness to comply with Howe's proclamation, Widow Elizabeth Hall, Adam Hall.

THOS. GRAY.

Philadelphia, Tuesday, December 24, 1776.

We hear, from good authority, that on Sunday last, between Slab-Town and the Black Horse, in the Jerseys, a party of our Army, under the command of Colonel Griffin, had a skirmish with the Hessians, and that the enemy were forced to retreat with precipitation, having some killed, and leaving behind them many knapsacks and other necessaries, amongst which was a hat shot through the crown. But the next morning, the enemy advancing with a considerable reinforcement, supposed to be about two thousand men, with seven or eight field-pieces, our little army was obliged to retreat (which they performed with great regularity) to prevent their being out-flanked by superiour numbers; and in the evening they had another skirmish at Mount-Holly, in which the enemy, as an intelligent person informs, had several killed and wounded. In both skirmishes our people had only two killed and seven or eight wounded. Our Army is at Mooretown, and that of the enemy is at Mount-Holly.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Bristol, December 22, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Pomroy, whom I sent by your order to go to Amboy, and so through the Jersey and round by Princeton to you, returned to Burlington yesterday. He went to South-Amboy, but was not able to get over, upon which he came up to Brunswick, passed on to Princeton, and was prevented going to Pennington, upon which he returned to Burlington by way of Cranberry.

His intelligence is that he saw no troops, baggage wagons, or artillery, going to New-York, except about eight wagons, which he understood had the baggage of some of the Light-Horse who had been relieved, and were going into quarters. At Cranberry, he saw sixteen wagons going down to South-Amboy for the baggage of about five hundred men who were to quarter about Cranberry—inlisted Tories, commanded by one Lawrence. At Brunswick, he saw four pieces of cannon; the number of men he could not learn, but they did not exceed six hundred or eight hundred. Princeton, he says, was called Head-Quarters; and there he saw a very considerable body of troops coming out of the College, Meeting-house, and other places where they quartered. He understood they were settled in their winter quarters, and had given over further operations till the spring. In Burlington County he found them scattered through all the farmers' houses, eight, ten, twelve, and fifteen, in a house, and rambling over the whole country.

Colonel Griffin has advanced up the Jerseys, with six hundred men, as far as Mount-Holly, within seven miles of their Head-Quarters at the Black Horse. He has wrote over here for two pieces of artillery, and two or three hundred volunteers, as he expected an attack very soon. The spirits of the Militia here are very high; they are all for supporting him. Colonel Cadwalader and the gentlemen here all agree that they should be indulged. We can either give him a strong reinforcement, or make a separate attack. The latter bids fairest for producing the greatest and best effects. It is therefore determined to make all possible preparation to-day, and no event happening to change our measures, the main body here will cross the river to-morrow morning, and attack their post between this and the Black Horse; proceeding from thence either to the Black Horse or to the Square, where about two hundred men are posted, as things shall turn out with Griffin. If they should not attack Griffin as he expects, it is probable both our parties may advance to the Black Horse, if success attends the intermediate attempt. If they should collect their force and march against Griffin, our attack will have the best effects in preventing their sending troops on that errand, or breaking up their quarters and coming in upon their rear, which we must endeavour to do in order to save Griffin.

We are all of opinion, my dear General, that something must be attempted to revive our expiring credit, give our cause some degree of reputation, and prevent a total depreciation of the Continental money, which is coming in very fast—that even a failure cannot be more fatal than to remain in our present situation. In short, some enterprise must be undertaken in our present circumstances, or we must give up the cause. In a little time the Continental Army is dissolved. The Militia must be taken before their spirits and patience are exhausted, and the scattered divided state of the enemy affords us a fair opportunity of trying what our men will do when called to an offensive attack. Will it not be possible, my dear General, for your troops, or such part of them as can act with advantage, to make a diversion, or something more, at or about Trenton? The greater the alarm the more likely success will attend the attacks. If we could possess ourselves again of New-Jersey, or any considerable part of it, the effect would be greater than if we had never left it. Allow me to hope that you will consult your own good judgment and spirit, and not let the goodness of your heart subject you to the influences of opinions from men in every respect your inferiour. Something must be attempted before the sixty days expires which the Commissioners have allowed; for however many affect to despise it, it is very evident that a very serious attention is paid to it, and I am confident that unless some more favourable appearance attends our arms and cause before that time, a very great number of the Militia officers here will follow the example of those of New-Jersey, and take benefit from it. I will not disguise my own sentiments, that our cause is desperate and hopeless, if we do not take the opportunity of the collection of troops at present to strike some stroke. Our affairs are hasting fast to ruin, if we do not retrieve them by some happy event. Delay with us is now equal to a defeat. Be not deceived, my dear General, with small flattering appearances. We must not suffer ourselves to be lulled into security and inaction, because the enemy does not cross the river. It is but a reprieve: the execution is the more certain; for I am very clear that they can and will cross the river in spite of any opposition we can give them.

Pardon the freedom I have used. The love of my country, a wife and four children in the enemy's hands, the respect and attachment I have to you, the ruin and poverty that must attend me and thousands of others, will plead my excuse for so much freedom.

I am, with the greatest respect and regard, dear sir, your obedient and affectionate humble servant,

J. Reed.

His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Head-Quarters, Bucks County, 22d December, 1776.

Gentlemen: I am honoured with yours of the 18th and 20th. I am of opinion, with you, that the ships which made their appearance in Delaware Bay never intended to come up, unless to create a division below, and thereby draw your attention from the upper part of the river. But I hope the weather will soon rid you of all apprehensions of an attack by water for a time to come.

Your collection of old clothes for the use of the Army deserves my warmest thanks. They are of the greatest use, and shall be distributed where they are most wanted. I think if the Committee, or some proper persons were appointed, to go through the County of Bucks, and make a collection of blankets, &c., in the manner you have done in Philadelphia, it would be better than doing it in a military way by me; for many people who would be willing to contribute or sell, if asked so to do by their neighbours or acquaintances, feel themselves hurt when the demand is made, backed by an armed force. But I would at the same time remark, that if any who can spare without inconvenience, refuse to do it, I would immediately give proper assistance to take from them.

I have not a musket to furnish the Militia who are without arms. This demand upon me makes it necessary to remind you that it will be needless for those to come down who have no arms, except they will consent to work upon the fortifications, instead of taking their tour of military duty. If they will do that, they may be most usefully employed. I would recommend to you to call in as many men as can be got, for the express purpose of working, for we shall most undoubtedly have occasion for every man who can procure or bear a musket. In less than ten days from this time, my Army will be reduced to a few Virginia and one Maryland regiment—Colonel Hand's, and the regiments lately under Colonel Miles, all very thin. The enemy are most assuredly waiting for that crisis; and except I am strongly reinforced by Militia, nothing can hinder them from reaching Philadelphia. I would, therefore, entreat you to collect every man you possibly can. Send people out to contradict the reports that are circulated that we have more men than we want, from which many, perhaps, that would turn out, if they thought there was a real necessity, remain at home.

I have ordered the Militia of this County to meet on the 28th, and march to Philadelphia; that of Northampton as soon as possible; and have directed the Colonels to make me a return of those who refuse to appear.

It is necessary that as the Militia come in they should make a return of their numbers to General Putnam. Be kind enough to inform the officers of this, and direct them to do it. Colonel Biddle has given directions to Major Mifflin to discharge all the wagons not wanted for the removal of stores, as we have a sufficiency for the Army here.

I am, &c., Go. Washington.

To the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Camp above Trenton Falls, December 22, 1776.

Sir: The accounts received from New-York respecting the distresses of our prisoners induce me to recommend to your honourable body that measures should be taken to effect an exchange as soon as possible and as far as circumstances will admit of. Ever since the cartel has been settled between General Howe and myself, I have been endeavouring to accomplish it; but my attempts have been attended with but little success. For the prisoners belonging to the British Army, and who have been sent in from Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland, General Howe, or rather his Commissary, has undertaken, of his mere motion, and contrary to my express requisition, to return a number belonging to us who were not called for, and whose releasement should have been postponed till after that of many others. I have wrote to General Howe upon the subject, and presume in future that none will be sent out but those who are named by me. That this business may not remain an object of further delay, I would advise that all the prisoners in your State be immediately sent in to the commanding officer of the British troops on the Island of Rhode-Island, taking two exact lists of the names, corps, and ranks of the officers, and the number of privates, signed by the officer of the highest rank, one to be sent in with him, accompanied by a line to General Howe, that the particular prisoners belonging to us, and to be received in exchange, will be required by me; to which end I must request that the other list be immediately transmitted to me, that the requisition may be made.

It may be objected that the enemy's force, already formidable, should not be augmented; but the sufferings of our unfortunate people call for the exchange. The cartel has been agreed on, and I am satisfied the prisoners, when released and in arms against us, will not do us half the damage they would were they to continue. The influence of those who have gone from hence has been attended with the most injurious and pernicious effects.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO LEWIS GORDON.

Head-Quarters, Bucks County, 22d December, 1776.

Sir: The Council of Safety for this State have, by their resolve of the 17th instant, empowered me to call out the Militia of the County of Northampton to the assistance of the Continental Army under my command, that by our joint endeavours we may put a stop to the progress of the enemy, who are making preparations to advance to Philadelphia, as soon as they can cross the Delaware, either by boats or upon the ice. As I am unacquainted with the names of the Colonels of your Militia, I have taken the liberty to enclose you six letters, in which you will please to insert the names of the proper officers, and send them immediately to them, by persons in whom you can confide for the delivery. If there are not as many Colonels as letters, you may destroy those that are not wanted. I most earnestly entreat you, sir, and the rest of the gentlemen of your Committee, to exert your influence among the people of the County, and endeavour to make them turn out generally in defence of their capital, which will most assuredly fall a sacrifice, unless the Militia of the Province contribute largely to its defence. Those who are so far lost to a love of their country as to refuse to lend a hand to its support at this critical time, may depend upon being treated as their baseness and want of publick spirit will most justly deserve.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

P. S. Please to make me a return of the names of the different Colonels.

To Lewis Gordon, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Northampton, at Easton.

TO THE COLONELS OF MILITIA OF NORTHAMPTON COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA.—CIRCULAR.

The honourable the Council of Safety of the State of Pennsylvania having, by a resolve passed the 17th day of this instant, December, authorized me to call forth the Militia of Northampton County, to aid and assist the Continental Army under my command, I hereby require you immediately to order the Captains of your battalion to issue orders to the officers and privates of their respective companies to meet and join in battalion, with their arms and accoutrements in good order, at such time and place as you shall judge most convenient for that purpose, taking care that it may be as soon as you think such orders can reasonably and conveniently be conveyed to the people. And when your battalion, or any part of them, are so met, you are immediately to march to the city of Philadelphia, and there put yourself under the command of Major-General Putnam, or whoever the commanding officer may be; and I further require you to make me an exact return of the names and places of abode of such officers and privates as refuse so to meet and march to Philadelphia, that they may be dealt with as the resolve above referred to directs.

Given at Head-Quarters, in Bucks County, this 22d of December, 1776.

Go. Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Head-Quarters, at Keith's, December 22d, 1776.

Dear Sir: I have been favoured with yours of the 13th instant, and wish you may have succeeded in your intended scheme to dislodge the enemy from Hackensack bridge.

In my letter of the 18th, I transmitted you a copy of a letter from the Council of the Massachusetts-Bay, advising that six thousand men were coming from that State, under General Lincoln, to supply the place of the Militia which had returned home, and of their troops whose time of service will soon expire. At the time of writing, I thought it probable that their reinforcement might be ordered to the State of Rhode-Island, in case of an invasion, and which I find has actually taken place, and, therefore, did not so strenuously urge that it should be sent here. Indeed, I had then hopes, from the information I had received, that a large proportion of the Eastern troops, who were marching to join me, had reinlisted; but, to my great distress and mortification, I find the report to have been without the least foundation, and that in the course of a few days, I am to be left with a handful of men. I therefore request that if these troops have come on to Peekskill, and also the four battalions which, I am advised by Governour Trumbull, have been raised in Connecticut, to serve to the 15th of March next, that after securing the passes and fortifications in the Highlands with a sufficient number, which, I should imagine, would not exceed twelve or fifteen hundred men at farthest, besides the forces which, I apprehend, will be provided for the purpose by the Convention of New-York, you will forward on all the rest with the utmost expedition, to join such troops as I may be able to collect for the defence of Philadelphia. That city is now the object of the enemy's designs. Let me entreat you to impress the officers and men with a due sense of its importance in the present contest for our liberty, and that without their speedy and early arrival it may be lost. I am persuaded these considerations will be duly regarded, and urge them on to every possible exertion. As yet but few succours belonging to this State have come in, nor do I hear that many are in motion; when they hear that other States are applied to, and pushing in aids for their defence, perhaps they will arouse from that lethargy which now keeps them back, against the most pressing calls of interest. In a word, sir, my situation and that of our cause, is critical and truly alarming. Without vigorous exertions and early succours, I do not see what reasonable hope there will be to preserve Philadelphia from falling into the enemy's hands. They will attempt to possess it as soon as the Delaware is so frozen as to admit of their passage; appearances and many concurring reports agree in this.

I have received yours of the 15th, and am happy to hear of your success at Hackensack; the stores you got will be of great service.

By a letter just received from General McDougall, I find he has been much indisposed, and is now at Morristown. I intend to write him to return to Peekskill, to conduct matters in that department with General George Clinton, requesting you and General James Clinton to come on with the Eastern troops which I have mentioned, if they have arrived at Peekskill, and it should be necessary for him to come.

I am, dear sir, yours, &c., Go. Washington.

To Major-General Heath.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SPENCER.

Camp, above the Falls of Trenton, December 22d, 1776.

Sir: When I wrote to you on the 14th instant, I had little doubt of receiving considerable support from the Militia of this State, and was taught to believe that a large part of the old troops (coming on with General Lee) had reinlisted. In the first, I have every reason in the world to fear a disappointment; in the latter, I find myself wofully deceived. It is easier, therefore, to conceive than describe the situation I am in,—left, or shall be in a few days, with only a very few Southern regiments (reduced almost to nothing) to oppose Howe's main Army, already posted in such a manner as to pour in his whole force upon us so soon as the frost affords him a passage over the Delaware, and our numbers such as to give no effectual opposition.

Thus circumstanced, it is a matter of concern to me, that in my last I directed you to take back any of the Militia designed for the support of the Army under my command; and have to request that, instead of ordering the return of any of those that were destined for this department, (by order of their respective States,) that you will hasten them on with all possible expedition, as I see no other chance of saving Philadelphia, and preventing a fatal blow to America, in the loss of a city from whence so much of our resources are drawn.

With respect to yourself, you will proceed agreeable to the directions in my former. It is not possible for me at this distance to lay down any particular rule for your conduct; circumstances, and the advice of your officers, must govern you, particularly that of General Arnold, who comes on to your assistance.

I am, sir, yours, &c., Go. Washington.

P. S. Let me hear from you frequently.

To Major-General Spencer.

GENERAL M'DOUGALL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Morris-Town, 22d December, 1776.

My dear General: I was happy to find that your favour to Colonel Vose directed him to stay in this State. But I am extremely chagrined that the object of that order is not likely to be effected.

This State is totally deranged, without Government, or officers, civil or military, in it, that will act with any spirit. Many of them have gone to the enemy for protection, others are out of the State, and the few that remain are mostly indecisive in their conduct. The Militia are without leaders, and many of them, not in the power of the enemy, are dispirited; besides, they have numerous and active enemies and false friends among them. Those under Colonel Ford, since the late skirmish, have decreased to about two hundred. In this deplorable state, I have received intelligence different ways that the enemy have it in design to march to this town from three different routes, viz: from Brunswick via Baskinridge; from Elizabeth-Town via Chatham; and from Newark, another. The force of the enemy at those posts and between them cannot, upon the lowest computation, on good advice, be less than three thousand nine hundred men.

Last night I called a council of the principal gentlemen and officers of the Militia, to determine what was proper to be done in the present exigency of our affairs. They were clearly of opinion that all the Militia which could be raised, would fall far short, with the Continental troops, of the strength of the enemy. I then represented to them the inutility of exposing Colonel Vose's corps to fall into the hands of the enemy, which would retard the new levies and be a loss to the cause in general, without any prospect of affording support to a people who would not aid in it themselves. Upon the whole, to satisfy some of the council, the most sanguine, it was determined to keep the Continental troops for a day or two, till we should be informed whether your motions after the enemy were likely to work relief by diversion; or whether you could spare any support as the enemy was retiring. But as my retreat was in danger of being cut off, if the enemy move to Morris-Town, as was apprehended, I have withdrawn the troops to this town, to keep my communication open with the country, and left guards below to watch the motions of the enemy.

If the Militia do not collect in a day or two, (as summonses are gone out for that purpose,) I shall be obliged, if the enemy move towards this, to carry off the troops to join General Heath, as I shall not be able to procure provisions sufficient to join you; indeed, it will be difficult to get enough for their march to King's Ferry. The warrants are not issued to raise the Continental troops, nor are there any steps taken to raise the levies which were to serve to the first of April. If some relief is not afforded to them, (and I am at a loss to know from whence it can come,) more than I have in my power, they will fall an easy prey to the enemy.

When I anticipate the bad consequences that will result to the common cause from the submission of this State, it renders me almost unfit for any business. The Northern expedition of last year cost me my eldest son, and the captivity of the other, who is now a prisoner on his parole to General Carleton. As he was at the taking of St. John's and Chamblé, I cannot but be of opinion that he is entitled to the benefit of one of the officers taken at those posts, for his release. He was a prisoner longer than any taken to the southward; and, in this view, a claim to be released before them. His name is Ranald Stephen McDougall; was Second Lieutenant in my old regiment. If the General has the naming of the officers who are to be exchanged for those taken at St. John's and Chamblé, I beg this youth may be one of them. Frequent interruptions I hope will excuse the incorrectness of this, as well as apologize for not copying it.

I have the honour to be, with great truth and regard, your Excellency's very humble servant,

ALEXANDER McDOUGALL.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 14th March: Ordered to lie for further consideration.]

Wright-Town, 22d December, 1776.

MUCH RESPECTED SIR: I beg leave to introduce to your Excellency's notice and acquaintance, the bearer, Captain Vernejon. He has been with us some months, and has ever discovered to be the gentleman and soldier. At the time General Lee was taken, he acted with the greatest bravery and resolution; and had the whole that were there acted with the same spirit, our country would not have experienced the loss of so worthy an officer as General Lee. I beg your Excellency and the Congress to take such notice of him as a man of his merit deserves.

Dear sir, I am, with much esteem, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

JNO. SULLIVAN.

To his Excellency John Hancock, Esq.

COLONEL NICOLL TO GENERAL HEATH.

Peeks-Kill, 21 December, 1776.

SIR: Upon examination, I was surprised to find that the goods and chattels taken from Joshua Barns, on their way to the Ministerial Army, were not returned unto the Quartermaster-General's store by Colonel Prescott, according to General Washington's orders. I hope your Honour will inquire into the matter, and order every article returned, as I am determined to inquire into it, and if the whole are not taken care of for the use of the Continent, to advertise the state of the affair in full, looking upon the appropriation of such goods to private purposes worse than plundering or stealing.

From, sir, your most obedient, and very humble servant,

ISAAC NICOLL, Colonel.

To the Hon. Major-General Heath.

---

MAJOR HUGHES (COMMISSARY) TO GENERAL HEATH.

Peekskill, December 22d, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I was at the Fishkill when the Tories, the arms, &c., arrived. They are to go up by water, to-morrow morning, with eight others, brought in to-day.

General Wadsworth writes me that the time for which his brigade were inlisted elapses on Tuesday next; in consequence of which, I set out in the morning to give direction relative to the camp furniture, &c.

If the Bay Militia are not in very soon, that is, in four or five days, we stand a pretty good chance of wintering in New-York—I mean those that don't feel poorly.

Colonel Little, who has the command, (Colonel Nicoll being gone home,) is endeavouring to raise a picket, and fix an alarm post. I waited on him two or three days since for that purpose. He is, in my opinion, a most excellent man, but, unhappily, at this time is really unable to go through the duties of the post. I shall inform General Spencer of our situation, and wait on General James Clinton, when I return. I hope you'll pardon my officiousness, for I cannot help thinking that a few enterprising men might seize this post with ease. The cannon are going up by water to-morrow to the Fishkill. This, I understand by Major Craft, is in consequence of a message from General Spencer.

The secret expedition of our Convention remains a secret to every body but the Tories and enemy. Such a tardy race of animals never before composed a Senate.

I am, dear General, your most obedient, and very humble servant,

HUGH HUGHES.

The Hon. Major-General Heath.

GENERAL JAMES CLINTON TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fort Montgomery, 23 December, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I send you enclosed a letter which I received last night from General Spencer, wherein you will see the necessity of sending him a number of men, as the troops under his command will be discharged next Tuesday, their time of engagement being then expired. And pray consider that the time of engagement of all the men at Peekskill, Fort Independent, Fort Constitution, and those near New-Windsor, (belonging to my brother's brigade,) expires the last day of this month. I have five companies here of my regiment, but when their times are out I cannot tell, nor never could find out, as they were inlisted by different officers, who put just what constructions they pleased on their warrants; and I believe they have never informed me right. Captain Swartwout says that his men's time were out the first of this month, and some before; and some of them have run off without a discharge, and I can't punish them for it, as he justifies them. I understand there are many more who say their time is out the last of this month; and what to do with them I cannot tell, till I have your directions; but if I could persuade them all to stay till next spring (as I believe I might the most of them) they would be of little service, as several of them are without shoes, &c., and has done no duty this long time on that account, which makes the duty come hard on the few that are provided with them. I send Captain Swartwout with this, that he may answer for himself concerning his company.

Captain Schenck informed me he had sent a quantity of flour to this fort, but I can't find out that any has come here; and if we are not provided with a quantity of flour, and soon, we shall want no men here.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JAMES CLINTON, B. General.

P. S. Enclosed is a return of Captain Swartwout's company, made yesterday.

HESTER DE WITT TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fishkill Landing, December 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The distressful situation of my husband, now a prisoner with the enemy in the city of New-York, suffering and starving for the want of the necessary assistance I am capable of affording him, drives me to the necessity of troubling your Honours with these few lines, praying you will please to take in your consideration to allow me the privilege of going to him with my children and what little I have with me. My circumstances at present plead strongly in my favour to be with him. Your granting me the above request will be the means of assisting a distressed friend to his country, who is suffering in the common cause, and to the utmost oblige your humble servant,

HESTER DE WITT.

To the honourable Convention of the State of New-York.

ABNER SEELYE TO JOHN SESSIONS.

Albany, December 22, 1776.

SIR: The Committee of Cumberland and Gloucester having appointed me to the command of Captain Day's company of Rangers, from whose influence, together with yours and other gentlemen of the Committee, appointed to muster said Rangers, I am led to believe I may be approved of by Convention. My being with you when examining into the conduct of those companies gave me an opportunity of hearing the many errours and omissions they were guilty of; from which circumstance I am led to believe those companies cannot stand. As I am appointed a Captain in Colonel Warner's regiment by the honourable Continental Congress, a corps in which I hoped to see more service than in the one I now belong, I beg leave to return you now, and the rest of the gentlemen, my most hearty thanks for the honour done to me, and hope they will accept of my resignation, and that a reimbursement may be ordered of the expenses I have been at in raising those I have inlisted.

I am, with due esteem, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

ABNER SEELYE.

To John Sessions, Esq., at Fish-Kill.

GENERAL LINCOLN TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Providence, December 22, 1776.

SIR: I this minute returned from Bristol. Left the Militia there from the Massachusetts-Bay, in a state of general discontent, arising, as they inform me, from their being unprovided with necessary clothing for the camp. I have ordered one regiment of our three months' men (as they are called) to remain on that post at present. Those, with about fourteen hundred under General West, are, in my opinion, a number sufficient now for that station. I therefore beg to suggest to your Honour whether, considering the state of the few Militia now there, it would not be best to let them return to their several homes. Indeed, it will be difficult, if not impossible, to keep them.

Your Honour's most obedient servant,

BENJ. LINCOLN.

Governour Cooke.

DOCTOR GREEN TO DAVID GILLMAN.

Concord, 22 December, 1776.

SIR: I this day received your epistle. Am obliged to you for the good opinion you have been pleased to entertain of me, in desiring my company in the present campaign; but must return for answer that my domestick affairs (whatever my inclination might be) would be a sufficient bar to my acceptance.

From your humble servant, PETER GREEN.

ARTHUR LEE TO LORD SHELBURNE.

Paris, December 23d, 1776.

MY LORD: A very few hours after my last letter to your Lordship, brought me the desire of my country to serve her in a publick character. Your Lordship, I hope, thinks too well of me to suppose I could hesitate a moment. In fact, almost the same minute saw me bid adieu, perhaps forever, to a country where from choice I had fixed my fortunes, and to a people whom I most respected, and could have loved. But the first object of my life is my country; the first wish of my heart is publick liberty. I must see, therefore, the liberties of my country established or perish in her last struggle.

In truth, I have long despaired even of a struggle for liberty in England; I will not insult Scotland with the idea. It is not the subtle Weddeburne, poisoning the fountain of publick security, nor the ruthless Thurloe, deliberately butchering the liberties of his country, that make me despair; but yet, perhaps, the people are only not virtuous, and America may yet, with a sort of filial piety, reanimate her expiring Constitution.

Our Pater Patriæ, with whom and Mr. Deane I am joined in power, is in good health and spirits. If fate will have it, that America, as she has reared her temples and her altars to liberty, must furnish her victims too, I know not where she can find a sacrifice more respectable.

Should the event of this measure be found fatal to England, it is the perfidy of her Ministers, which would never offer any thing that could be trusted, which compels it, and to which the consequences are justly imputable.

I beg your Lordship to remember me as one who can never cease to have the most perfect esteem for you. I have communicated to the Abbé Raynal all the facts I could collect, in answer to his questions. He will write to you soon.

May I beg to be remembered to our friends in the college and to those out of it, who, I hope, will always do me the honour of remembering me; Colonel Barré, Mr. Dunning, Dr. Priestly, Dr. Price, &c.

I have the honour to be, &c., ARTHUR LEE.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Baltimore, December 23d, 1776.

SIR: I do myself the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your several favours of the 12th, 13th, and 15th instant, in the order of their respective dates, and to inform you that they were duly laid before Congress.

As General Lee, by the fortune of war, has become a prisoner in the hands of our enemies, the Congress are anxious to afford him all the relief in their power during his confinement. They have, therefore, resolved that a flag be immediately sent to General Howe, to know in what manner General Lee is treated, and have directed Mr. R. Morris (to whom I have written on the occasion) to forward to you for his use, one hundred half-johannes. The United States, from every principle of justice and generosity, are bound to render the situation of that gentleman as easy as possible during his captivity. His loss must be extremely regretted by every friend to this country.

The Congress, upon reconsidering the vote of the 11th instant, have come to a resolution expressing their approbation of your conduct in declining to publish it in general orders. They also approve of your sending General Armstrong to Pennsylvania and General Smallwood to Maryland, to stimulate the people to exert themselves on this occasion. I have the pleasure to acquaint you that the Militia in the upper parts of Maryland are in motion, and seem at last sensible of the danger which threatens them.

The multiplicity of business which the Congress left unfinished at the time of there departure from Philadelphia, has induced them to appoint a Committee of three gentlemen, with full powers, to perfect the business in such manner as they shall judge proper.

You will please to pay the Militia who reinforce your Army, in the same manner as you pay your other troops; and on their discharge, allow them a penny per mile to bear their expenses on the way to their respective homes.

The enclosed resolves of Congress I transmit by their order, and beg leave to request your attention to them.

I have the honour to be, with the utmost esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO ROBERT MORRIS.

Baltimore, December 23d, 1776.

SIR: Your several favours of the 13th, 14th, 16th, and 17th instant, have been duly received, in the order of their respective dates, and laid before Congress. In consequence of which I am directed to transmit you the enclosed resolves.

The intelligence of General Lee's being taken prisoner is really alarming in the present state of our Army; and I am afraid his loss will be severely felt, as he was in a great measure the idol of the officers, and possessed still more the confidence of the soldiery. As the fortune of war has made him a prisoner, the United States are bound, by every tie of justice and generosity, to afford him all the relief in their power. They have accordingly resolved that one hundred half-johannes should be sent to General Washington, for the use of General Lee, should it be found practicable to convey money to him, which the Congress deem a matter of so much importance that they have ordered a flag to be sent to General Howe, to know whether he will permit it or not. I am, however, directed by Congress to request that you will lodge, for this purpose, the above-mentioned sum in the hands of General Washington.

The Congress, concurring in opinion with you that a Committee should be appointed in the city of Philadelphia to take care of the publick interest, and at the same time highly approving of the zeal and attention you have particularly discovered to the welfare of your country since their departure from that city, have nominated Mr. Clymer, Mr. Walton, and yourself, to execute such Continental business as it may be necessary to transact in Philadelphia. They have also directed that two hundred thousand dollars be immediately sent to the Commissary in Pennsylvania, subject to your drafts, and to be applied as you may judge proper. Should this sum prove insufficient, you are empowered to draw on the Loan Office for any additional sum you may think necessary for publick purposes.

The enclosed resolves will inform you that Congress highly approve of the conduct of yourself, Mr. Walton, and Mr. Clymer, in the care you have taken of publick business, and particularly of the attention you have shown and the plan you have laid for preserving the Continental frigates.

Be pleased to acquaint Mr. Peters that he is directed by the Board of War to repair to Baltimore as soon as possible, where his services are judged absolutely necessary by Congress.

I have the honour to be, with very great respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Pray forward the enclosed to the General by express.

To Robert Morris, Esq.

WILLIAM WHIPPLE TO JOHN LANGDON.

Baltimore, 23d December, 1776.

MY DEAR SIR: This will be handed you by Alexander Rose, Esq., of Charlestown, South-Carolina, a friend of Samuel Purviance, Esq., of this town, whose character you are not unacquainted with. Mr. Rose is on his journey to the eastward, and, I understand, intends visiting Portsmouth; in that case, I doubt not he will receive every civility from you due to Mr. Purviance's friend.

Captain Avery, who accompanies Mr. Rose, signalized himself as a brave officer in defence of the fort on Sullivan's Island. I beg leave to recommend both these gentlemen to the circle of your friends; and am, with great respect, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

WM. WHIPPLE.

WILLIAM BLAIR TO GENERAL JOHNSON.

Taney-Town, December 23d, 1776.

SIR: The Thirty-Fifth Battalion met this day, and turned out tolerable well; but are unable at present to ascertain the number of volunteers; but shall let you know this week. The officers to be commissioned are as the list enclosed. We have, upon inquiry, found they were regularly chosen by the people. We are, sir, your most obedient servant,

WM. BLAIR,
NORM. BRUCE.

To Brigadier-General Johnson.

BENJAMIN RUMSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Joppa, 23d December, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. James Talbot, a merchant in Joppa, and an officer in the Militia, in the Eighth Battalion, is desirous of procuring a Captain's commission in the Regulars to be raised as the quota of this Province.

I have known him for some time. He is a cool, serious, thinking man, a native of America; possesses, as far as I have ever heard, a fair character in trade and his dealings; has ever been ready to do his duty as a Militia officer; has on all occasions shown his readiness to meet the enemies of freedom upon every requisition. Early in this contest has solicited a commission, and, in my opinion, has spirit enough, added to his attachment to the cause, to meet the foe and do his duty in the field to the best of his skill and ability.

Mr. John Wayne would accept of a Lieutenancy under him. He is a native of Great Britain, married into a family of this neighbourhood, seems much attached to the cause of liberty, is well acquainted with the manœuvres generally taught in the Militia, and, I verily believe, would make a good officer.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

BENJAMIN RUMSEY.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of the State of Maryland.

CÆSAR RODNEY TO THOMAS RODNEY.

Dover, December the 23d, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have but little news, little paper, and therefore very little to write. I received both your letters, the last yesterday, and am much pleased that your company meet with applause. As they know how, I hope they will continue to deserve it. You say you feel better for the little campaigning you have had. If you will take care to expose yourself no more than the good of the service and your duty require, I do not doubt it will continue. I am pleased to hear that the people of New-Castle County, by a sense of their duty, are rousing from their former slumber. There are some anxious spirits in this County, but fear they will not be able to produce another company in time. I am very sorry that Mr. J. Dickinson, and the other gent^n^ you mentioned, should have discovered sentiments inimical to the freedom and independence of the American States. I both hoped and believed they were of a different sentiment from that in this great interesting cause.

My sister Sally is a little poorly—taken yesterday. All the rest of both families are perfectly well. From present appearances, I think this campaign must soon end. God send it may, for this is a most inclement season for the poor soldiers. Nothing but the importance of the cause could support them in such a day of trial.

Remember me to Johnny. Tell him I am pleased that he has entered the service, and that I hope he will set about the business of war with firmness, and make it his study to acquire knowledge in that way. Don't forget to write by every opportunity.

I am yours,

CÆSAR RODNEY.

P. S. I cannot tell what has become of the shallop, or how she is to be got down, and am afraid she may be lost by ice. I wish she could be contrived down.

To Captain Thomas Rodney, Esq., in camp, near Trenton.

ROBERT MORRIS TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 26th.]

Philadelphia, December 23d, 1776.

SIR: I have the pleasure to inform you that the Continental fleet in this port is increased by the arrival of the

Andrew Doria, Captain Isaiah Robison, from St. Eustatia, which place she left the beginning of this month, and next day fell in with a British sloop-of-war, of twelve guns, which she took after a very obstinate engagement, in which the Andrew Doria had two men killed, some wounded, the main-mast shot through, and some other damage. The sloop had many men wounded, three shot through her mast, her sails shot to pieces, and much damage done to her. This is one of the sloops the Lords of the Admiralty ordered Admiral Gayton to fit out at Jamaica: and Mr. Jones, who commanded her, has the King's commission as Master and Commander. He defended her obstinately, and is certainly a brave man. I will desire the Council of Safety to take his parole, and send him to some safe place. Captain Robison manned this prize, and ordered her in for this port. He also took a snow from Jamaica, laden with mahogany and logwood, and ordered her for this port; but it is next to an impossibility for them to get in. Nothing but the fast sailing of the Andrew Doria, and the extreme vigilance of the Captain, brought her safe past the enemy's ships, one of which lies in the Cape May channel.

The cargo on board this brigantine consists of 208 dozen pair of woolen stockings, 106 dozen pair of worsted stockings, 215 sailors' jackets, 23 great-coats, 50 pieces Dutch plains, 30 pieces (900 yards) flannel, 45 pieces blue, brown, and white cloth, 463 blankets, 218 pieces 7-8ths linen, containing 6,795 Dutch ells, 496 muskets, 326 pairs of pistols, and 100 pounds of powder, and 14,101 pounds of lead, for account of the Continent.

I received a letter last night from General Washington, by Colonel Moylan, requesting me to hurry Mr. Mease to have soldiers' clothes made up with all possible diligence. He says muskets are not wanted there, but that comfortable clothing is exceedingly wanted. Colonel Moylan advises by all means to send up the stockings and great-coats now arrived, which I think to do; but shall tell the General they were intended for the new levies, and leave him to dispose of them as he may think most beneficial to the service. The linens, plains, and cloth, I will deliver to Mr. Mease, with orders to have them made up; but he will find much difficulty, as all the tailors, or near all, are at the camp, and the Council of Safety dare not order them down, for fear the rest will follow. The blankets shall also go to the General, to be disposed of as he may think proper. The pistols, muskets, powder, and lead, I think had best be sent to Lancaster; but wish to hear from the Board of War, in answer to what I wrote before on this subject. The sailors' jackets must be put on board the fleet, being much wanted there.

I propose that Captain Robison should put all the seamen prisoners on board the Randolph, Captain Biddle, and that the latter should compel them to do duty whether they enter or not, only following the example set us by the British act of Parliament.

Mr. Davis Bevan, of this city, was taken about five weeks ago, coming into our capes, and carried to New-York; from thence brought round in the Roebuck, and suffered to land at Cape Henlopen, under a promise to return. He told me that he heard Captain Hammond and other officers say they are now determined to put a total stop to our trade. Six frigates were sent to cruise off Georgia and Carolina, six off the capes of Virginia, and six off our capes. They have fixed signals and stations, so as to keep up a complete line along the coast, and are determined to keep these stations throughout the winter, if possible. He says only part of the troops sent to Rhode-Island are to remain there; the remainder are going for Carolina. Bevan is an intelligent man, and had an opportunity of hearing and learning these things from Lord Howe's Under Secretary or Clerk, with whom he ingratiated himself, and was employed in writing for him on board the Eagle. I have sent Mr. Bevan down, with the letter mentioned in my last, to Captain Hammond, and I hope it will procure the discharge of Captain Morgan and the prisoners on board that fleet.

The schooner Wasp, commanded by Lieutenant Baldwin, has brought into Egg-Harbour a schooner laden with Indian corn and oats, bound from the Lower Counties to New-York. He has sent up the master and five or six others prisoners here. They had been on board the Falcon man-of-war, Captain Linzie, and subscribed the oaths of allegiance, certificates of which were found on them. I sent these papers to the Council of Safety, who committed the men to jail, as there is no Judge of the Admiralty in the Jerseys, and Judge Ross is at Lancaster. I think it advisable to send wagons to Egg-Harbour for the corn and oats to feed the Continental horses in this city. These articles are very scarce here, and will bear the carriage; but I will consult General Putnam and the Wagonmaster on this subject. As to the vessel, I am of opinion it would be best to sell her, without waiting for condemnation, as the proofs of her guilt are clear and incontestable, and she lies in too much danger to wait patiently for the usual forms. However, Congress or the Marine Committee will please to give a positive order what must be done in this respect. Baldwin had retaken a French schooner that had been taken going out of our capes by one of the men-of-war cruising there. He was bringing her into Egg-Harbour, when a fleet of fifteen sail hove in sight, two of which were two-deckers, one or two frigates, and an armed brigantine, pursued him so close that he was obliged to abandon his prize, and get into the inlet fast as he could. This happened last Wednesday. Being short of provisions, he intends coming in here; and I wish he may escape the enemy.

You will perceive, sir, that our fleet will be pretty numerous here, although their force but small, compared to the dangers that surround them. I have conversed with several of the Captains, and formed a plan for their getting safe out to sea, and taking such merchantmen with them as may be ready. They approve the plan, and I hope will execute it; but we must have time to get ready, and they must act with great vigilance and spirit to effect it.

Upon this occasion I cannot help saying that I am very uneasy, as I am neither instructed what to do, nor vested with proper powers to act as may appear best. I must, therefore, request that Congress, or the Marine Committee, will either instruct me pointedly what to do, or give me proper authority to act for the best, for the object is important, and if misfortunes happen, which is very probable, it would be hard that I should hereafter be blamed when the event is known, for measures that appear previously to be well calculated for the publick good. The vessels to be got out are the Rondolph, Delaware, Andrew Doria, Independence, Hornet, Fly, and Musquito, with many valuable merchantmen. The Lexington, Sachem, and Wasp, may be hourly expected in, if they escape the enemy. Sailors are scarce; tradesmen at the camp, and a kind of stupor seems to have seized every body that ought to give us assistance, so that it is inconceivable how slowly all work goes on, and with how much difficulty we can get any thing done. I have applied to the Council of Safety to order down some tradesmen to finish the Delaware, if possible. They wish, but fear to comply; and if they do not, she must after all remain here.

General Washington desires me to remain here as long as possible, and promises to give me notice if any immediate danger. He thinks the enemy are only waiting two events, and when they happen they will prosecute their designs against this city—that is, for ice to cross the river, and for the 1st January, when most of his Army will disband; and he says you might as well attempt to stop the winds from blowing or the sun in its diurnal as stop them from going when their time is up. General Sullivan brought him about two thousand men, General Gates about six hundred; and his whole force now consists of about five thousand men, besides the city Militia. It's true, the country Militia are coming in, but I suppose as many will leave him the 1st January as will join before that time; and if so, it will not be possible for him to save this city out of the hands of the enemy, after they cross the Delaware. On this view of things, I think we ought to hazard every thing to get the ships out, and I shall advise Mr. Mease, Mr. Tod, and all others that have Continental stores, to be prepared for removing them.

It is very mortifying to me when I am obliged to tell you disagreeable things; but I am compelled to inform Congress that the Continental currency keeps losing in credit. Many people refuse openly and avowedly to receive it; and several citizens that retired into the country must have starved if their own private credit had not procured them the common necessaries of life, when nothing could be got for your money. Some effectual remedy should be speedily applied to this evil, or the game will be up. Mr. Commissary

Wharton has told the General that the mills refuse to grind for him, either from disaffection or dislike to the money. Be that as it may, the consequences are terrible, for I do suppose the Army will not consent to starve.

At present, I don't recollect any thing to add to this letter; but as other occurrences happen. I shall give you the trouble of more letters. I think it is time that Mr. Pluckrose, the express I sent down with letters to you last Tuesday, should return, unless detained for some purpose of Congress. By him I sent a number of French letters, &c.

I am, with great respect, sir, your obedient servant,

ROBT. MORRIS.

P. S. I am informed by Mr. Moylan that Colonel Guyon (I think that is the name) was taken prisoner with General Lee. He is the Colonel that came over in the Hancock and Adams, Captain Smith, from Nantes.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

[Without date.]

SIR: It is impossible for me to appear on behalf of the owners of the privateer Phœnix, Captain Cunningham; for although I was interested one twenty-fourth part in that vessel, yet I am not authorized by the other owners, nor indeed do I know who they are, except Carter Braxton, Esq., of Virginia, under whom my concern was held. This gentleman and another in Virginia are authorized to act for the whole; and it would be very improper for me to interfere, especially in a transaction that never had my approbation. Whatever charges may fall to my share to pay, I shall readily comply with; and I have pressed Mr. Braxton to come up on the occasion. I wish the Committee would write, and urge him to appear before them, that it may be settled; but I hope they will excuse me, for the reasons assigned.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

ROBT. MORRIS.

To the Hon. James Searle, Esq.

ROBERT MORRIS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, December 23d, 1776.

SIR: I had the honour to receive your obliging favour of yesterday, by Colonel Moylan. The contents give a most melancholy aspect to our affairs, and I wish to Heaven it may be in our power to retrieve them. It is useless at this period to examine into the causes of our present unhappy situation, unless that examination would be productive of a cure for the evils that surround us. In fact, those causes have long been known to such as would open their eyes. The very consequences of them were often foretold, and the measures execrated by some of the best friends of America; but in vain. An obstinate partiality to the habits and customs of one part of this Continent has predominated in the publick councils, and too little attention been paid to others. To criminate the authors of our errours would not avail, but we cannot see ruin staring us in the face without thinking of them. It has been my fate to make an ineffectual opposition to all short inlistments, to Colonial appointments of officers, and to many other measures that I thought pregnant with mischiefs; but these things either suited the genius and habits, or squared with the sentiments of some States that had sufficient influence to prevail; and nothing is now left, but to extricate ourselves from the difficulties in which we are involved, if we can. Let us try our utmost; man can do no more. I shall urge Mr. Mease to go on as briskly as possible with the clothing, but it's impossible for him to make much progress, as most of the tailors are at the camp. The muskets and other stores shall be sent out of the city, and such papers as I can spare shall be sent away. The fleet has always been my particular care, and at this time I am exceedingly anxious for its safety; but the difficulty of getting any thing done is inconceivable. Most of the tradesmen necessary to finish the Delaware, are at camp. I have applied to the Council of Safety to order some few of them down, and although they wish, yet they fear to do it, lest the rest should follow.

I have now under my care the Randolph and Delaware frigates, the brigantine Andrew Doria, sloops Hornet, Independence, and Fly, and schooner Musquito, all Continental armed vessels, besides several valuable merchantmen, all which I wish to get out to sea, and think it might be effected if every man concerned would exert himself in his department. I try to give them spirits and invigorate their exertions all in my power. The enemy have six sail cruising about our capes, and keep a special look-out. Notwithstanding this, the brigantine Andrew Doria, Captain Isaiah Robison, passed through them and got safe up this day. She left St. Eustatia the beginning of this month, and on the passage took a sloop of twelve guns, fitted out by Admiral Gayton, at Jamaica, agreeable to orders of the Lords of the Admiralty. She also took a snow from Jamaica, and ordered both prizes in here, but it's most likely they will be retaken. Before I quit this subject, permit me to observe that there is a Lieutenant Josiah, of our Navy, prisoner, and now at New-York, and we have prisoner at York-Town, in this State, a Lieutenant Bogan, of their Navy. I could wish an exchange between them could be effected. There is also a Doctor Hodge, Surgeon to Colonel Cadwalader's battalion of Pennsylvanians, now prisoner in New-York, a young man of much merit, and his abilities in his profession would render him very useful could he be exchanged.

The sloop taken by the Andrew Doria was commanded by a Mr. Jones, who has the King's commission as Master and Commander. He behaved bravely, and I am told he says Lord Howe will be desirous to redeem him. I suppose his rank to be equal to a Major's or Lieutenant-Colonel's, which I mention that your Excellency may advert to it, if you wish for an exchange of any particular officer of merit of that rank. This brigantine was sent by the Secret Committee for clothing and stores, and has brought in the following cargo: 208 dozen pair of woolen stockings; 106 dozen pair of worsted do.; 215 sailors' jackets; 23 great-coats; 50 pieces Dutch plains; 30 pieces (900 yards) flannel; 45 pieces blue, brown, and white cloth; 463 blankets; 218 pieces 7-8ths linen; 496 muskets; 326 pair pistols; 200 half barrels powder; 14,101 pounds lead. I have enumerated these articles, that you may judge what part is wanted for your Army; and your orders shall be complied with. I shall only observe that these imports were intended for the new levies; but circumstanced as you are, I think you should judge solely of the propriety of applying them to our present exigencies.

The brig Lexington and sloop Sachem may be hourly looked for with further supplies, also sundry merchantmen; but I dread their approach to our capes. They took a French snow in sight of the Andrew Doria, who protected her as long as it was possible.

I am fearful General Lee may suffer for want of money if the resentment of British officers runs as high as they have threatened; therefore to prevent present distress, I enclose herein a set of exchange, drawn by the late Governour Eden's Secretary, Mr. Smith, on Messrs. Thomas Eden & Co., for one hundred pounds sterling, which I beg you will convey by a flag to General Lee, with an assurance of a further supply whenever he wants it. I have endorsed the bills, and flatter myself that many gentlemen now in New-York, to whom I am known, will advance the General the money upon them. I have no doubt but this matter may be so managed as that General Lee will certainly get these bills and the money for them, without putting you to much inconvenience; and with the utmost esteem I remain, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

ROBT. MORRIS.

P. S. Having sent my stores out of town, this is the best paper I can command at present.

December 24.—Not meeting any conveyance for this letter yesterday, I have since obtained the enclosed bill, drawn by Captain Duncan M'Nicol and Hugh Fraser, Lieutenant of the Royal Highland Emigrants, for £116 9*s.* 3*d.* sterling, in favour of Alexander Ingles, Esq., for amount of supplies to them in Charles-Town. It is drawn on Major Small, and I dare say will be paid; therefore I think it a preferable remittance to General Lee than bills on London; and hope you will convey it to him immediately. R. M.

CAPTAIN COOK TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, December 23d, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: I wrote you from Christiana Bridge on the 19th instant, and on the 21st arrived at this place, when I waited on General Putnam for orders. He directed me to the Marine Board. On waiting on them my people were desired to assist in fitting out the Delaware.

There is nothing at this time appears alarming. The enemy are retreating, it's supposed to winter quarters. I am extremely willing to do every thing in my power to serve our country, but it appears to me, from what intelligence we have, that we shall not be wanting. In that case it will be better to be fitting out the Defence.

I have enclosed you a list of the officers and men now with me. They are in high spirits, and very desirous of engaging the enemy; and I am satisfied would have endeavoured to excel each other in being of most service to their country. I had not time before I set off to make mention of those gentlemen who are worthy of preferment. I now will use the freedom of mentioning my First Lieutenant, Mr. Auchenbick; likewise my Second, Mr. Burnell. Both those gentlemen are very deserving, and none more worthy within the circle of my acquaintance in the State of Maryland.

I am, honourable gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

GEO. COOK.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

ADDRESS TO THE INHABITANTS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

In Council of Safety, December 23, 1776.

FRIENDS AND COUNTRYMEN: The pressing exigency of the times induces us once more to address you, while we can deplore the calamities of our country without restraint, and before the voice of truth and the excretions of tyranny are forced back into the bosom of the wretched sufferer. On your vigorous exertions alone, at this time, will depend the privilege of ever addressing you in the style of freemen. Should the enemy be encouraged by farther success, devastation and ruin must mark their footsteps.

We call upon you, we entreat and beseech you, to come forth to the assistance of our worthy General Washington, and our invaded brethren in the Jerseys, if you wish to secure your property from being plundered, and to protect the innocence of your wives and children; if you wish to live in freedom, and are determined to maintain that best boon of Heaven, you have no time to deliberate. A manly resistance will secure every blessing. Inactivity and sloth will bring horrour and destruction. Step forth like men. Feed not yourselves with the vain expectation of peace and security; should the enemy succeed in reducing this country, such hopes will vanish like the dreams of the night, and plunge you into an irretrievable abyss of unspeakable misery.

Shall we, with Heaven and justice on our side, (unless we could impiously suppose that the Almighty has devoted mankind to slavery,) shall we hesitate to meet our enemies in the hostile field? The sons of America have not drawn their swords to invade the rights of others, nor to reduce populous countries to a state of desolation. It was not to plunder the wealthy, nor to wrest from the laborious farmer or industrious mechanick his hard-earned blessings, that America had recourse to arms. No! Whilst our most humble petitions and pathetick expostulations yet rung in the ears of our enemies, they wantonly attacked us on our own peaceable shores.

May Heaven, who bestowed the blessing of liberty upon you, awaken you to a proper sense of your danger, and rouse that manly spirit of virtuous resolution which has ever bid defiance to the efforts of tyranny. May you ever have the glorious prize of liberty in view, and bear with a becoming fortitude the fatigues and severities of a winter campaign: that, and that only, will entitle you to the superlative distinction of being deemed, under God, the deliverers of your country.

Many are the artifices of our enemies to delude and deceive. False tales of every kind are invented and propagated to amuse and delay you. For this purpose, among others, they have spread a report that your services are not wanted. Believe no such reports; they are propagated by traitors. Let all able-bodied men, whether Associators or not, step forth at this crisis, under the officers of the district where they reside, and march without delay to Philadelphia, except those of Berks and Northampton, who are to join General Washington at Head-Quarters.

We conclude with entreating all Committees of Inspection, Officers of the Militia, and every friend to his country, to exert their influence on the present occasion, and we have not the least doubt but their virtuous endeavours will be crowned with the most happy success.

By order of Council:

THOMAS WHARTON, Jun., President.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER OF DISTINCTION IN THE AMERICAN ARMY.

Since I wrote you this morning, I have had an opportunity of hearing a number of the particulars of the horrid depredations committed by that part of the British Army which was stationed at and near Pennytown, under the command of Lord Cornwallis. Besides the sixteen young women who had fled to the woods to avoid their brutality, and were there seized and carried off, one man had the cruel mortification to have his wife and only daughter (a child of ten years of age) ravished; this he himself, almost choked with grief, uttered in lamentations to his friend, who told me of it, and also informed me that another girl of thirteen years of age, was taken from her father's house, carried to a barn about a mile, there ravished, and afterwards made use of by five more of these brutes. Numbers of instances of the same kind of behaviour I am assured to have happened; here their brutish lust were their stimulas; but wanton mischief was seen in every part of the country; every thing portable they plunder and carry off, neither age nor sex, Whig or Tory, is spared; an indiscriminate ruin attends every person they meet with; infants, children, old men, and women, are left in their shirts, without a blanket to cover them in this inclement season; furniture of every kind destroyed or burnt; windows and doors broke to pieces; in short, the houses left unhabitable, and the people left without provisions, for every horse, cow, ox, hogs, and poultry, carried off; a blind old gentleman near Pennytown, plundered of every thing, and on his door wrote, "Captain Wills, of the Royal Irish, did this!" As a notable proof of their regard and favour to their friends and well-wishers, they yesterday burnt the elegant house of Daniel Cox, Esq., at Trenton Ferry, who has been their constant advocate, and supporter of Toryism in that part of the country. This behaviour of theirs has so exasperated the people of the country, that they are flying to arms, and forming themselves into parties to waylay them and cut them off, wherever they can meet with them. This, and other efforts which are making, I hope will so strengthen them that they will soon find their situation very disagreeable in New-Jersey. Another instance of brutality happened near Woodbridge. One of the most respectable gentlemen in that part of the country was alarmed by the cries and shrieks of a most lovely daughter; he found an officer—a British officer—in the act of ravishing her; he instantly put him to death; two other officers rushed in with fusees, and fired two balls into the father, who is now languishing under his wounds. I am tired of this horrid scene; Almighty Justice cannot suffer it to go unpunished; he will inspirit his people (who only claim that liberty which he has entitled them to) to do themselves justice, to rise universally in arms, and drive these invading tyrants out of our country.

Published by order of the Council of Safety.

GEO. BICKHAM, Secretary pro tem.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL REED.

Camp, above Trenton Falls, 23d December, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The bearer is sent down to know whether your plan was attempted last night, and if not, to inform you that Christmas day at night, one hour before day, is the time fixed upon for our attempt on Trenton. For Heaven's sake, keep this to yourself, as the discovery of it may prove fatal to us; our numbers, sorry am I to say, being less than I had any conception of; but necessity, dire necessity, will, nay must, justify my attack. Prepare, and in concert with Griffin, attack as many of their posts as you possibly can with a prospect of success; the more we can attack at the same instant, the more confusion we shall spread, and greater good will result from it. If I had not been fully convinced before of the enemy's designs. I have now ample testimony of their intentions to attack Philadelphia, so soon as the ice will afford the means of conveyance. As the Colonels of the Continental regiments might kick up some dust about command unless Cadwalader is considered by them in the light of a Brigadier, which I wish him to be, I desired General Gates, who is unwell and applied for leave to go to Philadelphia, to endeavour, if his health would permit him, to call and stay two or three days at Bristol in his way. I shall not be particular; we could not ripen matters for our attack before the time mentioned in the first part of this letter, so much out of sorts, and so much in want of every thing are the troops under Sullivan, &c. Let me know by a careful express the plan you are to pursue. The letter herewith sent, forward on to Philadelphia. I could wish it to be in time for the Southern post's departure, which will be, I believe, by eleven o'clock to-morrow.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

P. S. I have ordered our men to be provided with three days' provisions ready cooked, with which, and their blankets, they are to march; for if we are successful, which Heaven grant, and the circumstances favour, we may push on. I shall direct every ferry and ford to be well guarded, and not a soul suffered to pass without an officer's going down with the permit; do the same with you.

To Joseph Reed, Esq., or in his absence, to John Cadwalader, Esq., only, at Bristol.

Hugh Gaine's New-York Mercury, December 23, 1776.

The brave Colonel Harcourt, of Burgoyne's Light-Horse, took Lee, the deserter from his King's service and late Rebel General, with a party of less than fifty men, in the face of all the vagabond retinue, without the loss of a single man. The Colonel, by several circumstances, found out his quarters, rode up to the house and surrounded it. Lee, fearful of being put to the sword, begged his life in a manner which shows that where just and loyal principles are not, true courage is never to be found. His life was granted by the brave commander for further consideration. Lee was brought to Brunswick, and is now confined under a strong guard at that place.

General Clinton, Lord Percy, and the troops under their command, have taken possession of Rhode-Island without firing a single gun. Sir Peter Parker, Commodore Hotham, and his Majesty's ships under their command, are safely moored in Newport harbour.

The Rebels are every where mouldering away like a rope of sand. With the most impotent bravadoes, they have not yet had the spirit to make any thing like a stand in a single encounter. The New-England people have neither money nor recruits; and the rest of the Colonies are nearly drained of their resources. Ruin, therefore, and destruction must be the consequence of continuing the war any longer.

Mr. Washington, with about two thousand poor wretches, who can get no subsistence but by following him, has fled to Lancaster, in Pennsylvania. Many people of Philadelphia are retired, with their goods and effects, into the back country, with but little provision for the winter.

The chain of posts formed by the British troops reach within seventeen miles of Philadelphia, upon the banks of the Delaware, and the first strong frost will afford them a natural bridge over it.

The Allens, and some other principal people of Philadelphia, are come in, and have claimed the protection of his Majesty's Army.

Great numbers in the Jerseys have likewise come in and taken the oaths; and two whole Counties have laid down their arms together, and subscribed the tests required in the Commissioners' proclamation. Most of them express the deepest sorrow for their late delusion, and freely acknowledge that when they lost British protection they fell into real slavery, and into slavery of the worst kind—the slavery of weak and wicked men.

It is reported that some of the coal ships from Louisbourg are taken by Rebel privateers, fitted out from the coasts of New-England. Those unhappy people will soon see that such ill-gotten and pirated goods will only lay the foundation of their own ruin.

General George Clinton to New-York Convention.

Ramapough, December 23, 1776.

Sir: In my last I mentioned the difficulty the Militia under my command in this quarter laboured under for want of a Commissary to supply them with provisions. Whole regiments have been days without any, except such scanty supplies as they have been able to purchase from the inhabitants. Most of the regiments are out this day. I was in hopes they might be furnished at the post near Sydman's bridge. General Heath, from the stores he told me were there, induced me to believe so; but, to my great disappointment, I am now informed that the Commissary at that place says he has not more meat in store or purchased than will be sufficient for the two regiments of Tyler and Huntington, who are to leave this in a day or two. He says he can't issue any, as his appointment is confined to Parsons's brigade. I have wrote twice to Colonel Hays on this subject, representing the difficulties we laboured under, and acquainting him that Convention expected he would, as a Commissary of their appointment, supply us. I sent the last letter by express to him yesterday, but he has never favoured me with an answer. The Militia think they are ill used, and I am sorry to say that, in my opinion, they have great reason to complain. They declare they will go home and leave me. Many have already gone, nor can I expect but that the rest will be as good as their word. Indeed they must desert or starve; and however well disposed, they will not submit to the latter. The consequences may be fatal to the country. I am not to blame. I have done every thing in my power. I have no further influence over them; nor can I, after not being able to perform my promises to them in the letter by which I called them out, and which contained no more than was fully warranted by the resolve of Convention, ever think of commanding them. It would be cruel as well as unjust to force them back to starve, nor shall I have strength enough to do it.

This moment your letter of the 21st instant, with the enclosures, were delivered me. General Heath marched yesterday for Peekskill, where he is, with his division and all the field-pieces, before this time. General Lincoln, from Massachusetts-Bay, is at Danbury, or soon expected there, on his way to Peekskill, with six thousand men. The state of the enemy's Army on this side is as follows: Leslie's brigade is at and near Achquahanock and Newark; three hundred with three field-pieces, at Hackensack; six companies of Regulars and three of Buskirk's, at the new bridge, arrived there yesterday evening. The enclosed letter from Colonel Hathorn, and a party I had out as far as Paramus, confirm this account, though I am not certain but the three hundred at Hackensack is part of Leslie's brigade. By to-morrow, if I am not mistaken, my number will not be equal to the enemy's at Hackensack and the bridge.

I observe by the resolves now sent me, two of my Colonels, and other officers, are put under the direction of a Secret Committee of your honourable House. In justice to myself, I beg leave to mention, I must consider this as a suspension of my command, at least as far as it respects the regiments and companies they command. As they cannot be subject to my orders, I can't be answerable for the conduct of the brigade.

I am, with due respect, your most obedient and humble servant,

Geo. Clinton.

To the Honourable Abraham Ten Broek, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York, at Fishkill.

---

Major Johnson to General Clinton.

December 23, 1776.

Sir: By orders of Colonel Ellison, I received two prisoners yesterday, as you will see by the enclosed. And as you are commander of that quarter, I think it proper to send them to you, with a guard, under the command of Captain Drake; and as I think them notoriously disaffected, by examination, I should be of opinion to have them well secured, and kept in close confinement until sent to Committee, as is in the enclosed directed. But if you should agree with my opinion, they should immediately be sent to the Provincial Congress of this State. So I remain your humble servant,

Johannes Johnson, First Major.

To Brigadier-General Clinton.

By virtue of his Excellency General Howe's orders, to me directed, for raising in this Province a company of fifty men, as soon as possible, you have my direction, by virtue of the power to me given, to recruit with all possible expedition to join in his Majesty's service in this Province for two years if wanted, or shorter time should the war be at an end; for which, being mustered, shall receive pay and clothing provided by his Majesty. Given under my hand at King's Bridge.

JOHN EVERITT.

COLONEL HATHORN TO GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON.

Tapan, December 23, 1776.

SIR: This informs you that yesterday, early in the evening, we received information from one Mr. Cristy, whose character we found to be good, that there were six companies of Regulars and three of late inlisted Tories, at the new bridge. This news Christie had from one of the neighbour's sons, who, by the persuasions of his parents, had inlisted, had marched with them yesterday from Bergen, and is disposed to desert. A council of war was immediately called, and as there are three roads centre at Tapan, above the main body of our men, who lay many miles scattered, it was judged best to imbody and march to the north of said roads, place several sentries, and order scouts, which was soon done.

We have heard nothing from the enemy this morning; shall be glad if our conduct is approved of, and are ready with great cheerfulness to comply with future orders.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HATHORN, Col.

N. B. We are now sending out our morning scouts, and determine, if possible, to know the situation of the enemy to-day.

I am informed by the person who brought the letter, that the scouts could not go out for want of provision.

To Brigadier-General George Clinton, at Ramapough.

PETITION OF INHABITANTS OF WESTCHESTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

Westchester County, December 23, 1776.

We, the subscribers, inhabitants of the County of Westchester, and members of the General Committee for said County, do, for ourselves and our suffering brethren, beg leave to lay before the honourable Convention the distressed situation they at present are in, praying that the Convention will take this important matter into their immediate consideration, and grant the good inhabitants of said County such relief as they in their wisdom may think expedient, and the necessity of the case required.

First, that the inhabitants of said County are in continual danger of being made prisoners, and their farms and habitations plundered by Robert Rogers's party, consisting of about seven hundred men, who daily make excursions in divers parts of said County, and taking with them by force of arms many of its good inhabitants, also their stock, grain, and every thing else that falls in their way, laying waste and destroying all that they cannot take with them, whereby the friends to this State, who reside in this quarter, are deprived of the necessaries of life.

Secondly, that we did apply to Colonel Budd, desiring him to raise the Militia for our relief, who replied, that as most of the well-affected and able part of the Militia were in the service, it was impossible for him to raise such a number of men as the nature of our request required.

Thirdly, that although there were two brigades quartered in said County, they did not (although not unacquainted with our distress) afford us any relief or assistance, and that we did apply to General Spencer, (then stationed near the White-Plains,) praying him to assist us, but we never received any answer to our request. He in a few days after removed from that place to North-Castle Church, leaving us entirely exposed to the ravages and cruelties of the enemy; that we are well informed, on General Spencer's being asked why he retreated so far back, he replied, that he thought us not worth defending. And General Wooster, who is now stationed at the Saw-Pitts, in the eastern part of the County, affords us no assistance; and we have been informed that some of his officers should have said that they would not defend the State, and if the enemy should make their appearance, they would retreat to the borders of Connecticut, and there make a stand. We would further inform your honourable House, that many of the Eastern troops, while in our country, instead of protecting its inhabitants from the enemy, did plunder and distress them more than the very enemy themselves, taking off with them our stock, household furniture, and even our farming utensils. From this alone, gentlemen, it must clearly appear to you, that we cannot expect any relief from that quarter.

From the above relation of facts, and many other circumstances that you are not unacquainted with, we make no doubt will induce you without delay to give us such relief as our much-distressed country now loudly calls for. We rely upon you, gentlemen, for assistance. Our lives and every thing dear and near to us depends on you for their preservation.

NICHOLAS FISH TO GENERAL HEATH.

Flag of Truce, off Ver Plank's Point, December 23d, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: The flag of truce that was ordered by the Convention of this State to go to New-York with the persons, families, and effects of Mrs. Inglis, Mrs. Livingston, Mrs. Moore, the two Mrs. Lake, and Mrs. Bruce, (to the command of which I was by them appointed,) arrived here this evening. Shortly after our arrival Colonel Tupper visited us in person, and informed me that he had received your Honour's order to prevent our going to New-York, until all the letters and papers, excepting the private papers of the ladies' husbands, should be examined by your Honour. The reason of which, from Colonel Tupper's own saying, appears to be, that your Honour considers me as an officer acting in a civil line, I suppose from a consciousness of the expiration of the period of service of General Scott's brigade, to which I was formerly attached. But I would beg leave to inform your Honour, that notwithstanding that fact, I do consider myself as belonging to the Army, independent of the Convention's appointment of me to the flag; but was I not, this appointment, I conceive, fully constitutes me a military character.

In consequence of my instructions from Convention, I have administered the oath to each of the ladies, and to Messrs. Wallace and Shearbrooke, therein contained, which is to the following purport: "That they had not, nor would take on board, or carry by the sloop (in which we came) or flag (lying off Ver Plank's Point) any letters or papers but what they would respectively submit to my inspection, nor any goods, effects, or money, but what belonged to their respective husbands or them." Besides which, the Committee of New-Windsor and myself have examined with the utmost care, lest there should be provisions (beyond what we conceived necessary for their subsistence on the passage) conveyed by the said sloop to New-York.

As to the letters, the most of them have been examined by a Committee of Convention, and returned to me; others have been since handed to me, of which I have examined the others I intended to complete this night. But that we might not be unnecessarily delayed, I have transmitted them all to your Honour. I must therefore, sir, in tenderness to the ladies and their children, of which there are eighteen or twenty, and in a small boat much incommoded, solicit your Honour's attention to the examining of them as speedily as may be convenient.

I am, with due respect, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

NICH'S FISH.

To the Hon. Major-General Heath.

Peek's Kill, &c., [24 December, 1776.]

Major Nicholas Fish having been appointed by the honourable Convention of the State of New-York to attend the families of the Rev. Mr. Inglis and others, within mentioned, to New-York, in a flag, and to solicit the removal of the families and effects of some of the subjects of this State from that place, I do hereby allow a flag for that purpose.

WM. HEATH, Major-General.

COLONEL HUNTINGTON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Clove, 23d December, 1776.

Dear General: Mr. De Peyster left Paramus last night at eleven o'clock; says that a boy of his acquaintance had been sent to Hackinsack on business, and was imprisoned by Major Tenpenny, at the New Bridge, on suspicion of his being a spy; that after being confined two hours, and sworn to secrecy, he was set at liberty. This boy was told by Tenpenny that he should be at Paramus this night. He was told by Mrs. Zabriski at the Bridge, that there were two thousand troops in and about Hackinsack. I am sending my list and baggage off to Haverstraw. Will it not be best to send some vessel from Peekskill to carry them up?

I am, with respect and esteem, your most obedient,

Jed. Huntington.

General Heath.

WILLIAM DOBBS TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Peekskill, December 23, 1776.

This is to certify the gentlemen of the honourable Convention, that at the evacuation of King's Bridge, and the soldiers were all gone into Fort Independence, that there lay there a pettiauger, unrigged, which I took and caused to be rigged and brought her past his Majesty's ships to this place, which craft I have since repaired, and yesterday I was called upon by one Boyd, and he demanded of me the receipt for her. I told him I would give him no receipt, but that I would write to the Convention concerning the craft; and I hope the honourable House will grant me said craft as my own property, as I have since understood that she then did belong to one Merrit, who is since gone to the Regulars. The gentlemen of the Convention well know the losses that I have met with by the King's ships. I have lost the quarter part of four pilot boats, which I would not at that time have taken six hundred pounds for, and I have never received the restitution of one farthing for them; and I shall rest the whole into your consideration.

So I remain, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

Wm. Dobbs.

To the honourable Convention of the State of New-York.

SAMUEL TUDER TO PETER R. LIVINGSTON.

Poughkeepsie, December 23, 1776.

Gentlemen: As we are informed you have a quantity of tar at Fishkill Landing, and we are much in want of some for Mr. De Grushe, to tar the rigging for the ships, should be glad you would let Mr. De Grushe, the bearer, have some. He will inform you what quantity he will want.

I am, with great respect, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

Sam'l Tuder.

To the Hon. Peter R. Livingston, President of the Convention at Fishkill.

JOHN FIELD TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

December 23, 1776.

I beg leave to inform your Honours that I happened at New-London, in the State of Connecticut, and at the request of the Committee, I assisted in bringing off the stock from Long-Island to the amount of £44 5*s*., lawful money, for which said Committee allowed; and that I am in great want of the same; and further, that my family is nigh the seat of war, and have been obliged to quit their habitations in the Jerseys, and are in distressed and needy circumstances; and I desire that your Honours would give an immediate answer. I must go to their relief as soon as possible.

So I remain your friend and humble servant,

John Field.

To the honourable Congress of the State of New-York.

BENJAMIN MARVIN TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

23d December, 1776.

Gentlemen: I having from the first of the unhappy controversy between Great Britain and the States of America, engaged in the service of my country, not from sinister views to advance my private interest, but purely for the good of my country, and to maintain the liberty of the same, think it but reasonable that I should be continued in the same, considering I have sacrificed my interest in the cause of my country, and but just escaped with my life and the lives of my family, leaving all to be destroyed by our unnatural enemies; and not being duly represented, I am, gentlemen, under the disagreeable necessity to represent my case to you myself. I served the last year a First Lieutenant in the First Company of the Third New-York Regiment, and this year in the same capacity in the First Company, in the Second New-York Regiment, and for what I know, have given good satisfaction both to officers and men. And if there is any person hath brought any thing against me to your honourable House, to wrong my character, I should be glad to know it, that I might defend it; and, on the contrary, if I am deserving such treatment, I shall calmly retire from the service, and leave it to those who are more deserving. I would therefore petition your honourable House to take my case into your wise consideration, and if in your wisdom you think proper to do any thing for me, it will be gratefully acknowledged by your Honours' most humble servant,

Benj'n Marvin.

To the honourable Congress at Fishkill.

AN ADDRESS OF THE CONVENTION OF THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE STATE OF NEW-YORK TO THEIR CONSTITUENTS.

At this most important period, when the freedom and happiness, or the slavery and misery, of the present and future generations of Americans, is to be determined on a solemn appeal to the Supreme Ruler of all events, to whom every individual must one day answer for the part he now acts, it becomes the duty of the Representatives of a free people to call their attention to this most serious subject, and the more so at a time when their enemies are industriously endeavouring to delude, intimidate, and seduce them by false suggestions, artful misrepresentations, and insidious promises of protection.

You and all men were created free, and authorized to establish civil government, for the preservation of your rights against oppression, and the security of that freedom which God hath given you, against the rapacious hand of tyranny and lawless power. It is, therefore, not only necessary to the well-being of society, but the duty of every man, to oppose and repel all those, by whatever name or title distinguished, who prostitute the powers of Government to destroy the happiness and freedom of the people over whom they may be appointed to rule.

Under the auspices and direction of Divine Providence, your forefathers removed to the wilds and wilderness of America. By their industry they made it a fruitful, and by their virtue a happy, country. And we should still have enjoyed the blessings of peace and plenty, if we had not forgotten the source from which those blessings flowed, and permitted our country to be contaminated by the many shameful vices which have prevailed among us.

It is a well known truth, that no virtuous people were ever oppressed; and it is also true that a scourge was never wanting for those of an opposite character. Even the Jews, those favourites of Heaven, met with the frowns, whenever they forgot the smiles, of their benevolent Creator. By tyrants of Egypt, of Babylon, of Syria, and of Rome, they were severely chastised. And those tyrants themselves, when they had executed the vengeance of Almighty God, their own crimes bursting on their own heads, received the rewards justly due to their violation of the sacred rights of mankind.

You were born equally free with the Jews, and have as good a right to be exempted from the arbitrary domination of Britain as they had from the invasions of Egypt, Babylon, Syria, or Rome. But they for their wickedness were permitted to be scourged by the latter, and we for our wickedness are scourged by tyrants, as cruel and implacable as those.

Our case, however, is peculiarly distinguished from theirs. Their enemies were strangers, unenlightened, and bound to them by no ties of gratitude or consanguinity. Our enemies, on the contrary, are themselves Christians. They are of a nation and people bound to us by the strongest ties—a people by whose sides we have fought and bled, whose power we have contributed to raise, who owe much of their wealth to our industry, and whose grandeur has been augmented by our exertions.

It is unnecessary to remind you that during the space of between one and two hundred years, every man sat under his own vine and his own fig-tree, and there was none to make him afraid. That the people of Britain never claimed a right to dispose of us, and every thing belonging to us, according to their will and pleasure, until the reign of the present King of that Island. And that to enforce this abominable claim they have invaded our country by sea and by land. From this extravagant and iniquitous claim, and from the unreasonable as well as cruel manner in which they would gain our submission, it seems as though Providence were determined to use them as instruments to punish the guilt of this country, and bring us back to a sense of duty to our Creator.

You may remember that to obtain redress of the many grievances to which the King and Parliament of Great Britain had subjected you, the most dutiful petitions were presented, not only by the several Assemblies, but by the Representatives of all America, in General Congress. And you cannot have forgot with what contempt they were neglected; nay, the humblest of all petitions, praying only to be heard, was answered by the sound of the trumpet and clashing of arms. This, however, is not the only occasion on which the hearts of Kings have been hardened; and in all probability it will add to the number of those instances in which their oppression, injustice, and hardness of heart, have worked their destruction.

Being bound by the strongest obligations to defend the inheritance which God hath given us, to Him we referred our cause, and opposed the assaults of our taskmasters, being determined rather to die free than live slaves, and entail bondage on our children.

By our vigorous efforts, and by the goodness of Divine Providence, those cruel invaders were driven from our country in the last campaign. We then flattered ourselves that the signal success of our arms, and the unanimity and spirit of our people, would have induced our foes to desist from the prosecution of their wicked designs, and disposed their hearts to peace. But peace we had not yet deserved. Exultation took place of thanksgiving, and we ascribed that to our own prowess which was only to be attributed to the great Guardian of the innocent.

The enemy with greater strength again invade us—invade us not less by their arts than their arms. They tell you, that if you submit you shall have protection; that their King breathes nothing but peace; that he will revise (not repeal) all his cruel acts and instructions, and will receive you into favour. But what are the terms on which you are promised peace? Have you heard of any, except absolute, unconditional obedience and servile submission? If his professions are honest—if he means not to cajole and deceive you—why are you not explicitly informed of the terms, and whether the Parliament mean to tax you hereafter at their will and pleasure? Upon this and the like points, these Military Commissioners of peace are silent; and, indeed, are not authorized to say a word, unless a power to grant pardons implies a power to adjust claims and secure privileges, or unless the bare possession of life, is the only privilege which Americans are to enjoy. For a power to grant pardon is the only one which their Parliament or Prince have thought proper to give them. And yet they speak of peace. But they hold daggers in their hands. They invite you to accept of blessings, and stain your habitations with blood. Their voice resembles the voice of Jacob, but their hands are like the hands of Esau.

If their Sovereign intends to repeal any of the acts we complain of, why are they not especially named? If he designs you shall be free, why does he not promise that the claim of his Parliament, to bind you in all cases whatsoever, shall be given up and relinquished? If a reasonable peace was intended, why did he not empower his Commissioners to treat with the Congress, or with Deputies from all the Assemblies; or why was not some other mode devised, in which America might be heard? Is it not highly ridiculous for them to pretend that they are authorized to treat of a peace between Britain and America, with every man they meet? Was such a treaty ever heard of before? Is such an instance to be met with in the history of mankind? No! The truth is, peace is not meant; and their specious pretences and proclamations, are calculated only to disunite and deceive.

If the King of Britain really desires peace, why did he order all your vessels to be seized and confiscated? Why did he most cruelly command that the men found on board such vessels, should be added to the crews of his ships of war, and compelled to fight against their own countrymen; to spill the blood of their neighbours and friends, nay of their fathers, their brothers and children? And all this before his pretended ambassadors of peace had arrived on our shores. Does any history, sacred or profane, record any thing more impious, more horrible, more execrably wicked, tyrannical or develish? If there be one single idea of peace in his mind, why does he order your cities to be burnt, your country desolated, your brethren to starve and languish and die in prisons? If any thing was intended besides destruction, devastation, and bloodshed, why are the mercenaries of Germany transported near four thousand miles, to plunder your houses, to ravish your wives and daughters, to strip your infant children, to expose whole families naked, miserable and forlorn, to want, to hunger, to inclement skies, and wretched deaths? If peace were not totally reprobated by him, why are those pusillanimous, deluded, servile wretches, among you, who, for present ease or impious bribes, would sell their liberty, their children, and their souls; who, like savages, worship every devil who promises not to hurt them, or obey any mandates, however cruel, for which they are paid;—how is it that these sordid, degenerate creatures, who bow the knee to this King, and daily offer incense at his shrine, should be denied the peace so repeatedly promised them? Why are they indiscriminately abused, robbed, and plundered, with their more deserving neighbours? But in this world, as in the other, it is right and just that the wicked should be punished by their seducers.

In a word, if peace was the desire of your enemies, and humanity their object, why do they thus trample under foot every right and every duty, human and divine? Why, like the demons of old, is their wrath to be expiated only by human sacrifices? Why do they excite the savages of the wilderness to murder our inhabitants, and exercise cruelties unheard of among civilized nations? No regard for religion or virtue remains among them. Your very churches bear witness of their impiety; your churches are used without hesitation as jails, as stables, and as houses of sport and theatrical exhibitions. What faith, what trust, what confidence, can you repose in these men, who are deaf to the call of humanity, dead to every sentiment of religion, and void of all regard for the temples of the Lord of Hosts?

And why all this desolation, bloodshed, and unparalleled cruelty? They tell you to reduce you to obedience. Obedience to what? To their sovereign will and pleasure! And what then? Why, then you shall be pardoned, because you consent to be slaves. And why should you be slaves now, having been freemen ever since this country was settled? Because, forsooth, the King and Parliament of an island three thousand miles off, choose that you should be hewers of wood and drawers of water for them. And is this the people whose proud domination you are taught to solicit? Is this the peace which some of you so ardently desire? For shame! for shame!

But you are told that their armies are numerous, their fleet strong, their soldiers valiant, their resources great; that you will be conquered; that victory ever attends their standard; and therefore that your opposition is vain—your resistance fruitless. What then? You can but be slaves at last, if you should think life worth holding on so base a tenure.

But who is it that gives victory? By whom is a nation exalted? Since what period hath the race been always to the swift and the battle to the strong? Can you be persuaded that the merciful King of kings hath surrendered His crown and sceptre to the merciless tyrant of Britain, and committed the affairs of this lower world to his guidance, control and direction? We learned otherwise from our fathers; and God himself hath told us, that strength and numbers avail not against Him. Seek, then, to be at peace with Him; solicit His alliance, and fear not the boasted strength and power of your foes.

You may be told that your forts have been taken, your country ravaged, and that your armies have retreated, and therefore that God is not with you. It is true that some forts have been taken, that our country hath been ravaged, and that our Maker is displeased with us. But it is also true that the King of Heaven is not like the King of Britain, implacable. If His assistance be sincerely implored, it will surely be obtained. If we turn from our sins, He will turn from His anger. Then will our arms be crowned with success, and the pride and power of our enemies, like the arrogance and pride of Nebuchadnezzar, will vanish away. Let us do our duty, and victory will be our reward. Let a general reformation of manners take place; let no more widows and orphans, compelled to fly from their peaceful abodes, complain that you make a market of their distress, and take cruel advantage of their necessities; when your country is invaded and cries aloud for your aid, fly not to some secure corner of a neighbouring State, and remain idle spectators of her distress, but share in her fate, and manfully support her cause; let universal charity, publick spirit, and private virtue, be inculcated, encouraged and practised; unite in preparing for a vigorous defence of your country, as if all depended on your own exertions; and when you have done these things, then rely upon the good Providence of Almighty God for success, in full confidence, that without His blessing all our efforts will evidently fail.

A people moving on these solid principles never have, and never will be, subjugated by any tyrant whatever. Cease, then, to desire the flesh-pots of Egypt, and remember their taskmasters and oppressions. No longer hesitate about rejecting all dependence on a King, who will rule you only with a rod of iron. Tell those who blame you for declaring yourselves independent, that you have done no more than what your late King had done for you. That he declared you to be out of his protection. That he absolved you from all allegiance. That he made war upon you, and instead of your King he became your enemy and destroyer. By his consent, by his own act, you became independent of his Crown. If you are wise you will always continue so. Freedom is now in your power. Value the heavenly gift. Remember, if you dare to neglect or despise it, you offer an insult to the Divine Bestower. Nor despair of keeping it. Despair and despondency mark a little mind, and indicate a groveling spirit. After the armies of Rome had been repeatedly defeated by Hannibal, that Imperial City was besieged by this brave and experienced General, at the head of a numerous and victorious army. But so far was her glorious citizens from being dismayed by the loss of so many battles, and of all their country, so confident in their own virtues and the protection of Heaven, that the very land on which the Carthagenians were encamped was sold at publick auction for more than the usual price. Those heroick citizens disdained to receive his protections or to regard his proclamations. They remembered that their ancestors had left them free,—ancestors who had bled in rescuing their country from the tyranny of Kings. They invoked the protection of the Supreme Being. They bravely defended their city with undaunted resolution; they repelled the enemy, and recovered their country. Blush, then, ye degenerate spirits, who give all over for lost, because your enemies have marched through three or four Counties in this and a neighbouring State,—ye who basely fly, to have the yoke of slavery fixed upon your necks, and to swear that you and your children after you shall be slaves forever! Such men deserve to be slaves, and are fit only for beasts of burden to the rest of mankind. Happy would it be for America if they were removed away, instead of continuing in this country, to people it with a race of animals who, from their form, must be classed among the human species, but possess none of those qualities which render man more respectable than the brutes.

There never yet was a war in which victory and success did not some times change sides. In the present, nothing has happened either singular or decisive. Inquire dispassionately, and be not deceived by those artful tales which emissaries from the enemy so industriously circulate.

A powerful and well-disciplined army, supported by a respectable fleet, invade this country. They are opposed by an army which, though numerous and brave, is quite undisciplined. Notwithstanding this manifest disparity, they have never thought it prudent to give us battle, though they have often had the fairest opportunities. True it is, that taking advantage of that critical moment when our forces are almost disbanded, they have penetrated into Jersey, and marched a considerable distance without being attacked. If any are alarmed at this circumstance, let them consider that we do not fight for a few acres of land, but for freedom—for the freedom and happiness of millions yet unborn. Would it not be highly imprudent to risk such important events upon the issue of a general battle, when it is certain Great Britain cannot long continue the war, and by protracting it, we cannot fail of success? The British Ministry, sensible of this truth, and convinced that the people of England are aware of it, have promised that the present campaign shall be the last. They are greatly and justly alarmed at their situation. A country drained of men and money, the difficulties of supplying fleets and armies at so great a distance, the danger of domestick insurrections, the probability that France will take advantage of their defenceless condition, the ruin of their commerce by our privateers,—these are circumstances at which the boldest are dismayed. They are convinced that the people will not remain long content in such a dangerous situation; hence it is that they press so hard to make this campaign decisive; and hence it is that we should endeavour to avoid it. Even suppose that Philadelphia, which many believed to be of such great importance, suppose it was taken or abandoned, the conquest of America will still be at a great distance. Millions, determined to be free, still remain to be subdued—millions who disdain to part with their liberties, their consciences, and the happiness of their posterity in future ages, for infamous protections and dishonourable pardons.

But amidst all the terrour and dismay which have taken hold upon some weak minds, let us consider the advantage under which we prosecute the present war. Our country supplies us with every commodity which is necessary for life or defence. Arms and ammunition are now abundantly manufactured in almost all the American States, and our armies will be abundantly supplied with all military stores. We have more fighting men in America than Britain can possibly send. Our trade is free, and every port of France and Spain affords protection to our ships. Other nations, invited by the advantages of the commerce, will doubtless soon follow their example; and experience must convince the most incredulous that the British Navy cannot exclude us from the sea. If their armies have invaded, ravaged, and plundered our dominions and our people, have we not successfully attacked them on their boasted empire of the ocean? Have not our privateers brought into our ports of America British property to the amount of more than fifteen hundred thousand pounds? And do we not daily receive the most valuable cargoes from foreign countries, in spite of those fleets whose colours have waved in triumph over the globe? The article of salt, about which some of you have been uneasy, will soon be fully supplied. The shores of America are washed by the ocean for more than two thousand miles. Works for manufacturing salt have been erected and proved successful, and many cargoes of it are expected, and have arrived, in the neighbouring States. Provisions of every kind abound among us. From our plenteous stores Great Britain hath heretofore supplied her necessities, though she now most wantonly and ungratefully abuses the kind hand which hath ministered to her wants and alleviated her distress. As to clothing, the rapid increase of our manufacturers, and the supplies we obtain from abroad, quiet all fears upon that subject. By the most authentick intelligence from Europe, we are informed that the people of France are ripe for a war with Britain, and will not omit the present opportunity of extending their commerce, and humbling their rival. Every State in Europe beheld with a jealous eye the growing power of the British empire, and the additional strength she daily received from this amazing Continent; for they could not but perceive that their own security was diminished in proportion as her power to injure them increased. Whence is it, then, that some persons pretend to assure you that France, Spain, and the other European States, are not disposed to favour you? The wise and virtuous of all nations have pronounced our cause to be just, and approved the manner in which our resistance hath been conducted.

Whoever, therefore, considers the natural strength and advantage of this country, the distance it is removed from Britain, the obvious policy of many European Powers, the great supplies of arms and ammunition cheerfully afforded us by the French and Spaniards, and the feeble and destitute condition of Britain,—that she is drained of men and of money, obliged to hire foreign mercenaries for the execution of her wicked purposes; in arrears to her troops for a twelvemonth's pay, which she cannot or will not discharge; her credit sunk; her trade ruined; her inhabitants divided; her King unpopular, and her Ministers execrated; that she is overwhelmed with a monstrous debt, cut off from the vast revenue heretofore obtained by taxes on American produce; her West-India Islands in a starving condition; her ships taken; her merchants involved in bankruptcy; her designs against us wicked, unjust, cruel, contrary to the laws of God and man, pursued with implacable, unrelenting vengeance, and in a manner barbarous and opposed to the usage of civilized nations;—whoever considers that we have humbly sought peace and been refused; that we have been denied even a hearing; all our petitions rejected; all our remonstrances disregarded; that we fight not for conquest but only for security; that our cause is the cause of God, of human nature and posterity;—whoever, we say, seriously considers these things, must entertain very improper ideas of the Divine justice to which we have appealed, and be very little acquainted with the course of human affairs, to harbour the smallest doubt of our being successful.

Remember the long and glorious struggle of the United Netherlands against the power of Spain, to which they had once been subjected. Their extent was small, their country poor, their people far from numerous, and unaccustomed to arms, and in the neighbourhood of their enemies. Spain, at that time the most powerful kingdom in Europe, her fleet formidable, her armies great, inured to war, and led by the best Generals of the age, and her Treasury overflowing with the wealth of Mexico and Peru—endeavoured to enslave them. They dutifully remonstrated against the design. Their petitions were treated with contempt, and fire and sword was carried into their country to compel submission. They nobly resolved to be free. They declared themselves to be independent States, and after an obstinate struggle, frustrated the wicked intentions of Spain.

Switzerland presents us with another instance of magnanimity. That country was oppressed by cruel tyrants, but the people refused to continue in bondage. With arms in their hands they expelled those tyrants, and left to their descendants the portion of freedom.

Even England, whose Genius now blushes for the degeneracy of her sons, hath afforded examples of opposition to tyranny which are worthy to be imitated by all nations. His sacred Majesty Charles the First, lost his head and his Crown by attempting to enslave his subjects; and his sacred Majesty James the Second, was for the same reason expelled the kingdom, with his whole family, and the Prince of Orange chosen King in his stead. The English were too wise to believe that the person of any tyrant could be sacred, and never suffered any man to wear the crown who attempted to exercise the powers of royalty to the destruction of the people from whom those powers were derived.

This practice is not only consistent with human reason, but perfectly consonant to the will and practice of God himself. You know that the Jews were under his peculiar direction, and you need not be informed of the many instances in which he took the crown from such of their Kings as refused to govern according to the laws of the Jews.

If, then, God hath given us freedom, are we responsible to him for that, as well as other talents? If it be our birthright, let us not sell it for a mess of pottage, nor suffer it to be torn from us by the hand of violence! If the means of defence are in our power and we do not make use of them, what excuse shall we make to our children and our Creator? These are questions of the deepest concern to us all. These are questions which materially affect our happiness, not only in this world but in the world to come. And surely, "if ever a test for the trial of spirits can be necessary, it is now. If ever those of liberty and faction ought to be distinguished from each other, it is now. If ever it is incumbent on the people to know truth and to follow it, it is now."

Rouse, therefore, brave Citizens! Do your duty like men! and be persuaded that Divine Providence will not permit this Western World to be involved in the horrours of slavery. Consider that, from the earliest ages of the world, Religion, Liberty, and Empire, have been bounding their course towards the setting sun. The Holy Gospels are yet to be preached to those western regions, and we have the highest reason to believe that the Almighty will not suffer Slavery and the Gospel to go hand in hand. It cannot, it will not be.

But if there be any among us dead to all sense of honour and love of their country; if deaf to all the calls of liberty, virtue, and religion; if forgetful of the magnanimity of their ancestors, and the happiness of their children; if neither the examples and success of other nations, the dictates of reason and of nature, or the great duties they owe to their God, themselves, and their posterity, have any effect upon them; if neither the injuries they have received, the prize they are contending for, the future blessings or curses of their children, the applause or reproach of all mankind, the approbation or displeasure of their Great Judge, or the happiness or misery consequent upon their conduct in this and a future state, can move them, then let them be assured that they deserve to be slaves, and are entitled to nothing but anguish and tribulation. Let them banish from their remembrance the reputation, the freedom and happiness, which they have inherited from their forefathers. Let them forget every duty, human and divine; remember not that they have children; and beware how they call to mind the justice of the Supreme Being. Let them go into captivity, like the idolatrous and disobedient Jews, and be a reproach and a by-word among the nations.

But we think better things of you. We believe, and are persuaded, that you will do your duty like men, and cheerfully refer your cause to the great and righteous Judge. If success crown your efforts, all the blessings of Freedom will be your reward. If you fail in the contest, you will be happy with God, and liberty in Heaven.

By the unanimous order of the Convention:

AB'M TEN BROECK, President.

Fishkill, December 23d, 1776.

COLONEL VAN SCHAICK TO COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENT.

Albany, December 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I enclose the Committee a list of the officers in the First Battalion who have declined the service, &c.

I take the liberty to recommend to the notice of the Committee, in the room of those who have declined: for Lieutenants, Nathaniel Henry, Guy Young, and Henry Defendorf; for Ensigns, Jonathan Brown, Bennet, Thomas Hicks, Jacob Ja. Klock.

Several of the above gentlemen I have furnished with money, and immediately sent them on the recruiting service, in order that this most necessary business might not be delayed any longer.

In a former letter I recommended Timothy Hughes and Francis Shaw. Those gentlemen have since been provided for in Colonel Livingston's regiment.

I am, with perfect esteem, the Committee's most humble servant,

G. V. SCHAICK.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Middletown, in Connecticut, 23d December, 1776.

SIR: I am now to acquaint you that on the 3d instant I received intelligence from New-London, by express, that ten large ships of the enemy were then standing into that harbour. Orders were issued for the Militia of the country immediately to march for the defence of that place, who accordingly proceeded in great numbers. By the 5th instant the enemy's fleet was increased to upwards of eighty sail, many of which came down the Sound by Hell-Gate, and others round Montauge Point. On the 6th instant they got under sail, steering eastward, and before night left the harbour, which released our Militia from any further fatigue and service at that place.

Soon after the fleet left New-London, I received information from Governour Cooke by express, the enemy were arrived at New-Port, and some of their fleet standing up the bay towards Providence, with a pressing request to lend them immediate aid by the assistance of our Militia; which was complied with, and the Militia from the eastern parts of this State marched to Providence. I am now informed that the troops from the State of Massachusetts, this, and Rhode-Island, assembled at and near Providence, amount to eight or ten thousand men.

The enemy have landed at New-Port. Have not been able to ascertain their numbers. The accounts vary from four to eight thousand, including invalids.

In this situation of affairs received a request from the Assembly of Rhode-Island, to appoint a Committee from this State, to meet at Providence, with Committees from that State, Massachusetts, and New-Hampshire, to consult the expediency of raising an army for their more immediate defence. The present exigency was such we could not but comply with the request for immediate defence against the common enemy. Have accordingly appointed a Committee, to consult with the other States the necessary measures to be taken for our immediate safety, until such time as the Continental Congress can make such regulations for our defence against this part of the common enemy as they may judge necessary. A copy of their commissions you have herewith transmitted. I presume that under these circumstances, when the least delay in preparation for defence might be attended with fatal consequences, immediate self-preservation will not only excuse the procedure, but obtain the approbation of Congress thereon. It is necessary the certificates for the loan office should be hastened to Treasurer Lawrence, as soon as possible, and may be of special service to forward a suitable number of tickets in the State Lottery.

Permit me to remind you of the necessity of supplying the corps under General Spencer with a sufficient quantity of money, to pay off the premium to the soldiers who may inlist in the Continental Army, as I am informed he is wholly destitute. It is possible some money might be obtained for that purpose from the Loan Office in this State, in a short time after the necessary papers are received; but this mode may by no means be relied on with sufficient certainty to prevent the sending forward what sums may be obtained from your Treasurer.

I am, with great truth and regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JON. TRUMBULL.

President Hancock.

At a General Assembly of the Governour and Company of the State of Connecticut, in New-England, in America, holden by adjournment at Middletown, in said State, upon the 18th day of December, Anno Domini 1776:

Whereas, a large body of troops of the British Army, defended by a strong fleet, have taken possession of the Island of Rhode-Island, and threaten an invasion of some of the adjoining States of New-England: And whereas, the State of Massachusetts-Bay and the State of Rhode-Island have proposed that Committees from the States of New-England meet at Providence, in the State of Rhode-Island, as soon as may be, to consult for their immediate defence and safety: And whereas, from the operations of war in New-York and New-Jersey, a free communication with the Congress is in some measure interrupted, and the General and Army of the United States are employed in their defence against the common enemy:

Resolved by this Assembly, That Eliphalet Dyer, Richard Law, Nathaniel Wales, Jun., and Titus Hosmer, Esquires, be, and are appointed, a Committee on behalf of this State, to meet the Committees of the other States of New-England, at Providence, in the State of Rhode-Island, or at any other place where they may convene, on the 23d day of December, instant, or as soon as may be, and consult with them of the expedience of raising and appointing an Army for the more immediate defence of the New-England States against the threatened invasion, as well as for the more general defence in the common cause, and of such regulations as may be necessary to support the credit of our currencies to prevent oppressing the soldiery and inhabitants by extravagant prices, and in general of every measure to expedite the raising and appointing an army, or necessary for common defence; and to make report to this Assembly, or in the recess thereof, to his Honour the Governour and Council of Safety, of whatever they may judge fit to be done, for approbation; and that suitable measures may be pursued thereon, until the whole subject-matter can be laid before the honourable Congress of the United States of America, measures taken, and directions given by them thereon.

A true copy of record:

Examined by GEORGE WYLLYS, Secretary.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Middletown, December 23d, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with your favour of the 12th instant. It gives me great satisfaction to find that the plan we have adopted for supplying the new Army with necessaries meets with your approbation.

I fully agree with you in sentiment as to the importance of having a sufficient regular force in the spring. Am informed the inlistments for that purpose in the corps under General Spencer is in danger of being retarded for want of money to advance the premium for inlisting, of which he is wholly destitute in his present department. Hope the speediest measures may be taken to supply this defect, and have mentioned the subject to Congress in my letter of this date, as I fear the consequences of a delay.

Your Excellency is doubtless informed that a part of the enemy's fleet and army are gone to the eastward. They lay before New-London several days, which occasioned many of our Militia to assemble at that town. The enemy have since landed and taken possession of Rhode-Island. Their fleet consists of upwards of eighty sail. The account of the number of their troops varies from four to eight thousand, including invalids. The Militia that are assembled at and near Providence, from the neighbouring States, are said to be about ten thousand. The future movements of the enemy on this side the North River cannot be foreknown; however, I shall endeavour to comply with your proposal in the disposition of the four regiments to be raised till the 15th March.

Our Assembly is now sitting, and there appears some probability that a considerable number of troops from this State will set forward for your assistance, but as the measures proposed for that purpose are in embryo, I cannot give any certain encouragement; but should the measures succeed, will give you the earliest intelligence, that suitable provisions may be made for them.

I am, with great truth and sincerity, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

To his Excellency George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United States of America, at Head-Quarters.

PETITION OF ISAAC CORSA.

To the Honourable JONATHAN TRUMBULL, Esq., Governour and Commander-in-Chief of the State of CONNECTICUT.

The Petition of ISAAC CORSA, of the City of NEW-YORK, humbly sheweth:

That your Honour's petitioner has been informed that the reason of his being refused leave to return to his family was owing to his behaviour on the night of the 30th ultimo. He begs leave to represent to your Honour, that he did not insult the civil authority or the guard in any shape, and refers to those gentlemen who were on duty that night for the truth of his assertion. Mr. Walton and your petitioner were set at liberty at the same moment, upon declaring that the guard had only done their duty in stopping them at that hour. Your Honour's petitioner, during the whole time of his confinement, has endeavoured to avoid giving even a shadow of offence. Had he acted otherwise, he must have been very ungrateful, having experienced on every occasion your Honour's indulgence and lenity, as well as that of the civil authority. Your petitioner, therefore, humbly hopes your Honour will indulge him with liberty of visiting his family, (which is in a most disagreeable situation,) under the same restrictions as the rest of the prisoners.

And your petitioner will ever pray. ISAAC CORSA.

PAROLE OF ISAAC CORSA AND OTHERS.

Whereas we, the subscribers, of the City and Province of New-York, have for some time past resided at Middletown, in the State of Connecticut, being apprehended and sent thither by his Excellency General Washington, as persons suspected of disaffection to the United States of America; and whereas, upon our application, his Honour Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of said State of Connecticut, hath permitted us to return to our families in the Province of New-York, and reside there until otherwise ordered: We do hereby pledge our faith and word of honour to said Governour Trumbull, that we will neither bear arms, nor excite or encourage others to bear arms against this or any of the United States of America, and that we will not say or do any thing in prejudice of the interest or measures of this or any of the said United States of America; that we will give no intelligence to the enemies of said States, of any of the councils, operations of war, or other the transactions of this or any of said States; and that we will return to any place in this State when required by his Honour Governour Trumbull, the General Assembly of Connecticut, or his Excellency the General of the Armies of the said United States for the time being.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands, this 26th day of December, 1776.

PAROLE OF JOHN MUNRO.

Whereas I, John Munro, of Cambridge District, in the County of Albany, and State of New-York, Esq., have for some time past resided at East-Haddom, in the State of Connecticut, being apprehended and sent thither by the General Committee for the City and County of Albany; and whereas, upon my application, his Honour Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of said State of Connecticut, hath permitted me to return to my family in Cambridge aforesaid, and reside there till the first day of March next: I do hereby pledge my faith, word, and honour, to said Governour Trumbull, that I will neither bear arms, nor excite or encourage others to bear arms, against this or any of the United States of America, and that I will not do or say any thing in prejudice of the interest or measures of this or any of said United States; that I will give no intelligence to the enemies of said States of any of the counsels, operations of war, or other the transactions of this or any of said States; and that I will return to any place in this State after the first of March aforesaid, which his said Honour Governour Trumbull may be pleased to direct for my confinement or residence.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, this 23d day of December, A. D. 1776.

JOHN MUNRO.

J. N. VARNUM TO GENERAL LEE.

Providence, 23d December, 1776.

SIR: I have but one moment to inform you that the enemy, between five and six thousand men, are in possession of Rhode-Island. Their menaces are directed against Providence; but as the New-England States are forming a plan for its effectual security, the enemy must, I think, desist from their plan.

The immense prize-ship has just arrived at New-Bedford, which occasions my immediate departure into that quarter, to prevent any manœuvres of General Clinton to retake it. This makes it impossible for me to give you a full account.

The State have honoured me with the command of their troops.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

J. N. VARNUM.

To General Lee.

GENERAL LINCOLN TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Providence, December 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have now certain intelligence that the ship with clothing, taken by the Alfred, is arrived at Bedford. Some troops will be forwarded from Howland's Ferry as a guard, and to aid in unloading her. Her cargo is of so much importance to the United States, and the loss of it so great a disappointment to our enemies, that it is the opinion of some here that they will run every hazard yet to take possession of her. As the Militia from the County of Plymouth have been permitted to return home, is not this valuable ship an object so worthy our attention as to make it expedient for a part of them once more, for a few days, to go into camp? and will it not be necessary to give orders to some wise, prudent, and expeditious officers, to impress all the teams in the neighbourhood of Bedford, if they cannot otherwise be procured, to assist in removing the cargo to some inland town? This State applied to me to impress teams in our State for this purpose; I declined, as well from an aversion I have that the military should ever invade the province of the civil authority, as from knowing that it was justly detested in the State of the Massachusetts, as being in every respect unsafe and impolitick. I satisfied the Board by informing them what had been the mode in our State, and yet I would write to the Council on the matter, which, I hope, will apologize for me, if any should think I have departed from my line in the foregoing observations.

I most ardently wish for the advice of the General Court. I am instructed to give aid to this State, or to march the troops towards York, as the general service may require. I am at a loss to know, under the present state of affairs, what will best promote the general good.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

B. LINCOLN.

GENERAL GODFREY TO MASSACHUSETTS BOARD OF WAR.

Tiverton, in the State of Rhode-Island, December 23, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 17th is come to hand, wherein I am informed of your care in ordering provisions and warlike stores for the supply of the Massachusetts forces now near the State of Rhode-Island. The latter has been distributed by Major Thompson, as per his receipts received. The former, I am informed, is at Providence, which is distant from my encampment. As to the number of Militia round Rhode-Island, belonging to this State, I suppose about one thousand, as I cannot receive a just return. The report now prevailing is, the enemy in Newport consists of four or five thousand, chiefly Hessians, and now employed in carting straw on board their vessels and taking accounts of the sugars upon the island, for what purpose is uncertain. The embarrassment for a dismission of the Militia is very great. Hope I shall soon receive orders for that purpose.

In great haste, I am your Honour's most humble servant,

GEORGE GODFREY.

To Samuel Phips Savage, Esq., President Board of War.

GENERAL WARD TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 24th February: Referred to the Board of War.]

Boston, December 23, 1776.

SIR: Having been informed the Army were in distress for want of clothing, and there being a quantity on board a prize lately brought into this port by Captains Skimmer and Tucker, in the service of the United States, I have forwarded to the Army at or near New-York the several articles contained in the enclosed invoice. I should have had them appraised before they were forwarded, but found they could not be without the State's suffering thereby; therefore they were forwarded to the Quartermaster-General, with a desire that he would have them appraised before they were made use of, which I hope will be agreeable to Congress.

Mr. Faneuil will deliver this letter to you. He is a French gentleman, and the author of the plan of a regiment, which was forwarded to Congress by the General Assembly of this State some time since; and I beg leave to introduce him to you and the honourable Congress.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Congress.

MASSACHUSETTS BOARD OF WAR TO COMMISSARY NEWMAN.

War Office, Boston, December 23d, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of 21st just now came to hand. Agreeable to your request, the Board will as soon as possible appoint a Commissary, until which you will pursue the business in the best manner in your power.

By order of the Board.

Mr. Henry Newman.

MASSACHUSETTS BOARD OF WAR TO SAMUEL PURVIANCE.

War Office, Boston, December 23d, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Board of War for the State of Massachusetts-Bay, having it in command, among other things, to procure a quantity of flour and iron, have taken the liberty to enclose you invoice and bill lading of six hogsheads of sugar and four hogsheads of rum, which wish safe to your hands. You will dispose of the rum and sugar for the most you can obtain, and despatch the schooner back with a full load of common flour, with the addition of four tons of pig iron and two tons of bar iron.

This vessel, the Board propose shall be followed by several others under the like address, probably one or more of them large vessels, for Europe, not doubting, from your well-known established character, that you will exert yourselves to give them all possible despatch.

I am, gentlemen, by order of the Board, your most humble servant,

S. P. SAVAGE, Pres't p. t.

Messrs. Samuel and Robert Purviance, Baltimore.

---

JOSEPH DIMUIK TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Dated at Falmouth, December ye 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: You may remember that you gave orders for raising two companies, to be stationed on Nashaun. The Captains have both been with me since I returned, and say they cannot inlist any men, by reason of the wages being so low. I have been endeavouring to forward the matter, but find that to be the universal complaint. If your Honours are pleased to give any further orders about the matter, I shall endeavour to conduct agreeable thereto.

I am yours to serve,

JOSEPH DIMUIK.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the Massachusetts-Bay.

"PERSEVERANCE" ON THE PROBABILITY OF SUCCEEDING IN THE WAR.

I have been surprised that, among such a number of declamatory pieces as have appeared in the publick papers on the justice of the war, and the barbarity of our enemies, there has been a total silence on the probability of succeeding in it. The right of taking up arms—the wickedness of the Ministry—reflections on the Tories, and the like, have become common-place subjects, too trite even to inflame the passions of the vulgar. I would wish, if we have any able pens left, that they would drop these exhausted themes, and instead of them examine the operations of the war.

It is to be hoped, for the honour of the country, that no friend to its liberties thinks of submitting; though some may be discouraged at General Howe's late successes. Such may dismiss their fears when they consider and compare the situation and advantages of the two armies. The British forces amounting to forty-four regular regiments, (with near eighteen thousand foreign troops,) upwards of thirty thousand of which are said to be under General Howe. General Washington's army are supposed rather to have exceeded that number, though not much, through the whole campaign, consisting, for the most part, of new-raised, undisciplined Militia.

A large body of the troops were posted on the Jersey side, another in the city of New-York, and a third on Long-Island. The shipping, by passing up the North River, interrupted the communication between the Jersey shore and York, and made movements to obstruct the passage over to Long-Island. Thus our Army became divided into three separate bodies, each of which were in danger of being obliged to oppose the whole force of the enemy, though but one third as numerous. General Howe had no occasion to divide his forces—had no rivers nor shores to guard; accordingly he bent his whole force upon Long-Island. Had General Washington reinforced the Army there to a number sufficient to withstand them, York and the Jersey shore must have been nearly evacuated. This would have answered all the purposes of the enemy, as York, and not Long-Island, was their object. Or had a general action taken place upon the Island, a defeat would have been ruinous, past redemption, as there was no room for our retreat; and a victory could have been of little consequence to us, as their shipping would have protected them from pursuit.

The motions of the Navy plainly evinced their design of cutting off the supplies and retreat of our Army. Under these circumstances, envy itself must confess that General Washington, in evacuating Long-Island, was directed by a consummate prudence; unwilling to risk all on the event of a single action.

The evacuation of York was a natural and necessary consequence, being commanded by Long-Island. The action on the Island was by no means general, but only of the advanced guard of our Army against great odds. From this skirmish may be gathered the most convincing indications of the natural bravery of our men, and the necessity of severe discipline. Neither York nor Long-Island are of any consequence in a military view. Even the provisions of the latter were mostly bought and carried off before its evacuation. The remainder is not much more than sufficient for the support of the inhabitants, which General Howe is too politick to deprive them of. Their subsequent acquisitions are of still less consequence, and plainly the result of General Washington's defensive system of war. It is said the stores of Fort Washington were chiefly removed before it was taken; and we have plenty of prisoners to exchange for the men.

In our condition, a defensive war is more prudent than an offensive one. Their army must waste away every campaign, by sickness, by skirmishes, through fatigue and hardship, and by the badness and scarcity of provisions. They can neither be recruited nor provided but from a great distance, and at an immense cost. Their whole hope of success depends upon frequent, signal, and decisive victories, which they have hoped to gain before our Army is disciplined. The expense of feeding and paying great fleets and armies at such a distance is too enormous for any nation upon earth to bear for a great while. Add to this the exhausted state of their revenue, which greatly depended on the American trade, now wholly stopped, and we may conclude, that their hope of conquest depends upon their speed. Our army is maintained at one fifth part the expense of theirs. The single article of transport hire would maintain it. It is said ninety thousand tons of shipping are employed in their service constantly, at thirteen shillings and four pence a ton per month. I am persuaded our resources for war are likely to hold out longer than theirs. Of men and provisions we have a plenty. Our warlike stores increase every day. Cannon we can cast at pleasure, and powder we manufacture faster than we consume it. The whole expense of the war is centered among ourselves, not contracted with foreigners, like the debt of Britain.

The stoppage of our trade stops our luxuries, and makes new manufactures necessary and practicable. Our armed vessels bring in valuable cargoes constantly, by which the Continent is enriched to an amazing amount; and that it is probable we are richer than we were in the beginning of the war.

With these inexhaustible and increasing resources, why should we be discouraged? When our soldiers are inlisted for the war, discipline must daily increase, and they will doubtless soon equal the regular troops. Our army can easily be recruited after a defeat, while our enemies must cross the Atlantick to repair any misfortune. In every action, they have undoubtedly lost the most men, which is owing to the indisputable superiority of our fire, which, though made with less regularity is directed with a better aim than theirs.

The world must have a poor idea of our spirit, if we suffer it to fall on this first call for its exertion. Have we felt a tenth part of the hardships the States of Holland suffered? Or does our case look half so difficult? They were weak, divided, and near their enemy, and indeed without any of the advantages we possess, who are numerous, united, and at a distance from our foes.

After a succession of splendid victories obtained over France by the Duke of Marlborough, in each of which more men were slain than in the whole of this war, still that kingdom made a formidable resistance, and procured an honourable peace. States are not conquered by victories, but by the less noted operation of selfishness and dissension.

Never, in the annals of history, has the persevering courage of an united people been conquered.

From these reasons, I will venture to advance it as a prophetick maxim, that America will never be conquered by any other foes than her own want of perseverance, spirit, and virtue.

PERSEVERANCE.

SAMUEL CHASE TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

Annapolis, December 24, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I thank you for your letter of the 12th November, which I received a few days before the Congress left Philadelphia. I shall with pleasure continue our former correspondence, and wish it was in my power to communicate to you any thing worthy of your notice. Our intelligence from our Army will be sooner known to you than to Congress, and I wish you could drop me a line to gratify my anxiety and to stop false reports.

I perfectly agree with you as to the impropriety of our military system. The several States will forever be influenced by local attachments. I am convinced the nomination to office will, in many instances, be very injudicious. If we expect to succeed in the present war, we must change our mode of conduct. The business of the Congress must be placed in different hands. Distinct and precise departments ought to be established. A gentleman of the military must be of the Board of War.

Our advices from Paris are flattering. I hope America will never submit to the tyrant of Britain. I declare, as an individual, I would rather become a subject of France; but I am afraid all my countrymen are not of my stubborn temper. The sullen, unrelenting monarch of Britain should never lord it over me. I despise, I hate, and wish to destroy him and all such tyrants. I forbear to add. I feel my indignation to rise. Farewell.

Your affectionate and obedient servant,

SAM'L CHASE.

The Hon. John Sullivan, Esq., Major-General of the Continental Army.

SAMUEL CHASE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Strawberry Mount, December 24th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I believe the account now delivered you is just. Mr. Stone ordered the clothes for Captain Watkins's company, and I should have paid the debt if I had been furnished with the cash.

Your obedient servant, S. CHASE.

The honourable the Council of Safety.

THOMAS JOHNSON, JUN., TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Frederick-Town, 24th December, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I enclose you a resignation of Mr. Azel Waters, as Quartermaster in Colonel James Johnson's battalion. Mr. Richard Butler, whom I think a very good man, is desired to be commissioned in his stead. You have, too, a letter and its enclosure, I received this afternoon from Colonels Bruce and Blair. I hope the returns you have before you will supply the omission of some of the General's hands; if not, I really do not know what can be done, unless you can trust the Committee or me to fill up the hands of such as you may be at a loss for. I shall write to Colonel Bruce, informing him of the omission, and desiring him to write to you; but to prevent delay, I had much rather receive the commissions, if they can issue.

I had no suspicion that the Militia commissions in this and Washington County were in such disorder. This morning Captain Brosslur, of the new battalion, came to town on purpose to tell me that none of the officers of his company, nor, as he believed, of any other company of that battalion, had yet received a commission. I went to the minutes of the Committee, and on a long search, could only find five companies had been returned. I shall enclose in this a certificate as to them, for fear if any return was ever made to the Council, which I doubt, it may have been mislaid. I very much wish I could get up commissions for all the gentlemen who are entitled to them.

I imagined from what passed in the Committee last night, they would have sent off an express this morning to have known for a certainty whether the Militia could have had any supply of blankets, &c., from the Council of Safety; but this morning, on my several friends mentioning it, the gentlemen seemed disinclined to it, presuming you would not furnish them. They were never wanted more than by those who now offer to turn out, and I cannot forbear repeating my former request, that if you possibly can, you will forward shoes, stockings, and blankets, especially the latter, to Taney-Town, or this place. I understand part of our arms were left at Philadelphia, to be removed some distance from thence. Will you be pleased to send orders for the delivery of them to our people?

The Committee, as I wrote you, resolved the Militia ought generally to march, and the humour seems to be that all ought to march. It will, if any thing general, leave the country rather too naked. I should have liked better that about one half were to march, but I do not know that it was possible to contrive it so.

I have hired the bearer on purpose to carry this, and bring your answer. I wish him not to be detained.

I am, sirs, your most obedient servant,

TH. JOHNSON, JUN.

The honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

25th.—Colonel Beatty's battalion met to-day. They march on Saturday. B. Johnson's battalion also met to-day. They march, I believe, on Monday. I enclose you a list for commissions in James Johnson's battalion. Please also to send a commission for Carleton Tannyhill, in the room of , who has not lately attended his company; nor do I believe his company would allow him. This company is in Baker Johnson's battalion. I believe, if you think it proper, the Militia of this County will be pretty generally pleased at going under me. Therefore, unless the Militia from any of the other Counties will be much dissatisfied, I think you had better give me orders.

Your obedient, &c., T. J.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Baltimore, 24th December, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: Your letter of the 9th instant, conveying a resolve of this date, being by some unlucky accident delayed, and not coming to hand till ten days after, on the first meeting of Committee on yesterday it was laid before them, and they have deputed us to inform you that they are not vested with any authority over the Militia, and consequently cannot assume the power of ordering them into service, the Council of Safety only being possessed of that power. The Committee of Baltimore are always ready and willing to render the honourable Congress any service within the circle of their jurisdiction, which is indeed very limited.

The present emergency of removing the publick stores to this town, and the necessity of an immediate guard, being represented to Captain Nath'l Smith and Captain Furnival, of the Artillery companies of this State, and Captain Cox, of the Militia, they have readily undertaken to give every assistance in their power; and Captain Smith, as commanding officer, has regulated the guard accordingly at the publick stores, the treasury, the gaol, and over the Jersey prisoners; but it being too fatiguing to the soldiers to continue such hard service, when their other duty requires their attention, we have applied to the commanding officer of our Militia to supply the necessary guards, agreeable to your requisition of yesterday, which he has very readily consented to do for the present. But we beg leave to represent to you, that as the guard is numerous and our Militia companies in town very thin, it is attended with peculiar inconveniences, as it takes off many tradesmen from their occupations at a time when the publick are wanting their work, and therefore, the sooner a proper military guard can be got it will give more satisfaction, as well as be much less expensive. Our Committee have been informed by Mr. Benjamin Griffith, that the room in the gaol for the reception of the prisoners is now repaired, and made comfortable; that he has procured provisions and fire-wood, but that blankets cannot be obtained, and therefore hope the honourable Congress will furnish them from the publick stores. The Committee are looking for proper houses to accommodate the prisoners, if they can be procured that are sufficient, which they much doubt. They have also appointed Mr. John Griffith to the care of the Hospital, and request that a sum of money may be put in his hands for that purpose.

We are, with great respect, honourable sir, your most obedient servant,

William Lux, And. Buchanan,
Samuel Purviance, Jun., Jno. Smith.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Congress.

WILLIAM WHIPPLE TO JOHN LANGDON.

Baltimore, 24th December, 1776.

My dear Sir: My last from Philadelphia I think was a day or two before Congress adjourned from that place, which was the 11th instant. They met here the 20th, and are now doing business with spirit. The near approach of the enemy to that city struck such a panick in all orders of people there, except Tories, (of which you know there are not a small number,) that the contagion seized the nerves of some members of C——, which caused a removal to this place, which I assure you was much against my inclination; however, I hope it's all for the best. The main body of the enemy advanced as far as Trenton, and a party of five hundred to one thousand visited Burlington. Whether any of them remain at the last-mentioned place, we have not had any late accounts; but by the last account they remained at Trenton, and at some places farther up the river. Our Army, by the loss at Fort Washington and the expiration of inlistments, were reduced to a handful, by no means sufficient to make a stand against the enemy before they reached the Delaware. General Washington was there joined by some Militia from Philadelphia. His Army is daily increased by Militia, besides he has lately been joined by the division lately commanded by General Lee, also by a body of troops from Ticonderoga, under command of General Gates; so that they are now pretty strong, and I think (if they have got rid of the panick that seized them at the time they lost Fort Washington) they may still give a good account of Howe's Army, and be amply revenged for the brutal cruelties, and worse than savage ravages, committed by those infernal instruments of tyranny. For the consolation of the Tories, these barbarians reek their vengeance indiscriminately on Whig and Tory. Notwithstanding all this, some are so infatuated as to go and sue for pardon, among which are three of the Allens, viz: Andrew, John, and William. Thus, as far as my hand will permit me, I have given you a state of the Army in this quarter.

I should be very happy if I could hear the levies for the new Army were completed in the Eastern States. I expect there will be a still further requisition. It is absolutely necessary that we should have a very formidable Army in the field immediately. I hope every friend of America in the several States will forward this business with every possible exertion.

The accounts from France, which are down to October, are very favourable. I wish, for the consolation of my friends, I was at liberty to communicate them, but circumstances will not admit of it; but I can say thus much, in the words of a correspondent, "A general war in Europe seems unavoidable." A vessel is arrived at Philadelphia with about one thousand stand of arms, a considerable parcel of blankets and other woolens, and other valuable articles.

We have not had a Marine Board since we arrived here, nor have I been able to get the dimensions of the ship that is to be built in N. H., but I hope the business of collecting timber, &c., is going on. So soon as the Committee meets, I intend to procure orders for two or three small vessels, say of sixty or eighty tons, to be sent here for iron; they can take in iron sufficient to ballast them, and fill up with flour. I am in no doubt of obtaining this order, therefore wish you would procure those vessels immediately. Many articles may be sent here that would pay a good freight, of which I shall furnish you with a list in my next. Iron and flour may be had here much cheaper than at Philadelphia.

I am, with every sentiment of esteem, your most obedient servant,

Wm. Whipple.

PETITION FROM THOMAS SLATER.

[Read December 26, 1776.]

Baltimore, December 24, 1776.

Honourable Gentlemen: Your petitioner was taken in Delaware river, in May last, by Captain Alexander, in the Continental armed schooner Wasp, and confined in Philadelphia State-prison till removed to this town; which I would now take the liberty to beg that your Honours would grant me the indulgence of a parole. If admitted, I will strictly comply with, and I flatter myself that I can give security for my performance if required. This shall be esteemed as a particular favour by your most obedient, humble servant,

Thos. Slater.

To the honourable Continental Congress.

DONALD M'LEOD AND OTHERS, PRISONERS, TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read December 26th, 1776.]

From the Jail of Baltimore, December 24th, 1776.

Gentlemen: We are sensible of the obligation your Carolina prisoners are under, by your passing a late resolve in their favour, in consequence of which they are to be supplied with the necessaries of life and to be removed to a more comfortable habitation; and being of the number of said prisoners, we beg leave to offer you our hearty thanks for your good and humane intentions; but being on a different footing with the other prisoners from North-Carolina, we think it our duty to inform you that we are appointed officers in the King's Regular Army, consequently cannot come under any restrictions or engagements but such as are usual among people in that character. We, therefore, expect a parole on the same terms that has been granted by you to others of the King's officers, and a chance of exchange for officers of the same rank, which we doubt not will be sent for us if applied for. In your adherence to justice, we have hopes that so reasonable a request will be granted.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble servants,

Don'd McLeod,
Alex'r McLeod,
Kenneth McDonald.

To the President and other Members of the honourable Continental Congress in Baltimore.

ROBERT MORRIS TO DANIEL OF ST. THOMAS JENIFER.

Philadelphia, December 24th, 1776.

Sir: I received two or three weeks past your favour respecting the obligation given by Mr. Van Bibber and Mr. Harrison, to a Captain Prole, (I think his name is, for my papers are out of town and your letter with them,) and both before and after the receipt of that letter I took much pains to persuade him to receive the money; but this he positively refused to do. He only sought here after an additional security, as he had the option of demanding payment here or in the West-Indies.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

Robt. Morris.

To Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq., President of the Council of Safety, Maryland.

ADDRESS OF PENNSYLVANIA ASSEMBLY.

In Assembly, December 24, 1776.

Resolved, That the following Address to the Inhabitants of Pennsylvania, be forthwith printed, and sent to the several Counties of this State:

FRIENDS AND COUNTRYMEN: It is much easier for you to conceive, than for us to describe, the evils consequent on the invasion of a country by a rapacious and plundering soldiery. Such is now the situation of the neighbouring State of New-Jersey, and such soon will be ours, unless the enemy, who have taken advantage of the accidental weakness of our Army to make a winter campaign, are repelled by the strongest and most immediate exertions.

Every species of ravage and calamity have already marked the footsteps of our enemy, and they are now within a few miles of your Metropolis, waiting to cross the Delaware, to glut their inordinate lust of rapine and desolation, in the plunder of that rich and populous city. The most insensible cannot but perceive the shock our common cause must suffer, if this unfortunate event should take place. Every one must be awake to the misery that must in this case attend every individual of this country. The love of ease, we hope, cannot so far prevail on you as to keep you from the field at this critical and alarming time. We speak to a people that a few months ago would with eagerness have flown to arms at the first appearance of their country's danger. We know the value you have ever set on liberty, that best gift of God; with the maintenance of liberty is now connected your personal happiness, and every dear and valuable blessing—the chastity of the wives of your bosom, your daughters, which else may be violated by a brutal soldiery. But it is not a temporary evil only that is to be suffered should our enemy prevail: the power of "binding us in all cases whatsoever," claimed by a British Parliament, is to reach your posterity, and to rivet chains upon them forever. You once seemed sensible of this, and were determined to die rather than submit. The same grounds of dispute remain between Great Britain and us; the same spirit and determination should also still remain.

We are not insensible to the fatigues and hardships of those who engage in a winter's campaign, but we hope and believe this call on the Militia will be the last; the Continental Army will shortly be more formidable than ever, and, as once before, will again, by God's blessing, give a favourable turn to our affairs; but if a fatal necessity should again require your exertions, it is now, and will be, the business of your Representatives in this House to fix, as soon as possible, the Military establishment of the State upon such just and equitable principles as will make the common duty of defence a common and equal burthen to all its inhabitants.

Extract from the Minutes.

JOSIAH CRAWFORD, Clerk pro tem.

RICHARD DALLAM TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-Town, December 24th, 1776.

SIR: The time of the Flying-Camp will be up in a few days, for which department I was at first particularly appointed. As I expect they will immediately go off for Philadelphia and apply for their pay to the Treasurer, I think it necessary I should be there to settle their accounts, as sums of money have been paid on account to many of the officers and men. I think it my duty to mention this to your Excellency, because those that were discharged on first December applied to Congress for payment, and received orders on the Paymaster there, although they had received large sums of money before, which is like to cause a confusion in our accounts that we shall not easily settle. I have on hand one hundred and sixty thousand dollars. As about fifty thousand will do for my department, if your Excellency thinks proper I should go to Philadelphia, I can leave the remainder with Colonel Palfrey, the Paymaster-General.

I am, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

RICHARD DALLAM,
Deputy Paymaster-General.

To his Excellency General Washington, at Head-Quarters.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Camp, above Trenton-Falls, December 24, 1776.

SIR: That I should dwell upon the subject of our distresses, cannot be more disagreeable to Congress than it is painful to myself. The alarming situation to which our affairs are reduced, impels me to the measure. Inquiry and investigation, which in most cases serve to develope and point out a remedy, in ours present more and greater difficulties. Till of late, I was led to hope, from report, that no inconsiderable part of the troops composing the regiments that were with General Lee, and those from Ticonderoga under General Gates, had inlisted again. This intelligence, I confess, gave me reason to expect that I should have, at the expiration of the present year, a force somewhat more respectable than what I find will be the case.

Having examined into the state of those regiments, I am authorized to say from the information of their officers, that but very few of the men have inlisted. Those who have, are of the troops from Ticonderoga, and were permitted to visit their friends and homes, as part of the terms on which they would reengage. In respect to those who marched with General Lee, I cannot learn that any have. Their refusal, I am told, has not proceeded more from an aversion to the service, or any fixed determination not to engage again, than from their wishes to return home. The non-appointment of officers in some instances, the turning out of good and appointing of bad in others, and the incomplete, or rather no arrangement of them,—a work unhappily committed to the management of their States. Nor have I the most distant prospect of retaining them a moment longer than the last of this instant, notwithstanding the most pressing solicitations and the obvious necessity for it. By the departure of these regiments, I shall be left with five from Virginia, Smallwood's from Maryland, a small part of Rawlins's, Hand's from Pennsylvania, part of Ward's from Connecticut, and the German Battalion, amounting in the whole at this time from fourteen to fifteen hundred effective men. This handful, and such Militia as may choose to join me, will then compose our Army.

When I reflect upon these things they fill me with much concern, knowing that General Howe has a number of troops cantoned in the towns bordering on and near the Delaware, his intentions to pass as soon as the ice is sufficiently formed, to invade Pennsylvania, and to possess himself of Philadelphia, if possible. To guard against his designs, and the execution of them, shall employ my every exertion; but how is this to be done? As yet but few Militia have gone to Philadelphia, and they are to be our support at this alarming crisis. Had I entertained a doubt of General Howe's intentions to pass the Delaware on the dissolution of our Army, and as soon as the ice is made, it would now be done away. An intercepted letter from a gentleman of Philadelphia, who has joined the enemy, to his friend and partner in the city, declares that to be their design; that the Army would be there in ten or twenty days from the 16th instant, the time of his writing, if the ice should be made; advises him by no means to remove their stores, that they would be safe.

The obstacles which have arisen to the raising of the new Army, from the mode of appointing the officers, induce me to hope, if Congress resolve on an additional number of battalions to those already voted, that they will devise some other rule by which the officers, especially the field-officers, should be appointed. In case an augmentation should be made to the Eastern regiments, a deviation from the former mode will operate more strongly as to them than to other battalions, because there have been many more officers in service from those States than the regiments voted to be raised would admit of, by which means several deserving men could not have been provided for had the utmost pains been used for the purpose; and many others of merit have been neglected in the late appointments, and those of little worth and less experience put in their places or promoted over their heads. This has been the case with many of the best officers.

The enclosed letter from the Paymaster-General will show the state of the military chest, and the necessity of a large and immediate supply of cash. The advances to the officers for bounty and the recruiting service, are great; besides, the regiments, at the expiration of this month, will require pay of their claims. At the same time, it will show the justice of the clamours made by some officers respecting their pay, and the abuses they have practised. Whenever they have not been paid, it was because their abstracts were not made up.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

P. S. If the publick papers have been removed from Philadelphia, I hope those which I sent by Lieutenant-Colonel Reed, before we left New-York, have not been forgot. If they have not, I beg the favour of you to break open the chest, and send me the several letter-books, sealed up, having frequent occasion to refer to 'em.

Go. Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO SAMUEL GRIFFIN.

Camp, above Trenton-Falls, 24th December, 1776.

Dear Sir: The unfortunate mode adopted by Congress for the appointment of officers under the new establishment, has been big with every evil, and among others, with the most shameful delays. In short, so much confusion and uncertainty attend the appointments, for want of an arrangement of the officers, that I do not see whether we are like ever to recover from it. This has determined me, in the present exigency of our affairs, to encourage, by every means in my power, the raising of men for Continental service. And as your camp may be a proper place to set a work of this sort on foot, I wish you would select such persons as you shall judge fit to command companies in the first place, and likely to raise them in the next, and promise them, in my name, that if they can raise companies upon the Continental terms and establishment, or even if they can engage fifty privates, I will immediately, upon a certificate thereof from you, take both officers and men into pay, allow the officers the dollar and third for every man they inlist, and the men their bounty of twenty dollars, &c.

You will observe, I do not mean to take either officers or men into pay till at least fifty are engaged to a company, and a certificate obtained of it; because, as I intend these in aid of the eighty-eight battalions voted by Congress, I cannot consent to burthen the Continent with the expense of an additional number of officers, unless they are accompanied with men; these companies are to be raised upon the same terms, and for the same time, of the other battalions, and will, as they are raised, be regimented. As an encouragement to the Captains, they may nominate their own subalterns; but then, I will reserve the right of negativing them in case I find their choice falls upon improper persons from local attachments rather than the publick good. If you can set eight companies of this kind on foot, and will facilitate the recruiting of them, I think I can undertake to engage you the regiment, and a principal share in the nomination of the field-officers. In this work you are to recollect that no officers already appointed in the new establishment are to be withdrawn from it, lest confusion should be introduced thereby; and that my wish and desire is, that these companies may be raised as far as possible in the Jerseys. At present I shall only add, that I am, with esteem, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

To Samuel Griffin, Esquire.

Head-Quarters, Bucks County, 24th December, 1776.

Dear Sir: The necessity of collecting a body of troops to supply the place of those whose term of inlistment expires on the first of next month, obliges me to press you to march forward, with as much expedition as possible, to this place, or wherever my Head-Quarters may be, with such part of the troops under your command as may be judged expedient and agreeable to the order I have already lodged with Generals Heath and Spencer.

I am, sir, yours, &c.,

Go. Washington.

To the Officer commanding the Massachusetts Militia, on their march to Peek's Kill.

[The same to the Officer commanding the Connecticut Militia.]

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE ST. JOHN'S INDIANS.

Brothers of the St. John's Tribe: It gave me great pleasure to hear from Major Shaw, that you kept the chain of friendship, which I sent you from Cambridge in February last, bright and unbroken.

I am glad to hear that you have made a treaty of peace with your brothers and neighbours of the Massachusetts-Bay, who have, agreeable to your desire, established a truck house at St. John's, out of which they will furnish you with every thing you want, and take your furs in return.

My good friends and brothers, Governour Pierre Temna and the warriours that came with him, shall be taken good care of, and when they want to return home, they and our brothers of Penobscot shall be furnished with every thing necessary for their journey.

Brothers: I have one thing more to say to you. Our enemy, the King of Great Britain, endeavoured to stir up all the Indians from Canada to South-Carolina against us. But our brethren of the Six Nations, and their allies the Shawnees and Delawares, would not listen to their advice, but kept fast hold of our ancient covenant chain. The Cherokees and the Southern tribes were foolish enough to hearken to him, and to take up the hatchet against us; upon which our warriours went into their country, burnt their houses, destroyed their corn, and obliged them to sue for peace, and to give hostages for their future good behaviour.

Never let the King's wicked counsellors turn your hearts against me and your brethren of this country, but bear in mind what I told you last February, and what I tell you now.

In token of my friendship for you, I send you this from my Army on the banks of the great river Delaware, this 24th day of December, 1776.

Go. Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PASSAMAQUODIA CHIEFS.

Brothers of Passamaquodia: I am glad to hear by Major Shaw, that you accepted of the chain of friendship which I sent you last February from Cambridge, and that you are determined to keep it bright and unbroken.

When I first heard that you refused to send any of your warriours to my assistance, when called upon by our brothers of St. John's, I did not know what to think; I was afraid that some enemy had turned your hearts against me. But I am since informed that all your young men were employed in hunting, which was the reason of their not coming. This has made my mind easy, and I hope you will always in future join with your brothers of St. John's and Penobscot, when required.

I have desired my brother, the Governour of Massachusetts-Bay, to pay you the money which Captain Smith promised you for sending my letters to the Mickmac Indians.

Brothers: I have a piece of news to tell you, which I hope you will attend to. Our enemy, the King of Great Britain, endeavoured to stir up all the Indians from Canada to South-Carolina against us. But our brethren of the Six Nations, and their allies the Shawanese and Delawares, would not hearken to the advice of the messengers sent among them, but kept fast hold of our ancient covenant chain. The Cherokees and Southern tribes were foolish enough to listen to them, and to take up the hatchet against us; upon which our warriours went into their country, burnt their houses, destroyed their corn, and obliged them to sue for peace, and give hostages for their future good behaviour.

Now, brothers, never let the King's wicked counsellors turn your hearts against me and your brethren of this country, but bear in mind what I told you last February, and what I tell you now.

In token of my friendship I send you this from my Army on the banks of the great river Delaware, this 24th day of December, 1776.

Go. Washington.

GOVERNOUR TRYON TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

New-York, December 24, 1776.

My Lord: On the 10th instant I reviewed the Militia of Queen's County, at Hampstead, when eight hundred and twenty men were mustered; and on Thursday following, I saw the Suffolk Militia at Brookhaven, where near eight hundred men appeared, to all of whom, as well as to the Militia of Queen's County, I had in my presence an oath of allegiance and fidelity administered, the form of which is herewith transmitted.

I took much pains in explaining to the people (having formed them into circles) the iniquitous arts, etc., that had been practised on their credulity, to seduce and mislead them; and I had the satisfaction to observe among them a general return of confidence in Government. A very large majority of the inhabitants of Queen's County have indeed steadfastly maintained their royal principles, as have small districts in Suffolk County. Some men from South and Easthampton townships, who attended the review, assured me, Rebel parties from Connecticut were then on the eastermost part of the island, and which prevented in general the settlers in that quarter from attending my summons; but that they are very desirous to live under a peaceable obedience to his Majesty's authority. The enclosed letter from their Presbyterian minister will more fully explain their sentiments.

Three companies, I learned, had been raised out of Suffolk County for the Rebel Army; most of whom, I was made to understand, would quit that service, if they could get home.

I have the pleasure to assure your Lordship, through the whole of this tour I did not hear the least murmur of discontent, but a general satisfaction expressed at my coming among them; and to judge from the temper and disposition I perceived in them, there is not the least apprehension of any further commotions from the inhabitants on Long-Island; all are industrious in bringing to market what provisions the island affords.

The late successes of his Majesty's arms in the Jerseys and Rhode-Island, will assuredly open considerable resources of provisions and forage for the Army, which, with the plentiful and abundant supplies from the mother country, will enable this high-spirited and victorious army to take the field early next spring.

The General has been pleased to give my Secretary, Colonel Fanning, a warrant to raise a battalion of Provincials of five hundred men; they are to be listed for the American service, and for the term of two years, or during the war, at the General's option. This corps, I expect, will be completed so as to be ready to take the field with the Army.

While on Long-Island, I gave certificates to near three hundred men, who signed the Declaration prescribed by the King's Commissioners' Proclamation of the 30th November last. Large bodies of the people have already taken the benefit of the grace therein offered them.

I am, with perfect esteem and respect, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient and very humble servant,

WM. TRYON.

GENERAL SPENCER TO GENERAL HEATH.

North-Castle, December 24th, 1776.

SIR: The time the troops here engaged for, expires this day, when they will return. You will therefore send a Captain and sixty men to guard such of the Commissary's stores as remain near Croaton Bridge.

Your humble servant, JOS. SPENCER.

To the Commanding Officer at Peekskill.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL LINCOLN.

Peekskill, December 24th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have received a letter from his Excellency General Washington, informing that a body of Militia from the State of Massachusetts-Bay are on their march for this place, and that they are to rendezvous at Danbury, in the State of Connecticut. I returned to this place yesterday from the Jerseys, and find the situation of things at this place to be such as requires an immediate reinforcement. I must, therefore, request, that if your troops are arrived you will hasten them, or a part of them, to this place, as soon as possible. If General Lincoln is not arrived, and there should be a probability that he is detained at Rhode-Island, or elsewhere, the commanding officer is desired to order forward the troops, or a part of them, without delay.

I am, dear sir, yours affectionately, W. HEATH.

General Lincoln.

GENERAL HEATH TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Peekskill, December 24th, 1776.

SIR: On the 3d instant I received a letter from the honourable President of the Convention of the State of New-York, representing that complaint had been made to the Committee of Safety, of depredations committed by Captain Ford and his company, and that certain resolutions had passed in the Committee, which were to be transmitted to his Excellency General Washington, with a request that Captain Ford be delivered up, in order to answer for his misconduct in a course of justice; and that, in the mean time, I would detain Captain Ford in custody, and to give orders for securing such of the plundered effects as could be found.

Detesting a spirit of plundering, and at all times determined to bring offenders to justice, I immediately ordered Captain Ford under arrest, and several of his men under guard. Soon after being ordered over into the Jerseys, I have not heard any thing further of the matter until this day, when receipts, copies of which are enclosed, were presented to me, with a complaint that the prisoners lay confined, and were not brought to trial.

By the receipts, it appears that the parties injured have had reparation made them. It now remains that the offenders be brought to trial for the offence. I must, therefore, beg that you will inform me, as soon as possible, whether you desire that they should be given up to be tried by civil law? If not, I shall immediately order them to be tried by court-martial. A speedy determination is necessary, as they are all artificers, and much wanted at this time; and such as are not guilty should return to their duty.

I am informed that a troop of Horse, belonging to the State of Connecticut, have been for some time posted at Fishkill, and that they are not much wanted there. If it be so, a part of them will be of great service at this place, and should be glad that they may be ordered down accordingly.

I am, sir, with respect and esteem, your most humble servant,

W. HEATH.

President of the honourable Convention of the State of New-York.

Receipt given to Captain FORD.

Camp, at Peekskill, December 18th, 1776.

I, the subscriber, do acknowledge to have received of Captain Phineas Ford, in full for the things that said Captain Ford and his men did take out of the house of Solomon Pugsley, near the lines of the enemy, at White-Plains, on Philips's Manor. I say received in full in behalf of Solomon Pugsley and the Widow Elizabeth Pugsley.

Received per me: STEPHEN OAKLEY.

Ezekiel Thrall.

STEPHEN OAKLEY TO GENERAL SPENCER.

Camp, at Peekskill, December 18th, 1776.

SIR: This is to inform you that I have received satisfaction for the things that Captain Phineas Ford is now under an arrest for, and four of his men under guard for. And as received satisfaction, so desire that the whole may be released from their confinement.

STEPHEN OAKLEY.

General Spencer.

---

COLONEL JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO GENERAL HEATH.

Fishkills, 24th December, 1776.

SIR: I find that the stores near Pine's Bridge are not all removed, and that the troops below and the guards at that place are to be dismissed to-morrow. I must beg you to place proper guards over the stores till they can be removed, &c.

I am, most respectfully, sir, your most humble servant,

JOS. TRUMBULL, Commissary-General.

Major-General Heath.

---

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Committee of Safety for the State of New-York,
Fishkills, December 24th, 1776.

SIR: We were honoured with your Excellency's favour of the 15th instant, and most readily accept your apology for not answering ours of last month, since we are not ignorant of the straits into which our temporary inlistments have thrown you, and have found in the difficulties which your Excellency had to contend with, no small addition to those under which we labour. You will see by the enclosed resolve that we have, agreeable to your Excellency's request, called out great part of our Militia, besides those that are on the west side of Hudson's river, under the command of Brigadier-General Clinton, with a view to supply the place of the troops who are shortly to leave us. But, sir, we cannot but help observing that we do not put too much confidence in our endeavours, for reasons that will be explained to your Excellency by Mr. Benson, the bearer hereof. We have had frequent intimations that the enemy design shortly to make a push for this place, and some of them so well founded, as to convince us that nothing but our being in a proper state of defence will frustrate the design. As the difficulties under which we labour have not escaped your attention, we persuade ourselves that your Excellency will contribute, so far as is consistent with the general welfare, to remove them. This we conceive can be in no way so effectually done as by sending some of the new-raised regiments, if any are completed, to secure the defiles in the Highlands. This we know must be regulated by circumstances, of which your Excellency is the only proper judge; and to your decision, after having barely hinted it, we most cheerfully submit.

The necessity of the troops sent to the northward are inconceivably great, and unless speedily supplied must render the forces we raise entirely useless. We have directed Mr. Benson to press the Congress to fall upon some means of furnishing us out of the stores they have purchased in the Eastern States. Perhaps our request, if backed by your Excellency's recommendation, would be more speedily complied with.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient and very humble servant.

By order: Ab'm Ten Broeck, President.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, } Fishkill, December 24th, 1776. }

Sir: Your letter of the 12th instant, covering an account for removing a number of inhabitants, with stock, &c., from Long-Island to your State, was duly received. The amount of Mr. John Field's demand, being £44 5*s.*, lawful money, has been paid to him here, agreeable to your request; the remaining balance, to wit: £630 4*s.*, I am directed to transmit to your Excellency by the messenger, Benjamin Montanye, and to request the favour of your Excellency to cause the same to be paid to the several persons to whom it is due.

Whenever Mr. John Vaits transmits his account properly audited, payment will be ordered him.

I have the honour to be your Excellency's most obedient servant.

By order: Abm. Ten Broeck, President.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, } December 24th, 1776. }

The Committee to whom was referred the letter from Governour Trumbull, with the accounts therein enclosed, of sundry persons, for transporting many of the inhabitants, with their effects and stock, &c., from Long-Island, delivered in their report; which was read and unanimously agreed to, and is as follows, to wit:

"Your Committee do report, that they have examined an account which was forwarded to this Convention by his Excellency Governour Trumbull, amounting to £674 9*s.*, lawful, equal to £899 5*s.* 4*d.*, New-York currency, for transporting a number of inhabitants from Long-Island over to the State of Connecticut, with their stock, &c. That they find the account ascertained by three gentlemen, who have been appointed for that purpose by the Committees of New-London and Groton, and whom Governour Trumbull declares are gentlemen of character. That your Committee are therefore of opinion that the said account ought to be allowed, and that the sum of £44 5*s.*, lawful, equal to £59 New-York currency, part thereof for services performed by Mr. John Field, be paid to him as he is now here. That the remaining balance of £630 4*s.*, lawful, equal to £840 5*s.* 4*d.*, New-York currency, be remitted to his Excellency Governour Trumbull, for the purpose of discharging the said accounts. That your Committee have examined another account, also transmitted by Governour Trumbull, for services performed by John Vail, which the Connecticut auditors have not thought fit to certify as just, and are therefore of opinion that it be disallowed for the present."

Extract from the Minutes.

Robt. Benson, Secretary.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, } a. m. December 24th. }

Your Committee, appointed to confer with Colonel Trumble relative to the want of provisions at the Forts Montgomery and Constitution, and also for the Militia who are now in the service under General George Clinton, and relative to a plan for importation of salt for the State of Connecticut and New-York, do report, that Colonel Trumble says that the want of provisions at the Forts Montgomery and Constitution is owing to the passes in the Highlands not being sufficiently guarded to justify him in pouring any large quantity of provisions in those forts, and that he, notwithstanding, believes they are well provided by this time. That he is now going to Peekskill, and will take care that they are duly supplied. That Colonel Hay is authorized by him to supply the Militia with provisions on the west side of Hudson's river.

With regard to the plan for importation of salt for the State of Connecticut and New-York, he informs your Committee that he is authorized by the General Congress to import a quantity for the use of the Army, and that he has laid a plan with the State of Connecticut to send out a number of vessels for that purpose, one half of each adventure to be on account of the General Congress, and the other half on account of the State of Connecticut. That several vessels are already sailed in the course of last month, and others now fitting out. And that if the Convention of New-York incline to join in said plan, he is willing to interest them into it, and so divide the risk into three equal parts between the General Congress, the State of Connecticut, and the State of New-York. That the vessels so taken in here are appraised, and the value thereof insured to the respective owners.

Your Committee are therefore of opinion, that if such a plan be entered into by this Convention, it will greatly tend to the supplying this State with that necessary article.

All which is most humbly submitted.

Isaac Roosevelt,
Christ'r Tappen.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

In Committee of Safety for the State of New-York, } Fishkills, December 24th, 1776. }

The Convention have directed me to enclose to your Excellency an extract of a letter from General Washington, and to hint the necessity of securing the passes to the Highlands, which are in some measure the keys of this State, the importance of which, in this controversy, is evident from the uniform endeavours of the enemy to possess themselves of it, and the command that it would give them over the Indian stations.

This State has suffered greatly in the course of the war. Five entire Counties, and part of a sixth, are in the possession of the enemy; much, therefore, cannot be expected from them; but whatever they can do, has and will be done. As they feared the evils arising from short inlistments, they raised upwards of twenty-one hundred men over and above our quota, who are to continue in service until the last day of December; afterwards, at the request of General Washington, they sent down six hundred men to garrison the forts in the Highlands, whose time of inlistment expired the first day of this month. We have also been frequently under the necessity of calling out a very considerable part of our Militia. When the enemy quitted this State, and General Washington's Army was greatly reduced, Convention thought it expedient to send some into New-Jersey, as well to raise the spirits of the Whigs there as to oblige the enemy to weaken their Army, by leaving garrisons behind them. They accordingly sent down near two thousand men, under the command of Brigadier-General George Clinton, who are still in the field, and have been very successful in several skirmishes with the enemy. These, sir, are the exertions we have made, by which you may easily conceive that we are not a little exhausted and harassed. In this situation, we are informed that the few troops which are left under the command of Generals Spencer and Heath are to be disbanded in a few days; and the whole safety of this State, and that of America, which it in a great measure involves, will be left to our Militia. We have, therefore, made a farther draft from them; but, sir, they fear that these will be insufficient to guard the passes on the west, and those on the Albany post-road, on the east side of Hudson's river, if they should be attacked by any considerable force, which they have strong reasons to believe they will be; the Convention are therefore obliged to call upon Connecticut to defend the passes on the oblong road, which are not less the inlets into that State than this, and which they have reason to fear will, without their assistance, be but slightly guarded. They need not urge the necessity of raising your levies with all possible expedition, and of keeping, in the mean time, a body of Militia on foot, to guard against the danger of being without an Army, since they are fully satisfied that you are apprised of the importance of those measures, and that they will be executed with the same spirit which has hitherto so honourably characterized Connecticut.

The Convention have directed me to inform your Excellency that an act lately passed by your Legislature, prohibiting the transportation out of your State of several articles enumerated therein, has given the most serious concern to them, as by the misfortunes of war the inhabitants of this State are now deprived of a sea-port, they have no possible means of procuring many of the necessaries of life, but from the Eastern States, whose commerce is still open. The Convention are satisfied that it could never be your intention to add to the distresses by which they are unavoidably afflicted, and therefore doubt not that this will be remedied as soon as mentioned.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant.

By order: AB'M TEN BROECK, President.

COLONEL PARSONS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Middletown, 24th December, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I have to inform your Honour that Jacob Tillotson, Ensign of the Fourteenth Company in the Third Regiment of Militia in this State, did neglect and refuse to attend the duties of his said office in the late alarm on the 5th instant, by neglecting to march to New-London, agreeable to orders given out to the commanding officer of said company, he being duly notified.

I have the honour to be, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

MARSHD. PARSONS,
Lieut. Colonel of the Third Regiment of Militia.

COLONEL PARSONS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Middletown, 24th December, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: I have to inform your Honour that Captain Jonathan Starr, Jr., of New-London, present Captain of the Independent Company in that town, subjected to and under the regulations of the Third Regiment of Militia in this State, at the time of the alarm on the 5th and 6th instant, did neglect and refuse to lead forth his said company for the defence of that, or any neighbour town that might then be invaded, and for reason offered that he would not take up arms in support of independence. The matters at large may more fully appear by the representation made to me by the other officers of said company.

I have the honour to be, with respect, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

MARSHF'D PARSONS,
Lieutenant-Colonel of the Third Regiment.

To the Hon'ble Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

---

JOHN M'LEAN TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Danbury, December 24th, 1776.

This is to acquaint your Honour that there is five prisoners here, sent from the State of New-York, viz: one Commissary for the Engineers, one Lieutenant of the Sixteenth Regiment, one Captain of Transport, one of their wives, and one child, which is in utmost want of necessary clothing, and have made application to the Authority, Selectmen, and Committee as nothing of that kind could be procured here, that we would write to your Honour in regard to their want of clothing, that as they behaved themselves with decorum and decency since they have been here, and understand they have conducted themselves up to their parole while at Bedford. They say, if your Honour would grant them liberty to send one of their number to New-York, there they are sure of procuring those necessary clothing they want. We therefore would acquaint your Honour that they really are in great want of articles of clothing, and leave to your Honour to order provision for them, as your wisdom thinks best. But should your Honour conclude one of them go to New-York, we would rather choose Mr. Acmudy should go, as he has a wife and child here, which we think is a very good pledge for his return; and his behaviour has been, since here, conducted with the strictest politeness. In the mean time we leave the whole matter to your Honour's determination; and am, sir, for myself and the rest of the Authority, Selectmen, and Committee, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN McLEAN.

N. B. The above Acmudy is brother to Doct. Acmudy, at New-York. Should your Honour think proper to return an answer, you will please to direct me, or the Selectmen, as above written. By order of the Committee.

PAROLE OF JOSEPH READE.

Whereas I, Joseph Reade, of the City and Province of New-York, Esq., have for some time past resided at Windham, in the State of Connecticut, being apprehended and sent thither by the Committee of the Convention of the State of New-York, as one suspected inimical to the United States of America; and whereas, upon my application to his Honour Governour Trumbull, of the State of Connecticut, he hath permitted me to return to New-York to take care of my interest and effects, and there to reside till otherwise ordered: I do hereby pledge my faith and word of honour to said Governour Trumbull, that I will neither bear arms, nor excite or encourage others to bear arms, against this or any other of the United States of America, and that I will not do or say any thing in prejudice of the interest or measures of this, or any, or all, of the United States, in the present controversy with Great Britain; and that I will give no intelligence to the enemies of said States of any of their counsels, operations of war, or other the transactions of this, or any of the United States, and that I will return to any place in this State when required by his said Honour Governour Trumbull, or the General Assembly of this State, or the Convention of the State of New-York for the time being.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, this 24th day of December, A. D. 1776, at Windham, in the State of Connecticut.

JOS. READE.

THOMAS CUSHING TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Providence, December 24, 1776.

SIR: I have just time to inform you that we have news this day from the Jerseys. General Washington has been obliged to retreat to the other side of the Delaware, opposite to Trenton, where he has about ten or twelve hundred men. General Howe, with an army consisting, it is said, of about nine thousand, is at Trenton, and it is reported, designs to proceed to a place in the Jerseys directly opposite to the city of Philadelphia, and there cannonade and bombard the city, perhaps pass the river, and plunder it. General Lee, on Friday, the 13th instant, was taken prisoner by a party of Light-Horse, about fifty in number, at about two miles distant from the Army he commanded, and about twenty miles from the enemy. They carried him off with, out his hat or cloak. His Aid-de-camp is arrived in town and brings this intelligence. This is a great loss. It is reported the troops under General Gates, and those that were under General Lee, had joined General Washington. General Lincoln has just informed me that he has certain intelligence that the troops at Rhode-Island have all, but about fifteen hundred, reembarked. Whither they are bound, is uncertain; some conjecture to this town, some say to Dartmouth, and some imagine to Boston. We shall soon learn their destination. Our Militia that repaired to this State, in consequence of the requisition of Governour Cooke, having left their families very suddenly, are mostly returned home. Those that remain are very uneasy, and I believe will not tarry much longer; so that if General Lincoln, in pursuance of the opinion of Council, was immediately with the men under his command to proceed to New-York, there would be no men belonging to our State left for the defence of this.

In great haste, I remain, with respect, your most humble servant,

THOMAS CUSHING.

Hon. James Bowdoin, Esq.

JAMES LOVELL TO JOHN AVERY.

Boston, December 24, 1776.

SIR: After maturely deliberating the circumstances of my publick and private relations, I have concluded it to be my duty not to decline that honour to which, as you informed me on the 5th of this month, I am appointed by the joint ballot of both Houses of Assembly in this State.

Conscientiously devoted to the interests of United America, and animated by my late sufferings in the common cause of her freedom, I dare hope, by an unremitted application to the duties of this very honourable appointment, to obtain the future approbation of my constituents, or at least to prevent their regret, for those benevolent and generous considerations which evidently governed their ballot in my particular case.

I am, with esteem, your friend and humble servant,

JAMES LOVELL.

John Avery, Esq., Deputy Secretary.

You will kindly determine about the propriety of a formal communication of the above to the honourable Council.

N. LOTBINIERE TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[No. 1.] Boston, December 24th, 1776.

SIR: This is the third letter I have wrote you since the 20th of last month, the day of my arrival in this city, viz: the first directed to Mr. Benjamin Franklin, who I was well acquainted with in London, and also seemed to place as much value on my acquaintance as I did in his, but at the moment of the post's departure, I was told that he had embarked for France three weeks before that time; then it being impossible for me to copy the letters over, I had only leisure to write on the back, and beg that you would be so kind as to open it, and make the same use of it he would have done if present. It contained an open letter for my son, and I hope you have been so kind, sir, as to cause it to be delivered to him. The master of the post told me that that packet had been forwarded to you by Captain Faulkner, who left this city on Thursday, 21st of last month. The second was dated the 4th instant, and delivered the same to Mr. Freeman, a clerk to the Committee of this city, who, I was told, was to set off the next day to the Congress; but said letter remained on the Committee's table; which hearing of, and that his journey had been put off, I sent for it, and delivered it at the Post Office on Thursday, the 12th instant. In the interval of those two dates, I delivered to Mr. Walker, who was going to Philadelphia with two French gentlemen, a second letter for my son, which he promised to forward to him with the greatest safety and despatch. Still I have no answer from him, nor do I know if he is acquainted with my arrival in this country; and it is only in an indirect manner I have heard of his enjoying a tolerable state of health. You may judge, sir, that having put this only son, who heretofore has seemed deserving my sincerest affection, and with the mortal uneasiness I have suffered on his account for above a twelvemonth past, as well as on account of my wife and daughter now in Canada, from whom I have not heard directly for two years past, and from whom I might hear with certainty by my son, it is cruel in Mr. Walker to have deprived him of my letter, which he took charge of, and promised me so earnestly to forward. Those whom you employed to forward to him the one enclosed in my first letter, I fear have committed the same neglect; which deprives both father and son from a communication which would be satisfactory to them, after so long an absence and so much inquietude.

You must have perceived, sir, by my two first letters, the great and ardent desires of my soul for the success of the American arms, since, although I have not been able yet to communicate to you the proofs I can show of my particular commission to come to this country, I have not been backward in communicating to you my ideas on your present positions, and that of the enemy, which I thought the fittest for the actual preservation of your States, and to enable you to complete it as soon as you will be able to act offensively (and was I with you I should think this time now come.) My zeal for this, I think, will sufficiently be demonstrated, if you observe that at the time I left France the commission I accepted of could not be granted without a reserve of disavowing me in case things did not succeed in the manner expected. I have not acted with less ardour and zeal since my arrival in this Province, although under the double risk of being disavowed by your Congress, or by the Court which has secretly employed me, as one who may, and they know can be, of the greatest service to you by his knowledge of war and politicks, as well as with the local of this Continent. However, I cannot confine my zeal within myself, until I shall be with you, and am induced to endeavour to convince you, that your most dangerous enemies are those false brethren who unhappily are to be found in all your States in too great numbers, whose only occupation and aim is to discourage your people, by deluding them under the insupportable yoke prepared for them, and which once laid on, they never will be able to extricate themselves from. It is, then, this first and most dangerous enemy which must be eradicated without delay, and forever, by even the severest laws, accompanied by some striking examples, though not in great numbers.

I had from the power that employed me, the strictest recommendations and orders to all whom their authority extended, to procure me every means and conveniency in my way to this Continent, with the greatest security and despatch. The respect and consideration such orders procured me, in all the places belonging to that Power, through which I passed, or made any stay, could not be kept secret here, and has even been published by several subjects of this State, and Frenchmen, who are actually here, who could not help regarding me as in a superiour rank to those who commanded in the places where they saw me. In spite of all this, and of such demonstrative proofs, sufficiently evident to every thinking being who is not blinded by his enmity to this country, I have nevertheless been exposed, and accused in the most respectable place of this city, and from thence publickly, of being a declared enemy to those States. Some have even been so infamous as to hold me out to the publick as a spy of the British Court, although certainly those who took charge to publish such a report, acted against the testimony of their own conscience; so that every step I took, by my particular observation, to render myself useful to this State, and to employ my talents in its favour, which then appeared to me very essential, were poisoned to my disadvantage, and regarded as corroborating proofs which strengthened their suspicions against me. I was a long time ignorant of this, and it only came to my knowledge by an accident, which will be repeated to you by Messrs. Faneuil and Price, to whom I have mentioned the whole, as well as the endeavours I made to discover the source from whence it proceeded, or at least to stop its progress and effect, in which I have not yet succeeded, although I applied to one of the two officers, that seemed to me more concerned than I had a right to be, in discovering the source of the whole and following it through all its windings and turnings. It would be out of my power, sir, to conceal from you my sensibility and the pain which I feel at such an affair, not as to myself, although it seems an attempt aimed at my honour, (which happily is secured against such frivolous suspicions, by being so well known in many parts of Europe,) but on account of this country and the speedy satisfaction which I could have procured to the power by which I am employed, as I am now stopped in my endeavours for the good of this country, by the insinuations with which they have impressed the publick against me; and I am apprehensive it will be a difficult matter to destroy that prejudice, and regain that general and unrestrained confidence which ought to have been placed in me from the moment of my arrival, and the open manner of my first appearance. I have not yet, sir, received the least answer from Congress, and you may easily judge, particularly after the affair above-mentioned, that I cannot go without, and without your positive orders for my own safety, my servants, and baggage, on the road, otherwise I might be exposed to be stopped in the way. Therefore I beg you will send them to me as soon as possible, that I, in person, at least may be with you within a fortnight. I now see things, I think, in a pretty clear light, as well in regard to your position, as that of the enemy, so as to judge what may be proper to be done—where the evil lays, what may be directly remedied, and what referred to another time. I even think that I now foresee very clearly what the enemy will attempt next campaign, and I confess that I have already informed the French Court of it, and of my designs in consequence; assuring them, that if I am credited here, so as to determine the operations, and that France determines to support it in the manner I have mentioned, all will be ready here to concur in that system. The method I have taken to write for the first, was via St. Pierre de Miquelon, with direction to send a vessel immediately, with copy of my letter, and even the original, if there remained no more vessels in that port bound to France. This letter is to go from Wellfleet (Cape Cod) to St. Pierre, by a schooner which was to sail immediately, and perhaps she is already gone. I recommended that my letter might be concealed even in the master's breeches, in case he should be taken. The second, via the Mole, in sloop which will sail the day after to-morrow; which I have wrote in ciphers, and directed to the Count d'Ennery, General of Hispaniola; in which I have mentioned the same projects and ideas; and I desire the General to send it to France as soon as possible. I intend to send a duplicate of this second letter by Captain Marion, in a ship bound to the same island, which will sail about the latter end of next week, and in which I would take my passage, if I thought I could be of no use here.

I remitted to Mr. Walker, at his departure from Boston, a recital of the affair which detained me five years in England, to be delivered to you at his arrival at Philadelphia, in order that you might have a timely knowledge of the incontestable right I have to the lordships of Dalainville and D'hocquart, at the head of Lake Champlain, extending to the lower end of New Lake George, to the west of the river which joins that lake to Lake Champlain. The lordship of D'hocquart is situated on the east side of that river, and begins about two miles above Crown-Point, and extends near the entrance of the river Au Loutres. Each of those lordships have four leagues in front from north to south, on five leagues depth; the first to the west and the second to the east. When I shall have the honour to see you, sir, I shall inform you more fully of this affair. In case Mr. Walker should neglect to give you the copy I desired him to deliver, Mr. Faneuil or Mr. Price may do the same, as I gave each of them one for that purpose. Besides the knowledge you may obtain of that affair by said memorial, (in which I hope to receive justice from the Congress, as it was presented to the King, his Ministers, the members of both Houses of Parliament, and almost all the foreign Ministers then in London, and the principal persons in France,) you will see in what manner I treated the Ministers and principal persons of the British Court, whose spy they have dared here to call me. There are some, and unfortunately too many, in your States, who render them more service than any stranger could, however inclined.

I have the honour to be, with the highest consideration and respect, sir, your most humble, obedient, servant,

THE MQ'S DE LOTBINIERE.

Copy of a Letter to my son, wrote by Mr. WALKER.

[No. 2.] Boston, November 21st, 1776.

I sent yesterday, my dear son, a letter to you, under cover to Mr. Franklin; but I did not then know he was gone to France, but it will reach you through the hands of Mr. Hancock, President of the Congress, whom I have desired to open my letter to Mr. Franklin, and to make the same use of it he would have done, as well in regard to you as to the other contents of said letter. This will be delivered you by Mr. Walker, who sets off for Philadelphia in two hours, and which he has promised to deliver you carefully.

It is too late, my dear son, to yield to that spirit of enthusiasm to which you have been led. I am told (by Mr. Walker) by the persuasion of Longueil and Bel-Etre, I don't think you have done any honour to your judgment, when you preferred their advice to mine, particularly in so critical a time. My self-love convinces me that if you had properly reflected, you would have preferred my advice to theirs. If you had regulated your conduct on the letters I wrote you from London, you would have avoided many losses and sorrows, and you, as well as others, who, without the least foundation, followed the same course, would not now be exposed to the reproaches of your mother country, in which your ancestors made a figure, against which for some time you appeared in arms: for you could not be ignorant of the interest France took in the success of the cause against which you were persuaded to fight. It occasioned the greatest surprise in France when they were informed that the Canadian noblesse had joined the Royalists in such a cause, particularly after the treatment which they had received, without the least occasion given, which tended to no less than to reduce them to a lower state than their vassals, and which they would have accomplished if they had had a sufficient time to execute their schemes. I refer to tell you much more, as we shall meet; until when I wish you a perfect health. Believe me, my dear son, the best father and friend you could have required of God.

LOTBINIERE.

All my letters from France give me the title of Marquis. You run no risk in conforming to it.

ARTHUR LEE TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

December 25th, 1776.

It was with infinite pleasure I received my dear brother's letter, by the hands of Dr. Franklin, whom I joined at this place on the 22d December, the day after his arrival. We have had an audience, been received, and presented our propositions. As yet we have received no answer, nor can we divine what it will be. They are very timid and secret, but we have hopes. In the mean time we are endeavouring to procure artillery, arms, ammunition, and clothing, to fit you for another campaign, which, if it be as undecisive as this, will nearly exhaust the enemy's strength. Two things, however, I would wish to impress upon your minds: to look forward and prepare for the worst event, and to search for every resource within yourselves, so as to have as little external dependence as possible. The events of the year 1777 are of such infinite importance, that no industry and no expense can be too great to turn them to our advantage. If they are decidedly in our favour, our liberties and properties will be assured forever.

I have sent for your sons hither. I mean to keep Ludwell with me, and if his genius suits, to train him to arms, chiefly in the engineering line. Tom I will send to you with our despatches, when they are of importance. He is now of an age to be useful to you in Virginia, from whence your absence must greatly damage your affairs.

Yours affectionately,

ARTHUR LEE.

To Richard Henry Lee, Esq.

SAMUEL WRIGHT TO COLONEL RICHARDSON.

Queen Ann's County, December 25th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Since my returning home, finding my friends exceedingly against my entering the service again, beg leave to resign the commission you have been kind enough to appoint me to. Return you my hearty thanks for the honour conferred upon me; and am, with the greatest respect, yours,

SAMUEL WRIGHT, of Thomas.

Colonel William Richardson, Caroline County.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO ASSEMBLY OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Baltimore, December 25th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Since I did myself the honour of addressing you last on the subject of the enclosed resolve, the Congress have received fresh intelligence from Generals Schuyler and Gates, urging the necessity of an immediate compliance therewith. In consequence of which, they have directed me to represent to you, that without your immediate aid and assistance, the important fortress of Ticonderoga will unavoidably fall into the hands of our enemies, the troops who at present garrison that and the adjacent posts having determined not to remain there after the term of their inlistment expires.

It is needless to use arguments on the occasion, or to paint the dreadful consequences to gentlemen already fully acquainted with them, of leaving the back settlements of the New-England States open to the ravages of our merciless foes. If any thing can add to your exertions at this time, it must be the reflection that your own most immediate safety calls upon you to strain every nerve. Should we heedlessly abandon the post of Ticonderoga, we give up inconceivable advantages; should we resolutely maintain it, (and it is extremely capable of defence,) we may bid defiance to General Carleton, and the northern army under his command. But our exertions for this purpose must be immediate, or they will not avail any thing. The thirty-first of this instant, the time will expire for which the troops in that important garrison were inlisted, and Lake Champlain will, in all probability, be frozen over soon after. For the sake, therefore, of all that is dear to freemen, be entreated to pay immediate attention to this requisition of Congress, and let nothing divert you from it. The affairs of our country are in a situation to admit of no delay. They may still be retrieved, but not without the greatest expedition and vigour.

If nothing was at stake but your own peace and security, I should not be so earnest on the occasion. It is the fate of posterity (which depends upon our conduct) that stamps a value on the present cause. I beseech you, therefore, by all that is sacred; by that love of liberty and your country which you have always manifested; by those ties of honour which bind you to the common cause; by that love of virtue and happiness which animates all good men; and, finally, by your regard for succeeding generations, that you will, without a moment's delay, exert yourselves to forward the troops to Ticonderoga from your State, agreeably to the enclosed requisition of Congress.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Assembly of New-Hampshire.

[Same to Assembly of Massachusetts-Bay, and to the Assembly of Connecticut.]

BENJAMIN HARRISON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, December 25, 1776.

SIR: Congress are in immediate want of a fast-sailing vessel. Every endeavour has been used to procure one without success, nor have they the least chance left of getting one unless your honourable Board will spare Captain Martin's brig. I should by no means ask the favour, knowing how necessary this vessel is to the State of Maryland, if the occasion was not of the most pressing nature. Should the Board be so obliging as to part with her, Congress expect to pay what the vessel and cargo cost, with every charge of wages and outfit. You'll please to lay this matter before the Board, and favour me with their answer by the express.

I have the honour to be, your most obedient servant,

BENJ. HARRISON.

---

WILLIAM ELLERY TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Baltimore, December 25th, 1776.

SIR: I did myself the honour of writing to you by Captain Garcia, the 10th instant, since which nothing new hath taken place that I know of in the Army, excepting the capture of General Lee, by a party of the enemy's Light-Horse, on the 13th. By some fatality, as General Sullivan in a letter to Congress expresses himself, General Lee, with his family, took lodging in a farm-house, about three miles distant from the Army under his command. Some Tories informed the enemy of his situation. They sent off eighty Light-Horse to take him, who surrounded and attacked the house. The General, with his family, made a manly resistance, but were finally obliged to submit, and the poor General was carried away the captive. A fatality, strange indeed, for some time past, hath seemed to attend our affairs. The loss of Fort Washington, when twenty-six hundred of our men were captivated in an inglorious manner; the loss of Fort Lee, by surprise, with a great quantity of stores, and the capture of the General, who was honoured by his name being given to that fort, and, in short, all our affairs, have in a strange manner proceeded. I hope in God better fortune will attend our future operations. General Howe's Army, by our last advices, had extended itself along the Delaware, towards the north principally, with an apparent design to pass the river. General Washington had posted his Army along the river so as to obstruct their passage. Some of the Militia of Pennsylvania, the Lower Counties, and Maryland, are about to reinforce, and some have actually reinforced, his Army; and General Sullivan, on whom the command of the division late under the command of the unhappy Lee is devolved, was on the 13th of this month marching to join him. When they join, they will together make a respectable Army, sufficient to prevent Howe's entering Pennsylvania. Indeed, the armies must before this have formed a junction, if General Sullivan's division hath not been repulsed by General Howe. We expect to hear from Philadelphia every moment; if any thing new shall arrive before I am obliged to close my letter

You have doubtless before this heard of the removal of Congress to this place. This is the first opportunity I have had, and this is circuitous, (via Boston,) to inform you of it. The enemy was so near, and affairs in the city in such confusion, that it was improper and unsafe to continue there, and for reasons too long for a letter. Baltimore was fixed upon as the most suitable place for holding Congress in for the present. I should like the place well enough, if it was less distant from the Army, less dirty, and less expensive.

It is long since I have heard from my constituents. What is doing, and how matters stand in our State, I know no more than an inhabitant of the moon; although it would be beneficial to have every necessary information seasonably.

We have an account that a fleet, with eight or ten thousand men, have gone to Newport, and that the Island was evacuated by the inhabitants; but that the enemy had not landed. By a letter from General Wooster to Congress, of the 8th of this instant, we are informed that the fleet on the 6th were off New-London. If it be true that so large a force hath gone to Rhode-Island, something more is intended, in my opinion, than the bare taking the town of Newport for winter-quarters. I suspect that they mean to take possession of Providence, and from thence penetrate into the Massachusetts-Bay. If they attack Providence, it will be by land. They will pass up the bay to Warwick Neck perhaps, then land, and march to the town. There ought to be a good redoubt at Warwick Point, to check their landing and give time for troops to be arrayed to oppose their progress. I think that this division of the enemy's Army affords us a fine opportunity to make an efficacious stroke on them. As soon as I had notice that I thought I could depend upon, I immediately proposed to the New-England Delegates to write to General Washington, informing him that a fleet, with a large body of troops under Clinton, had sailed for Rhode-Island, and desiring him to send General Gates or Greene, with such Brigadier-Generals as could be spared, to take the command and direction of the troops that might be raised in New-England, to repel the enemy from the Island, or oppose their making any inroads into the country. It was agreed to, and a letter wrote. The General told us in answer, that he had received previous notice, and had sent orders to Generals Arnold and Spencer, who were then at Albany, to repair to New-England, and take the command of the yeomanry that should muster on this occasion. I hope that the Militia will universally turn out, and not suffer the enemy to enter and ravage our State as they have done the Jersey. I hope that they will turn out in such numbers as to be able to give an effectual blow to the enemy in our quarter. If the Army under Clinton should receive a mortal wound from the brave New-Englanders, it would, in my opinion, bring the war to a speedy close; whereas, if this opportunity of the division of the British Army should be neglected, or not improved, the war, in all probability, will be protracted to a great length, if not speedily issued in our destruction, in the destruction of all we hold dear; for we have good reason to think that a reinforcement of twenty thousand men will be sent over next spring. By a letter from an unknown, but I suppose a good hand, read in Congress this day, it appears that the Court of London had attempted, and were attempting by every means they could devise, to procure aid from every Power in Europe, or to induce them to a neutrality; and the writer of the letter gave it as his opinion, that what they could collect in Germany, together with recruits raised in England, Scotland, and Ireland, would amount to about that number; and that Russia would not furnish them with any men. From hence the necessity appears that we should act in every quarter this winter with the spirit of men contending for an invaluable prize.

By expresses from Philadelphia, received this day, it seems that the Militia of that State begin to rouse themselves, and are collecting very fast to reinforce General Washington. I have some hopes that Howe will be drove out of the Jersey this winter. If this should take place, and the New-England States should give Clinton a sound drubbing, we then need not fear what Britain, with all her mercenaries, should attempt.

There are brave enterprising spirits in Providence. They burned a Gaspee. They may burn the British fleet. I hope they will make the trial, and every effort to destroy both fleet and army. I imagine that there are a number of seamen in port belonging to the Navy of the United States, as well as privateers. These men, I should think, could be easily induced to enterprise any thing. They are brave, and well know that if the British fleet is suffered to remain in our bay, there will be an end to privateering, by which they have made immense gain. What I have wrote on this head goes on this supposition, that a fleet with a large body of troops is at Rhode-Island, and flows from that warm regard I have for the State of Rhode-Island, and the glorious cause in which we are embarked. In this cause I am willing to exert, and have exerted, my best abilities; for this I have suffered great anxiety; have left wife and children, and the sweetest and closest connections in life. Where my wife and children are I know not. I hope they have escaped from Rhode-Island, and are not fallen into the hands of the enemy. If they should have been so unhappy, I hope the State will interfere in their behalf, and procure their release.

I wish that an additional Delegate may have been chosen, and that he may have set off for Congress. If it should not have been done, I hope it will be speedily done, and that an addition might be made to the salary already voted; and I believe that the Assembly will not think me mercenary, nor an addition unnecessary, when they are informed that I am obliged to give six dollars a week for boarding myself, and that every article of living is doubled within a year or two. I ask no more of the State than sufficient to give me a decent support while I am in its service, and I know the generosity of my constituents too well to doubt of their disposition to do what is right in this instance. To that generosity and good disposition I readily submit this matter; and am, with the sincerest regard, their and your Honour's friend and humble servant,

WILLIAM ELLERY.

COLONEL THORNTON TO MESHECH WEARE.

Baltimore, 25 December, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: The near approach of the enemy to Philadelphia, the slowness of the Militia, and the advice of friends, induced the Congress to adjourn to this town, which is about one hundred and ten miles southwest from Philadelphia. By our last advices the Militia are joining our Army in great numbers, from which we have great hopes that General Howe and his Army will soon be in our power, or return to New-York. The Congress have encouragement of assistance in the spring. Nothing will be wanting on their part to support independence, defeat the enemy, and render the United States great, honourable, and happy.

An inexcusable neglect in the officers, want of fidelity, honour, and humanity in the doctors, and avarice in the suttlers, has slain ten soldiers to the enemy's one, and will soon prevent every man of common sense from putting his life and fortune in the power of such as destroy both without pity or mercy. I have proposed to Congress that every State in future should appoint one or more Suttlers, as they think proper, for their own men, to be supplied by a Committee appointed by said State with every thing necessary for sick and well men, at a price stipulated by said State; the Suttlers and Committee to be paid by and accountable to said State; and a Superintendent who shall have no other business but to see that every soldier belonging to the State is properly supplied and supported agreeable to their circumstances, and that proper stoppages be made for what they receive, when they are receiving their wages. The Congress approve of the method, but say it is the business and duty of each State to take care of their own men, and they expect they will. This may appear expensive, but when it is considered that by this or some better method, that the Council and Assembly think of, we may soon (when it is published) have an Army in the field able to defeat any Britain can send, and without we shall soon have none but officers; all which is humbly submitted to the wisdom and prudence of the honourable Council and Assembly, by him who has the honour to be, honourable gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servant,

MATHEW THORNTON.

P. S. The Honourable Colonel Whipple is well. I have received no letter since I left New-Hampshire. Please to take the trouble to present my compliments to the honourable Council and Assembly, and to William Parker, Esq.

The Hon. Meshech Weare, Esq., President of the Council of the State of New-Hampshire.

Baltimore, December 25, 1776.

Major-General Gates and Brigadier-Generals St. Clair and Maxwell, arrived a few days ago at General Washington's Head-Quarters from Ticonderoga.

Colonel Ford, of Morris County, in New-Jersey, who has several hundred men under his command, has harassed the enemy very much by surprising their guards, and taking their wagons, stores, &c.

Captain Ephraim Anderson, of New-Jersey, has gained great honour in several enterprises against the enemy near Trenton.

A number of the Boston Tories have lately died, unpitied and unlamented, at Halifax, in Nova-Scotia. The famous General Brattle is among the number.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO CAPTAIN NICHOLSON.

December 25, 1776.

SIR: As the severe weather is like to make in, Captain Biddle will try to make a push with the Randolph; and as it is of the utmost consequence that you should get to Carolina if possible, I think it most for the publick service that you should go down the bay in company with him, and I hope this will find you in readiness. You will see the ship as she comes down, and must join her as soon as you can, and you must concert with Captain Biddle the best plan you can think of for getting out. I am fearful an expedition is gone or will soon go against Charles-Town; therefore you must proceed cautiously, and get into the first safe harbour in that State that you can, and give immediate notice to the President and the Continental Agents of your arrival.

I am, sir, by order of the Marine Committee, your humble servant,

ROBERT MORRIS, V. P.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO ROBERT MORRIS.

Head-Quarters, 25th December, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have your obliging favours of the 21st and 23d. The blankets are come to hand; but I would not have any of the other goods sent on till you hear again from me.

I agree with you that it is in vain to ruminate upon, or even reflect upon, the authors or causes of our present misfortunes. We should rather exert ourselves, and look forward with hopes, that some lucky chance may yet turn up in our favour. Bad as our prospects are, I should not have the least doubt of success in the end did not the late treachery and defection of those who stood foremost in the Opposition while fortune smiled upon us make me fearful that many more will follow their example, who, by using their influence with some and working upon the fears of others, may extend the circle so as to take in whole Towns, Counties, nay Provinces. Of this, we have a recent instance in Jersey; and I wish many parts of Pennsylvania may not be ready to receive the yoke.

The security of the Continental ships-of-war in Delaware is certainly a capital object, and yet to draft the many hands necessary to fit them out, from the Militia, might be dangerous just now. Perhaps, in a little time hence, their places may be supplied with country Militia, and then, if the exigency of affairs requires it, they certainly ought to be spared.

I will just hint to you a proposition that was made, or rather talked of, a few days ago, by the officers of two New-England regiments, whose time of service will expire on the 1st January. They are, most of them, watermen, and they said their men would willingly go on board the frigates and navigate them round to any of the ports of New-England, if it was thought they would be safer there than in Delaware. You may think of this, and let me hear from you on the subject if the proposition pleases you.

Lieutenant Boger, of the Navy, is already gone in; and I have made a demand of Lieutenant Josiah in exchange, but I have not heard whether Lord Howe accedes to it. I will procure the release of Doctor Hodge as soon as it can be done without injuring others by giving him the preference, as I have always made it a rule to demand those first who have been longest in captivity. I will take the same steps in regard to Mr. Jones, commander of the sloop taken by the Andrew Doria.

I shall take the earliest opportunity of sending in your letter to General Lee, with the bill drawn upon Major Small.

From an intercepted letter from a person in the secrets of the enemy, I find their intentions are to cross Delaware as soon as the ice is sufficiently strong. I mention this that you may take the necessary steps for the security of such publick and private property as ought not to fall into their hands should they make themselves masters of Philadelphia, of which they do not seem to entertain the least doubt.

I hope the next Christmas will prove happier than the present to you, and to, dear sir, your sincere friend and humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

P. S. I would just ask whether you think Christeen a safe place for our stores? Do not you think they would be safer at Lancaster, or somewhere more inland?

Robert Morris, Esq.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL PUTNAM.

Camp, above Trenton-Falls, December 25th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am glad to hear by your son that you are getting better again. If I had not been well convinced before of the enemy's intention of possessing themselves of Philadelphia so soon as the frost will form ice hard enough to transport them and their artillery across the Delaware, I have an intercepted letter which puts the matter beyond a doubt. If, therefore, the citizens of Philadelphia have any regard for the town, not a moment's time is to be lost in putting it in the best posture of defence possible; but lest this should not be done, I would have the publick stores of every kind that can be, removed, except such as may be necessary for immediate use, and except provisions. I think the stores should go towards Lancaster instead of Christeen bridge, unless they can be water borne (at this time to the bridge) and readily transported from thence into the country. Should not this be the case, may they not easily be seized at Christeen? I think they may; but this matter should be inquired into.

I am sorry Colonel Griffin has left the Jerseys. Some active officer of influence ought, in my opinion, to repair there, to inspirit the people and keep the Militia from disbanding, and, if possible, to encourage them to assemble.

Let me know the exact state and strength of the Militia with you, that I may know how to govern myself; also of the expectation you have of more coming in.

I am, dear sir, yours, &c., GO. WASHINGTON.

P. S. If a party of Militia from Philadelphia could be sent over to support the Jersey Militia about Mount-Holly, would it not serve to prevent them from submission? I wish you could get Colonel Forman, and endeavour, in my name, to prevail upon him to exert himself in this business. I want to see him myself much on this account.

Pray send the letter to Mr. Hancock by express, if the post does not set out immediately for Baltimore.

To Major-General Putnam.

COURT-MARTIAL ON CALEB GREEN.

At a General Court-Martial, held by order of Major-

General Heath, at Mandeville's Tavern, December 25th, 1776, to try such prisoners as shall be brought before them: Colonel Wyllys President.

Members.

| Lieut. Colonel Cooper, | Captain Ball, |
| Major Purdy, | Captain Shipman, |
| Captain Pettibone, | Captain Scott, |
| Captain Maxwell, | Captain Platt, |
| Captain Morse, | Captain Steward, |
| Captain Darby, | Captain Blanc. |

Captain Hyde. Judge-Advocate.

Caleb Green, a soldier in Colonel Thomas's regiment, and my company, confined for desertion. Samuel Townsend, Captain, to the officer of the main guard, Peekskill, 9th December, 1776.

The prisoner to the crime pleads Not guilty.

Abraham Egburt, on oath, testifies, that himself and the prisoner had liberty to go to the Hospital, to recover their health. They went, and found no Doctor, nor any body to assist them; from the Hospital the prisoner went to his own home, about two miles, and that he has not seen him since, till he returned to his own company, the 8th of December.

William Brown, on oath, testifies, that he was sent to order the prisoner to camp, but on being informed by his neighbours that he was unable to go to camp, never went to him. I was sent to him a second time, about the beginning of this month. I forwarded the order by the prisoner's brother, and the prisoner made no delay in coming.

Nathan Merrit testifies, that he agrees with William Brown, and further saith, that about the 25th of last November he was at the prisoner's house, and that he appeared very unwell.

Daniel Lewis, on oath, agrees with Nathan Merrit respecting the prisoner's health.

The Court having heard the evidences offered, do unanimously adjudge the prisoner not guilty of the crime laid to his charge.

Sam'l Wyllys, President.

I do hereby approve the sentence. W. Heath.

ROBERT YATES TO JAMES DUANE.

Claverack, December 25th, 1776.

Sir: The bearer hereof, Mr. Jeremiah C. Miller, is the young gentleman whom I heretofore recommended to the Committee of Arrangement for an ensigncy. As he does not know whether he is appointed, he now calls on you for information. He is at present called out with the Militia to the Highlands; and should he be appointed, it would probably be necessary for him to join his regiment.

I have understood by Mr. Abraham Yates, who this morning passed by here in his way to Albany, that the Government report is completed. He was in so great a hurry to go up, that I had no opportunity of receiving from him any information upon this important subject. If you could give me your thoughts upon it, you'll oblige me much. I should also be glad to know the day you expect to return to the Fishkill, as it is probable I shall accompany you.

I am, with the greatest esteem, your most obedient servant,

Robt. Yates.

To the Hon. James Duane, Esq., Manor Livingston.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety of Connecticut, Middletown, December 25th, 1776—

Present: His Honour the Governour, his Honour the Deputy Governour, Jabez Huntington, William Williams, William Hillhouse, Benjamin Huntington, Thomas Seymour, Esqrs.

Voted, To refer an Account of Colonel William Pitkin to the Committee of Pay-Table for adjustment, and to draw on the Treasurer for what they shall find justly due, &c.

Voted, That Messrs. Bunting, Waddle, Corsey, Whitehead, Bets, and , be permitted to return to their places of abode in the State of New-York, upon their giving their parole, in writing, not to give any intelligence, nor do or say any thing against the service of the American States, and return back to this State on being requested.

Voted, To permit Terence McDermott, a prisoner of war in this State, to go to New-York, on his parole, for thirty-one days, and then to return and deliver himself up, unless within that time he obtain the liberty of some gentleman of equal rank in the American service, in exchange for him, &c.

TERENCE M'DERMOTT TO GEORGE WYLLYS.

Sir: I sailed from Cork early in the year '75, in order to join his Majesty's Sixteenth Regiment of Foot, quartered at Pensacola, as a volunteer, and arrived, after a very long passage, at Philadelphia, where I was made prisoner. When I left home, there was not the most distant idea of an American war; nor was there the least reason to suspect it.

The multiplicity of publick business in which the Governour has been lately engaged, prevented me from communicating my private affairs, in order to make a request which I humbly conceive I can now make with the greatest propriety, particularly as the same indulgence I mean to ask has been granted to sundry gentlemen in the American service, both by Generals Carleton and Howe, and a compliance with which I presume can be of no disadvantage to the American cause. Necessity obliges me to ask leave to go to New-York for thirty days, on parole, in order to negotiate some private affairs, as I am the elder brother of a long family, who are very young, and unable to help themselves, and must necessarily view me in the light of a parent; and my confinement having prevented every opportunity of hearing from my agent, the want of which may not only injure myself, but militate very much against my brothers and sisters; and as you are a gentleman of humanity, I beg leave to request you will represent my situation to the Governour, and use your influence to obtain this favour, which shall ever be gratefully acknowledged by, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

Ter. McDermott.

George Wyllys, Esq.

PAROLE OF TERENCE M'DERMOTT.

In consequence of a particular favour granted me by his Honour Governour Trumbull, in giving me liberty to go to New-York for thirty-one days, on parole, to transact private affairs of my own, I, Terence McDermott, an officer in his Britannick Majesty's service, do promise and engage, on the word and honour of a gentlemen and soldier, that I will not convey any intelligence, say or do any thing prejudicial to these States; and also, that I will not bear arms against the same until exchanged; and that I will, within thirty-one days from the date hereof, deliver myself up to Governour Trumbull, unless within that time I obtain the liberty of some gentleman of equal rank in the American service, who shall be approved of by his Honour the Governour, or any other person he shall be pleased to appoint. I likewise give my honour that my business shall be entirely confined to my own private affairs.

In Committee of Safety, December 25th, 1776.

Resolved to permit Mr. Terence McDermott, to go to New-York, upon the terms and for the time mentioned and proposed in the foregoing form of a parole, upon his executing and delivering the same to his Honour Governour Trumbull, in writing.

Attest: Benj. Huntington, Clerk.

MEMORANDUM.

If Governour Trumbull shall agree to accept of a gentleman in the Continental service, of Mr. McDurmott's rank, Mr. McDurmott will use his influence to have one of equal rank set at liberty. Young Mr. Wylliss, he flatters himself, he will obtain liberty for. If this cannot be effected, Mr. Durmott will give any security the Governour pleases to ask, that he will return in less than thirty-one days, and will, during that term, consider himself bound in honour by his parole, which shall be faithfully kept by him.

Mr. Babbage, Captain Hays, Lieutenants Feltham and Richardson, and sundry others, have obtained liberty, some of them to go home, and others into General Howe's camp for a certain time, on private business.

STEPHEN HOPKINS TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Providence, December 25, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: We, the Committees appointed by the States of the Massachusetts-Bay, Connecticut, New-Hampshire, and Rhode-Island, to consider of the measures to be taken at this critical conjuncture for the common defence, and now convened at Providence, are of opinion that the enemy, having with a large body of land forces and a great number of ships-of-war and transports, taken possession of the Island of Rhode-Island and the Narragansett-Bay, will penetrate the country, unless a sufficient force be kept up to repel them; that their taking possession of this town will be attended with the most pernicious consequences to New-England, and, of course, to all the United States; and that for the immediate defence and security of New-England, it is necessary that the forces from your State under the command of Major-General Lincoln, ordered to march, or who may be marching, through this town, be retained here until a proper representation of the matter be made to Congress, and they give orders therein, or unless some further movements of the enemy shall make it necessary to march them elsewhere. We are fully convinced that the Militia, called suddenly upon an alarm, and quite impatient of fatigue and discipline, will prove ineffectual to oppose so large a body of the enemy; and as we have information that the enemy have taken on board their transports a quantity of hay and straw, and embarked a considerable number of troops, we are induced the more strongly to recommend the measure.

We submit this representation, and desire you would give orders to General Lincoln, who hath been appointed by the State of Rhode-Island to the command of all the forces in it, to continue his troops here until further orders from you, or if it shall be necessary, to march them elsewhere.

We are, very respectfully, honourable gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servants.

Signed in behalf of the Committee, by STEPHEN HOPKINS, President.

To the Hon. James Bowdoin, President of the Council of the Massachusetts-Bay.

MASSACHUSETTS BOARD OF WAR TO JOHN WATSON.

War Office, Boston, December 25th, 1776.

SIR: The Board of War for this State having occasion for two hundred hogsheads of tobacco; and being recommended to you by Mr. Simeon Eliot, tobacconist of this town, as a gentleman that could supply us with that quantity at thirty shillings per hundred weight, to be delivered here free of charge, desire you would as soon as possible let us hear from you, advising whether you can supply us at the same. If the proposal is agreeable to you, will immediately send the same to Boston by teams, and your draft on the Board for the pay of the same, as soon as the tobacco is delivered, shall be duly honoured.

By order of the Board:

COLONEL WHITE'S STATEMENT OF AFFAIRS IN AMERICA.

London, February 25, 1777.

Yesterday Lieutenant-Colonel White, Aid-de-Camp to General Howe, arrived at Lord George Germain's office, from America, with the following intelligence: That about Christmas last, General Washington, at the head of a large body of Provincials, attacked the left wing of the King's forces near Trentown, in New-Jersey, consisting of several brigades of Hessians. The night preceding the grand affair, they drove in our advanced posts, and the next morning began their attack very briskly about six o'clock, when, after a smart engagement, the Hessians, who were unfortunately detached, were routed, seven hundred of whom were taken prisoners, and their Colonel, Reyne, killed. The Forty-Ninth and Seventeenth Regiments of British were ordered to advance to bring off Dunhoff's corps, which they effected, but with great loss. The left of our Army is now at Princess-Town, in the midway between New-York and Philadelphia, and about twenty miles from Trentown. He further adds, that General Lee was made prisoner by Colonel Harcourt, who had marched near forty miles from the Army with his party of forty Light-Dragoons, who surrounded the head-quarters of the Rebel General, about three miles from the Provincial Army, which was guarded by near fifty men; that on hearing the firing, General Lee ran to the door, with two French officers, one of whom was shot dead by his side; that being thus taken by surprise, he was put upon a horse, and galloped off with in despite of all his overtures for a parley; that Lee, when he was brought in, demanded to be received under the proclamation; but on being refused the benefit thereof, and told that he would be tried as a deserter, he flew into the most unbounded rage, and exclaimed against the repeated acts of false faith and treachery which had reduced him to his present situation. He is now a close prisoner at Brunswick.

Colonel White further says, that the Congress had removed from Philadelphia, on the approach of General Howe, to Lancaster, about forty-five miles distant from their late place; that it was now rendered very contemptible by the divisions that had long agitated it, and the revolt of several of its principal members, particularly the family of the Alleynes, who had all quitted their seats in this Congressional Senate, come in to Government, and taken the benefit of the proclamation; that General Washington continues to occupy the heights, with a reduced and mutinous force of about ten thousand men; for that the time being up of the principal part of the Rebel Army, they were quitting the service, and returning home in a state the most wretched and discontented, &c.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE ACTION AT TRENTON; WRITTEN BEFORE THE AMERICAN ACCOUNT OF IT ARRIVED IN ENGLAND.

London, February, 1777.

As the capture of the Hessians and the manœuvres against the British took place after the surprise of General Lee, we find that Lee is not the only efficient officer in the American service. We find also, that the mere running through a Province is not the subduing of it. It is a bad rule to think the fate of America decided by the transient possession of open villages and hamlets; and those who adopt this rule, are in danger of the poet's satire:

> While their weak heads, like towns unfortified,
> 'Twixt sense and nonsense daily change their side.

General Howe has lately been obliged to relinquish West-Jersey and White-Plains, quite up to King's Bridge; and who knows that the taking even of Philadelphia may'nt be more lasting. Charles the Third twice entered Madrid, and was twice forced to retreat from thence: Charles, however, was always King of Spain—in the neighbourhood of his Army.

It is likewise a bad rule to call ourselves prosperous in proportion as we penetrate the country; for our danger increases in proportion to our distance from the fleet, and our dispersion. Perhaps the small scale of our maps deceives us; and as the word America takes up no more room than the word Yorkshire, we seem to think the territories they represent much of the same bigness: though Charles-Town is as far from Boston, as London is from Venice. Braddock might tell the difficulties of this loose, rugged country, were he living. Amherst may still do it. Yet these officers found a willing people to help them; and General Howe finds nothing willing.

Well may the Brothers be at a loss for the next campaign, when there is no ruling fortress to direct them, the attack and possession of which would give them command over the country. We have undertaken a war against farmers and farm-houses, scattered through a wild waste of continent, and shall soon be mortified at hearing our General obliged to garrison woods, and scale rocks and mountains, to wait for boats and pontoons at rivers, and to have many of his convoys and escorts as large as armies. These, and a thousand such difficulties, will rise upon us in the next stage of the war. I say next stage, because we have hitherto spent one campaign and some millions, in losing one landing place at Boston; and at the charge of seven millions and a second campaign, we have replaced it with two other landing places (or sally-ports) at Rhode-Island and New-York. Men with military ideas must allow that the war itself but opens in the ensuing campaign. But I believe the English nation won't always rest contented, if our success is to meet with a full stop, whenever "the Rebels throw themselves into strong holds," and "a strong country;" particularly should the major part of the country prove cast into the same mould.

The success of a war of parties must necessarily be various, were it only from the accidental difference of numbers in those parties. The advantages in these actions, for some years to come, will probably be in our favour; but we shall at last certainly teach them how to beat us. I would in the mean time recommend it to each side to be calm and moderate; for often one side has for a month or two, perhaps, been revelling in the triumph of victory, a defeat may come and damp their spirits for the following month: like the vibrating of a balance, which at last, however, must settle with the heavier weight. All the events that have yet taken place in America, are trivial and bloodless, compared with what we may hereafter expect from thence. Horrour runs through me, when I think of the prospect.

As we seem pleasant and well satisfied, at the idea of largely augmenting our forces in America, I must tell your readers, (what they don't all of them know,) that an army generally loses one fourth of its whole numbers every campaign, from slaughter, sickness, and so forth.* Notwithstanding the seeming inactivity of our Army last year, it has shrunk away so fast, and is so incomplete, that by the time the transports arrive in May, these reinforcements will turn out to be only recruits, and this must be done over again every year. But recruiting in Germany will perhaps soon go on heavily; and so I think it ought, if we must pay them not only for all we inlist, but for all we lose.

The Brothers, as I understand, have sent for more assistance, a great part of which they must be refused. The request, I think, is a signal of their fears, and intimates that they mean to throw the blame of ill success from themselves upon the Ministry, to whom it certainly belongs. They speak truly, however; they must have a much larger force to do any thing effectual.

I am entirely of opinion with Voltaire, that every great conqueror must be a great politician. Something more is required than the mere mechanical business of fighting, in composing revolts, and bringing back things to their former order, for any length of time. When General Howe talks so peevishly of the burning of New-York and the murder of Captain Philips, he throws aside all memory of the burning of Falmouth and other towns, and of the conduct of the Hessians, who, like other mercenaries, can't be kept attached without much license and plunder. He ought to have known that New-York was evacuated by order of Congress, to prevent its being burnt, and that nothing is more common in war than the resentment of the peasantry. When he says, however, with respect to the fate of this unfortunate youth, that "the enemy seem from several late instances to have adopted this mode of war," he confesses that the fact, supposing his idea of it well founded, is both new and unfrequent. But I never indulge in personalities. The characters of the Brothers were once respectable, and I could willingly have praised them; but I shall leave the spoiling of those characters to themselves.

I am, sir, yours, &c., A. B.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOUR OF VIRGINIA.

By his Excellency PATRICK HENRY, Jun., Esq., Governour or Chief Magistrate of the Commonwealth of Virginia: A Proclamation.

Whereas the present critical situation of American affairs renders necessary the utmost exertion of every sister State, to put a speedy end to the cruel ravages of a haughty and inveterate enemy, and secure our invaluable rights: I have therefore thought proper, by and with the advice of the Privy Council, to issue this my Proclamation, hereby most earnestly exhorting and requiring the several County Lieutenants, and other officers of the Militia within this Commonwealth, and all other subjects of the same, forthwith to use their utmost endeavours to associate so many Companies of Volunteers as may be willing to engage in the defence of this State, or march to the assistance of any other, should the exigency of things demand it, and, without loss of time, to inform me of their success in this business. Each Company must consist of sixty-eight men rank and file, under one Captain, two Lieutenants, and an Ensign, to be chosen by the Company. It will be necessary that the men should furnish themselves with the best guns and other arms which can be procured, also powder-horns, cartouch-boxes or pouches, and blankets.

And I do hereby promise, that all such persons as shall engage in this service shall receive the pay and rations provided by this State for their regular troops; also forage for such horses as they, or any of them, may find for the expeditious marching of the troops, and forwarding the same; and that such volunteers shall not be obliged to serve longer than the particular exigence that called them forth continues, or their place can be supplied by regular troops.

Given under my hand, this 26th day of December, in the first year of the Commonwealth, and in the year of our Lord 1776.

PATRICK HENRY, Jun.

JAMES LLOYD CHAMBERLAINE TO DANIEL OF ST. THOMAS JENIFER.

Talbot County, December 26th, 1776.

SIR: A sincere desire to render my country every service in my power, induced me to accept the enclosed commission; but finding myself disappointed, that many of us rather disposed to quarrel with his neighbour than face the enemy, that a general discontent prevails, and unwillingness in the people to do any duty or even attend musters, and a disregard to any sort of order, several battalions without field officers, and others absolutely refusing to obey the commands of those appointed over them, has determined me to resign that commission with which I was honoured by the Convention; and wish he that succeeds me may give general satisfaction.

I am, with the greatest respect, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JAS. LLOYD CHAMBERLAINE.

To the Hon'ble the President of the Council of Safety, in Annapolis.

---

DANIEL OF ST. THOMAS JENIFER TO COLONEL PLATER.

Stepney, December 26th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed you have a letter from the President of the Board of War, and the proposed answer to it from our Board, which, if approved by you, I. M. Thomas may be sent on to Colonel Hale for his assent, in order to save time.

With my compliments to Mrs. Plater, I am your obedient servant,

DAN'L OF ST. THOS. JENIFER.

To the Hon'ble Colonel Plater.

P. S. I have kept a copy of the letter to Mr. H., and will bring it to town with me. It will save time; and the post be permitted to proceed without calling upon one of our clerks.

MEMORIAL.

To the Honourable Mr. HANCOCK, President of the Continental Congress:

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: I am conscious of no crime. I see nothing in the whole career of my life that can appear inconsistent with the nicest principles of probity and military honour. I should be sorry that this supplication should be understood as the insinuations of an injured officer, rather than the humble effusions of a soul which has always been a stranger to inaction. Yes, honourable gentlemen, there is nothing which my heart aspires to more than to demonstrate the purity of my sentiments, in that grand field of glory which this alarming crisis opens to our view. If, therefore, the honourable members of Congress be pleased to grant me the honour of finishing this campaign with my regiment, I solemnly pledge my honour, in the presence of God and the Congress, that I will appear at my trial when required.

I am, with the most profound respect, most honourable gentlemen, your most humble and obedient servant,

MEYNIERE,
Officer of the American service.

ROBERT MORRIS TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

December 26th, 1776.

Sir: I have just received by the return of Pluckrose, the express, your favour of the 23d, and am very happy to find my conduct merits the approbation of Congress. They may depend on my utmost exertions to promote the publick good on every occasion that offers; and it is with singular pleasure I communicate any thing that will give you satisfaction, as I know what follows must.

Captain Charles Alexander, whom I sent up to Colonel Cadwalader for a few tradesmen, necessary to finish his sloop, says that whilst he was with the Colonel, a note came in from Trentown, giving an account that General Washington is now master of that place; that he had sent down to the ferry three hundred prisoners; had taken all the enemy's baggage and stores at that place; that the action had been pretty hot, for an hour or an hour and a half; that the British then run away towards Bordenton, and our people after them. This account is just confirmed by a letter from Mr. Barclay to Mr. Mease, who says Mr. Tilghman had come down to the ferry and gave him the account. This manœuvre of the General had been determined on some days ago, but he kept it secret as the nature of the service would admit. Colonel Cadwalader and General Ewing had orders to cross the river from their respective posts at the same time the General crossed from his, but the ice driving down from the falls impeded, and indeed prevented them from effecting this business. Colonel Cadwalader got over one thousand men near Burlington; but could not land his artillery on account of the ice, and this day being such extreme bad weather, he was compelled to bring them back; but on receiving the advice from Trenton, he determined to go again. I am confident he will be over this night; and I do suppose General Ewing will not remain of this side; so that, if General Washington does but follow up the blow and pursue them downwards, I think this will prove a mortal stroke to the enemy's intended expedition against this city.

Colonel Griffin is returned from his expedition, after a little skirmishing, as the enemy brought too powerful a body against him; however, about four hundred Jersey Militia remain at Mount-Holly, and I think General Putnam should reinforce them, as here are lately come in a considerable number of Militia. Indeed, I believe he has sent over a reinforcement, but to-morrow morning I will speak to him on this subject, as it is now too late at night.

Mr. Sherman arrived here yesterday. I have not seen, but am told, he brings an account that General Heath has crossed the North River, retaken Fort Lee and Hackensack, with all the baggage and stores at those places, and one hundred and thirty prisoners; and that he was employing wagons to remove the stores into places of greater safety. And from another quarter I am told General Washington, previous to his attack on Trentown, had given General Heath suitable orders.

You will observe I am not perfectly master of General Washington's plan. But it appears to me that he has directed General Heath to continue his march in the enemy's rear. Those that are between Huckensack and Trentown will be drawn off from General Washington, and leave him to pursue the flying heroes towards Burlington, where I expect Colonel Cadwalader will cut off the communication between them and about two thousand Hessians and Highlanders, that came to Moore's Town against Griffin. If this is the plan, I think it well laid; and if the General is properly supported in the execution, why shall we not put a glorious end to the campaign of 1776? It must, I had like to say it shall be so.

Captain Robinson, of the Andrew Doria, tells me just now that he hears his prize-sloop is got up to the chevaux-de-frise; and as this is the first of King George's own vessels that we have taken, I should be glad the Congress would order her into their service, and give the command of her to Lieutenant Dunn, of the Andrew Doria, who has been in the service from the first, and is said to be an officer of merit. Should General Washington follow up his blow, we may get time to fit out all the vessels; but if Howe comes here, we cannot do it for want of tradesmen.

The letter for General Washington, from Congress, shall be sent to him in the morning by Major Pierce, and a copy of the resolves you enclosed. I suppose there is a copy in the letter to him, but as you do not mention it I think it best to send them.

I am happy to find the attention Congress have paid to General Lee, and flatter myself they will be well pleased to learn that I had wrote a letter to him, enclosing a bill drawn by two officers of the Royal Highland Emigrants, on Major Small, for one hundred and sixteen pounds sterling, that had been supplied them by my friends in Carolina, where they are prisoners. This letter I sent open to General Washington, who promised to send it in with a flag; and in that letter I told General Lee I hoped he would be permitted to write me when he wanted more money, and he might depend on receiving it. Notwithstanding the supply I sent in, I shall desire General Washington to send a flag to know if gold will be admitted, and I will make a point to collect it.

Mr. Walton is now here. We have sent for Mr. Clymer, and to-morrow we shall enter on business as Committee men; and if our best endeavours to serve the publick can secure the approbation of Congress, we shall have it.

The enclosed letter from the General to your Honour being directed to you here, I judged it best to open it. I shall keep the contents to myself, as I shall of all letters of that kind; but I mentioned to the General what he deemed good news from France, and it had a good effect.

I am, most truly, sir, your most humble servant,

Robt. Morris.

ROBERT MORRIS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, December 26, 1776.

Dear Sir: I have just received yours of yesterday, and will duly attend to those things you recommend to my consideration. At present, I have to enclose you a letter from Congress, which I suppose contains their resolves of the 20th instant; but as the President does not say in his letter to me that they are enclosed to you, and as it is necessary you should have them, I take the liberty to send herewith a copy of them.

I am well pleased to see the attention they pay to General Lee, and I shall make a point to collect and send your Excellency soon as possible the one hundred half-johannes they order.

You'll observe Mr. Clymer, Mr. Walton, and myself, are appointed a Committee to transact the Continental business here that may be necessary and proper, and I apprehend it will frequently be necessary that we should know the substance of your correspondence with Congress. Your letters to the President, if sent open, under our cover, shall always meet despatch, and their contents kept secret. And when you think it improper we should see them before the Congress, seal them, and they shall go forward untouched; and if you don't approve of submitting them to our inspection at all, write us freely, and your wishes in that respect shall be complied with.

We have just heard of your success at Trenton. The account is but imperfect, but we learn you are master of that place and of all the baggage and stores our enemies had there, and of three hundred prisoners, and that your troops were still in pursuit of the flying enemy. I have just wrote to Congress, and told them this much, as the substance of our account just come down; and I told them further, I had been informed that you had executed in this matter your part of a well-concerted plan; that General Heath, at Hackensack, had orders from you, and that General Ewing and Colonel Cadwalader also had orders to cross Delaware at the same time you did, but had been prevented by driving ice. Good news sets all the animal spirits to work; the imagination is heated, and I could not help adding, that I expected General Heath was to continue his march towards Brunswick, which would draw the attention of any troops posted there and at Prince-Town, whilst you would pursue the flying heroes to Bordenton and Burlington, where Ewing and Cadwalader would stop them, and cut off their communication with the two thousand Hessians and Highlanders that came after Griffin; nay, I almost promised them that you should, by following up this first blow, finish the campaign of 1776 with that eclat that your numerous friends and admirers have long wished for.

I congratulate you most heartily on what is done, and am, with perfect esteem, dear sir, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

ROBT. MORRIS.

To his Excellency George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief, &c.

COLONEL CADWALADER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Bristol, 26th December, 1776.

SIR: The river was so full of ice that it was impossible to pass above Bristol, where I intended, and therefore concluded to make an attempt at Dunks's Ferry. As soon as it was dark, I sent down all the boats I could muster, and marched down about eight o'clock. I embarked a few men to line the river, and prevent any person escaping to give intelligence to the enemy; and these were followed by a part of the First Battalion of Militia; then two field-pieces, with which I went over to see if it was practicable to land them, and, upon examination, found it was impossible, the ice being very thick. Upon reporting this to the field-officers, they were all of opinion that it would not be proper to proceed without cannon. During this time the Third Battalion was landed. We concluded to withdraw the troops that had passed, but could not effect it till near four o'clock this morning. The whole then were ordered to march for Bristol. I imagine the badness of the night must have prevented you from passing as you intended. Our men turned out cheerfully. We had about eighteen hundred rank and file, including artillery. It will be impossible for the enemy to pass the river till the ice will bear.

Would it not be proper to attempt to cross below and join General Putnam, who was to go over from Philadelphia to-day with five hundred men, which number, added to the four hundred Jersey Militia which Colonel Griffin left there, would make a formidable body? This would cause a diversion that would favour any attempt you may design in future, and would expose their baggage and stores if they attempted to cross. It is impossible in our present situation to cooperate with General Putnam. The Militia will be easier kept together by being in motion, and we shall have some service from Colonel Hitchcock's brigade, whose time of inlistment will be up in a few days. We have procured a considerable number of shoes, stockings, and breeches, for them. They are in good spirits, and inlist very fast.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN CADWALADER.

To his Excellency General Washington.

---

COLONEL CADWALADER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Bristol, 26th December, 1776—nine o'clock.

SIR: We are now perfectly prepared, and would cross immediately, but the troops lost their rest last night. We have determined to pass over to the neck of land a little above Bristol, at six o'clock in the morning, proceed to Russel, down the Square, and from thence to Bordenton. I imagine if a part of your Army was to take possession of the other side of Crosswix Bridge, which is a pass easily defended, and the main body march round by Crosswix, we might perfectly surround the troops at Bordenton, so as to prevent one man from escaping. There are about two hundred men posted at White Hill, which post may be easily seized, and will be a commanding one for us. If possible, I should be glad to hear from you before we set off.

General Putnam was to cross at Philadelphia to-day, if the weather permitted, with one thousand men. Three hundred went over yesterday, and five hundred Jersey Militia are now there, as Colonel Griffin informs me to-day. These corps compose a formidable force. The plan would be more complete if General Putnam was one day's march advanced.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most humble servant,

JOHN CADWALADER.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A PRISONER IN NEW-YORK TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-LONDON, CONNECTICUT, DATED 26TH DECEMBER, 1776.

The distress of the prisoners cannot be communicated by words. Twenty or thirty die every day. They lie in heaps unburied. What numbers of my countrymen have died by cold and hunger, perished for want of the common necessaries of life! I have seen it. This, sir, is the boasted British clemency! I myself had well-nigh perished under it. The New-England people can have no idea of such barbarous policy. Nothing can stop such treatment but retaliation. I ever despised private revenge, but that of the publick must be in this case just and necessary. It is due to the manes of our murdered countrymen; and that alone can protect the survivors in the like situation. Rather than experience again their barbarity and insults, may I fall by the sword of the Hessians.

I am, &c.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Peek's Kill, December 26th, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Yesterday General Wadsworth's brigade went home, leaving the stores without a guard until I sent one down.

The Militia of this State are coming in. None have as yet arrived from the eastward. Brigadier-General Warner was at Danbury the last night, with four companies only; more are hourly expected. General Lincoln is on the road. I have sent your Excellency's letter by express to meet him.

I have received per Colonel Sheldon, one hundred and fifty-six thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars, and shall apply them to the purposes directed by your Excellency.

The case of the regiments of General Lee and Sullivan's divisions, which are divided, partly at your Excellency's camp and partly here, will be very difficult. The naked, convalescents, and sick, were left here. They constitute the greater part of the regiments, and cannot get home with out their wages, being destitute of money; and unless the Colonels who are with your Excellency, send the men's wages to them, they will suffer. Colonel Read and Colonel Little are here, with such of their regiments as were left behind. I shall endeavour to secure all the arms, accoutrements, ammunition, &c., which are in the hands of the troops belonging to the States, before they leave the camp, if possible.

I find by your Excellency's orders of the 21st of January last, that such recruits as should find "their own arms, provided they were good, should be allowed one dollar for the use of them." I should be glad to be informed if there was another order that such as had arms found them should pay the like sum for the use of them. Such an order I thought there was, but cannot find it as yet, and therefore request a determination from your Excellency; until which I shall delay the payment of the December abstracts.

The state of the reginent of Artillery, a corps most essential to an army, is such that I cannot omit making mention of it to your Excellency. Many of those who are here would have inlisted, but no attempts have been made towards it. They will all go home in a few days, and we shall not have men to discharge a cannon, unless I can prevail upon some of them to continue until I hear from your Excellency.

The Convention of this State, for about a fortnight, have been meditating a secret expedition. It is still a profound secret, but talked of every where. This, or some other intention of the enemy, has induced them, as I am just informed, to send a brigade of Hessians up to King's Bridge.

The moment I am able I shall pay attention to West-Chester County. I have ordered a regiment down to-morrow, and hope, ere long, not only to curb the disaffected and pick up some of the enemy, but also avail myself of quantities of forage from that quarter.

It is reported here that your Excellency has lately given orders respecting such plunder as may be taken from the enemy, or those who take up arms against us. If any new orders have been given in this respect, I should beg to be acquainted with them.

As soon as the tents, arms, tools, &c., are collected and stored, a return of all the stores shall be made to your Excellency.

I should be glad to know if your Excellency would have the artificers again engaged, or any part of them, and whether in a distinct corps, or taken from the regiments, as has been practised heretofore.

I have the honour to be, most respectfully, your Excellency's most humble servant,

W. Heath.

His Excellency General Washington.

---

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Peekskill, 26th December, 1776.

Honoured Sir: I came to this place this day, and by Sunday shall leave it, on my way through Crum-Pond, North-Castle, Horse-Neck, &c., for Hartford, where I expect to spend most part of the winter, in preparing and laying my accounts before auditors. We have nothing new. I am in good health except a bad cold.

I am, honoured sir, your dutiful son,

Jos. Trumbull.

Governour Trumbull.

---

GENERAL HEATH TO COLONEL THOMAS.

Peekskill, December 26th, 1776.

Sir: You are immediately to march the regiment under your command to North-Castle. You will there protect the teamsters who will be sent down to that place to remove a number of sleds, &c. When that is done, you will post your regiment in such manner as to give protection to the well-affected, to curb the disaffected, and prevent any light parties of the enemy from ravaging the country. You will keep a most vigilant look-out, and keep patrolling parties constantly between your troops and the enemy. You will give frequent intelligence of any discoveries which you may make of the enemy, or of any quantities of forage that you may discover. You will keep your troops under strict order and discipline, and prevent abuses. When the time to which your regiment is engaged expires, you will carefully return such arms, accoutrements, and ammunition, as they may have at any time received from the publick stores. The Militia of West-Chester County, who have been ordered by the honourable Convention of the State of New-York to rendezvous at North-Castle, you will (unless some other superiour officer should be there) post in such manner as best to effect the purposes for which you are sent on command. If you can prevail on your regiment to continue ten days longer in the service, after the expiration of their present inlistment, I think it will promote the service.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

W. Heath, M. G.

To Colonel Thomas Thomas.

GENERAL HEATH TO COLONEL PALFREY.

Peeks Kill, December 26th, 1776.

Dear Sir: I received your favour of the 17th instant of Colonel Sheldon, with one hundred and fifty-six thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars, in Continental bills, for the payment of the troops, &c. I am much pleased with your nomination of Mr. Hazard for your next deputy at this place. I sent for him the next morning, but found that he was gone to Philadelphia, where, perhaps, you may have seen him. I afterward sent to Mr. Glover, who is so much indisposed as wholly to decline acting in that capacity. I have therefore appointed Major Huntington to officiate pro tempore, until Mr. Hazard returns, when I hope to prevail upon him to accept the trust. I have delivered to Major Huntington twenty-six thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars; the remainder is still in my care. There are to be paid off here five regiments of General Parsons's brigade, five of General George Clinton's, one of General James Clinton. General Wadsworth's brigade, and Colonel Read and Little, who are here with the greater part of their regiments, are soliciting that theirs may be paid here also. Colonel Read has, however, since sent an officer to you. He has doubtless ere this time been with you. One of the Colonel Douglasses, of the late Connecticut Militia, has an abstract examined by you, and the warrant wrote but not signed. He has sent to know if it can be paid here. If all these should be paid off here, and the recruiting officers should be successful, we shall ere long want more money. Colonel Sheldon tells me that he shall want a large sum as soon as Mr. Hazard returns. If he refuses, I will name some other person for your approbation, unless you will do it yourself. I shall take care that he complies with your directions.

I am, dear sir, yours affectionately,

W. Heath.

Colonel Palfrey.

PROCEEDINGS OF A GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL.

Peeks Kills, December 26th, 1776.

At a General Court-Martial held by order of Major-General Heath, for the trial of all such prisoners as might be brought before them, Colonel Wyllys, President of said Court.

|---|---|
| Lieut Colonel Cooper, | Captain Shippman, |
| Major Billings, | Captain Scott, |
| Captain Mills, | Captain Platt, |
| Captain Venton, | Captain Stewart, |
| Captain Teller, | Captain Graham, |
| Captain Barns, | Captain Blaine. |

Captain Jedadiah Hyde, Judge Advocate for said Court.

The Court met by adjournment of yesterday. The Court adjourned till Saturday, the 28th, at ten o'clock, at this place.

Saturday, December the 28th.—The Court met by adjournment.

Joseph Niclos, prisoner, being brought before the Court, being charged with desertion last March from Captain Perkins, of the Train; he being asked whether guilty or not, of the charge, pleads Not guilty.

As no evidences appears in support of the charge, the Court are of opinion that he be released from his confinement.

William Ogden, being brought before the Court upon a charge of secretly going into the prison room, the prisoner pleads not guilty of the charge.

And no evidences attending the Court to support the charge against him, the Court judge that the prisoner be released from confinement.

Thomas Joyce being brought before the Court, for fighting, being noisy in disturbing the Court, and taking eleven dollars for three handkerchiefs, from John Cole, when he ought to have had but seven and a half dollars, the prisoner pleads Not guilty.

Isaac Robinson, being sworn, declareth and sayeth, that he saw Thomas Joyce deliver three handkerchiefs to John Cole, and afterwards that said Joyce took one handkerchief back, and the deponent delivered the handkerchief to the above Riell. Tabell swears that Thomas Joyce bought one dozen silk handkerchiefs of him, the deponent, and that John Cole was about purchasing two handkerchiefs for his comrades, and one for himself, as an encouragement to them to inlist; and that Joyce sold this John Cole three handkerchiefs for two dollars and a half each, but afterwards this Joyce took one handkerchief back. Further says, that one was taken off the neck of the other; that said Cole demanded his change of Joyce, but refused to give any back, and said that Cole had had four.

Daniel Horn, being sworn, declares and says, that John Cole wanted him to inlist, and promised to give him a silk handkerchief for him and his messmates, upon which John Cole bought three handkerchiefs, and delivered the whole of the handkerchiefs to the deponent; upon which he took and tied one round his neck, and kept the other two in his hand; and he also saw Cole pay him, the said Joyce, eleven dollars and demanded the change, but Joyce refused to give any back, and confirms the above evidence in respect to the taking the handkerchief off his neck.

The Court having taken maturely into consideration the above evidences, adjudge the prisoner guilty of the crimes laid to his charge, and sentence him to receive on the naked back fifteen lashes, and to refund the change to John Cole.

Sam'l Wyllys, President.

I do approve of the foregoing sentences.

W. Heath, M. Gen'l.

COLONEL HUMFREY TO MAJOR BIRDSALL.

26 December, 1776.

Sir: I have just now received orders for the whole battalion to march on Wednesday next, towards North-Castle, there to remain till they may be relieved by new-raised levies; to be allowed sleighs or wagons to carry their baggage, and be in full pay. I hope you will prepare to march with the battalion. Your compliance will oblige your most humble servant,

WILLIAM HUMFREY.

To Major Benjamin Birdsill.

COLONEL SWARTWOUT TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fort Constitution, December 26th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I now send by the bearer, Ensign Weaver, two yoke of oxen and cart, which were the property of Mr. Frederick Van Cortland, at Kingsbridge. The oxen and cart was pressed, in order to carry the baggage of my regiment to the White-Plains from Peekskill: were sent with medicines to Fishkill, from which place I sent for them here, to haul down timber to make rafts; and as they can't be of any farther service here, have thought best to have them sent to you, gentlemen, to order with them as you think fit. You will be good enough to direct the bearer to whom he must deliver the cattle, and the receiver to give a receipt for them.

I am, gentlemen, with greatest respects, your very humble servant,

JACOBUS SWARTWOUT, Col.

To the Convention of the State of New-York, at Fishkills.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL HEATH.

In Committee of Safety for the State of New-York, } Fish Kill, December 26th, 1776. }

SIR: I this day received your favour of the 24th instant, which I laid before the Committee, in answer to your request, with regard to the disposition of the prisoners taken up for plundering inhabitants of this State. I am directed to transmit you the enclosed resolves, by which you will see the determinations of the Committee with respect to them. The Committee confide in your ready compliance with their request.

I am also directed to inform you that the troop of Horse, which were some time stationed at this place, some time since returned to Connecticut, with the consent and advice of the Convention of this State, on account of the scarcity of forage.

I am, sir, with respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

ABM. TEN BROECK, President.

Major-General Heath.

In Committee of Safety for the State of New-York, } Fishkill, December 26th, 1776. }

Resolved, That General Heath be requested to send the Prisoners now in confinement at Peeks Kill, for thefts and plundering the inhabitants of this State, under guard to the Gaol of Dutchess County, at Poukeepsie, there to remain till thence delivered by due course of law; and General Heath is farther requested to cause the names of the said prisoners to be transmitted to the Committee of Safety or Convention of this State, that a proper mittimus may issue to commit them.

Extract from the Minutes.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety of Connecticut, Middletown, December 26th, 1776--

Present: His Honour the Governour, his Honour the Deputy Governour, Jabez Huntington, William Williams, William Hillhouse, Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

Sundry Officers were appointed in the Continental service, instead of others that refused, as appears by the lists and arrangements.

BEATING ORDERS TO LIEUTENANT BURR.

To Lieutenant GEORGE BURR, greeting:

You being by the General Assembly of this State, holden at Middletown the 18th of December instant, appointed Ensign of a company, to consist of twenty men, including one Sergeant, to be stationed at Fairfield, and to continue in service one year from the first day of January next, unless sooner discharged, you are therefore hereby authorized and directed, forthwith to inlist and cause to be inlisted such company of able-bodied, effective men, who shall have and receive as an encouragement and reward, viz: Each non-commission officer and soldier finding himself a good blanket, twelve shillings, and for finding a good fire-arm, bayonet, cartouch-box, and accoutrements, and the acceptance of his chief officer, ten shillings, as a premium; and sixpence per diem for billeting from their inlisting until they shall be supplied by the publick, and one month's pay advanced; and shall have the following pay and wages, viz: Lieutenant, five pounds eight shillings; Sergeant, forty-eight shillings; and Privates, forty shillings, per calendar month; and are carefully and diligently to attend the duty of their offices and places, and may be called off on any special emergency for the relief of any places on the sea-coast of this State when attacked or in danger.

And considering the necessity of every exertion for defence against the invasion and ravages of our enemies, and the great demand for soldiers in more distant services, and for many other reasons, it cannot be doubted but you will be able immediately to fill up your said company.

Given under my hand, at Middletown, the 26th day of December, A. D. 1776.

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

PAROLE OF STEPHEN DE LANCEY.

Whereas I, the subscriber, of the city of Albany, and Province of New-York, have for some time past resided at Hartford, in the State of Connecticut, being apprehended and sent thither by the General Committee of the County of Albany, as a person suspected of disaffection to the United States of America; and whereas upon my application to his Honour Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of said State of Connecticut, hath permitted me to return to my family in the Province of New-York, and reside there till otherwise ordered: I do hereby pledge my faith and word of honour to said Governour Trumbull, that I will neither bear arms, nor excite or encourage others to bear arms, against this or any of the United States of America, and that I will not do or say any thing in prejudice of the interest or measures of this or any of the said United States of America, and that I will give no intelligence to the enemies of said States of any of the counsels, operations of war, or other the transactions of this or any of said States, and that I will return to any place in this State when required by his Honour Governour Trumbull, the General Assembly of Connecticut, or his Excellency the General of the Armies of said United States for the time being.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, this 26th December, 1776.

STEP'N DE LANCEY.

Boston, December 26, 1776.

Amongst the worthies who have joined, or put themselves under the protection of, Howe and company, at Trenton, we find the names of the following noted personages, viz:

James Galloway, Esq., late a member of the Congress, Speaker of the Pennsylvania Senate, and printer of a publick newspaper in Philadelphia.

John Allen, Esq., (son of the celebrated rhetorical, impartial, learned judge, whose memory will outlast the five mile stone,) late a member of the Philadelphia Committee of Observation, Inspection, &c.

Andrew Allen, Esq., (brother to Jack,) late a member of Congress, one of the Pennsylvania Committee of Safety, and, at the same time, a sworn advocate for George III., of Britain, and his creatures.

William Allen, Esq., (brother to Andrew,) late a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Continental service, which station he resigned—not because he was totally unfit for it, but because the Continental Congress presumed to declare the American States free and independent, without first asking the consent and obtaining the approbation of himself and wise family.

COLONEL GILMAN TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE ASSEMBLY.

Pembroke, 26 December, 1776.

HONOURED GENTLEMEN: I acquainted Doctor Green of his appointment as Surgeon to my regiment. His answer I enclose. As the House holds the appointment of a Surgeon sacred to themselves, I would not, neither do I desire, to take the prerogative to myself of appointing one. Mr. Bartlett waits on your Honours for that purpose. Should be glad he may be despatched as soon as possible. I should be glad if the advance pay and travelling money for my Adjutant and Surgeon, if one is appointed, may be sent by Mr. Bartlet. I should have set out this day for New-York, but am pretty sure the snow has hindered the march of the men for some days, but am in hopes they are generally on their march by this time.

I am, with respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

D. Gillman.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of New-Hampshire.

---

JAMES LYON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Machias, December 26th, 1776.

Honourable Gentlemen: Although obscure and unknown, I beg leave, with filial respect and confidence, to approach the supreme power of North-America, to which I esteem it a peculiar honour and happiness to be subject, on a publick errand, the importance of which must be ascertained by your better judgment.

Your Honours may easily recollect that Captain Jonathan Eddy, of Cumberland County, in Nova-Scotia, has twice waited upon Congress, requesting a small army to be employed subduing that Province. Your Honours best know what encouragement he received. The same gentleman asked the same favour of the Court of this State; and, as he informed us, the Court were pleased to grant him a small quantity of provision and powder, and orders to raise as many men in this eastern part of the State as he should see fit. Accordingly, relying much upon the readiness of the inhabitants of Nova-Scotia to favour his bold enterprise, he collected, if I mistake not, about thirty men; and with this formidable army he embarked in boats at this place in order to subdue a Province. His army grew, however, at every settlement he passed through on his way. When he arrived at Sheapody he surprised and took a small party of the enemy, who were posted there. When he reached Cumberland, the inhabitants joined him in general, and in a few days after, a sloop arrived with provisions, &c., for the fort, which they bravely took possession of, after the enemy had taken out a small proportion of the stores. With this sloop they also took the Chaplain of the fort, Mr. Eagleson, the Surgeon, Captain Barron, and near fifty men, which are sent to Boston. Upon our receiving this intelligence of their success, and being requested to send them all the assistance in our power, forty-nine of us immediately set out in boats, as a reinforcement, on the evening of the 9th instant. The first boat arrived at Sheapody, under the command of Lieutenant David Prescott, and who surprised and took four of the enemy at the house of one Deck, who, together with Mrs. Deck, informed him that a man-of-war and two armed brigs and two transports, had arrived at Cumberland, the 26th ultimo; and on the 29th the enemy sallied out of the fort, and drove our people entirely off. We lost one man, an inhabitant of Cumberland, and one Indian, a Mickmack. The loss on the other side unknown. That Captain Eddy and his party were on their march to this place, by way of Maugerville, on St. John's river. That the enemy burnt up almost all the stores our people had collected; burnt many of the houses and barns of our friends, and driven men, women, and children, almost naked into the woods. That Colonel Gorham had issued a proclamation, inviting the inhabitants to come in, and promising protection to the persons and property of those who would lay down their arms, till the King's pleasure should be known; and that many had actually complied. This unexpected news put a stop to our uncomfortable voyage, and obliged us to return. And when we had returned as far as St. John's, we met with Captain Samuel Hodgers, who was with Captain Eddy, and he confirms the above account.

I mention these things thus minutely, that the honourable Congress may know the exact state of that unhappy Province. It is more than probable that the wretched inhabitants will now be obliged to take up arms against us. Were I permitted to give my opinion respecting Nova-Scotia, I should say that it ought immediately to be subdued by a force sufficient to hold it when taken, and that these troops be inlisted during the war. I believe that five or six thousand would be sufficient, and that St. John's river should be strongly fortified in the first place, to secure a retreat and keep up a communication. This may be easily done, as nature has evidently designed it as a place of strength. I must add, that Province is much more valuable than is generally thought. It has a sea-coast of three hundred leagues at least, including the Bay of Fundy, and an excellent fishery near every shore, which is an endless source of provision, wealth, and seamen. It contains more land than Pennsylvania, and is capable (I boldly assert it, for I am acquainted with both countries) of supporting more inhabitants. This, however bold it may seem, I think I could demonstrate, were it necessary. I had almost forgot its navy-yard, which has cost Britain nearly a million of money, and would be an immensely valuable acquisition to this Continent. That harbour in our hands would be a sufficient protection to our fishery. But in the possession of Britain, or any other Power, our fishery, and, indeed, all our European commerce, would be in perpetual danger. Britain or France may have Newfoundland for what I care, till God enables us to rule the seas; but I fear that either of those Powers would be bad neighbours on the Continent. Halifax, I am sure, will be a bone of contention under any foreign jurisdiction. I strongly suspect that France, whose ambitious views your Honours are not ignorant of, intends to take immediate possession of her former dominions in America. This all the French gentlemen I have conversed with assert in so many words, and add, that Spain must have hers, else we shall be too formidable. We have, indeed, sufficient evidence to believe that neither of those Powers mean to quarrel with us at present, for our trade is an object most worthy of their attention. But if they take possession of the British dominions, which we either cannot or will not conquer, how can we complain with even a shadow of reason? A French ship, on pretence of springing a leak at sea, put into Halifax this summer on purpose to view its strength, which I have from a French gentleman who conversed with the pretended Captain of the ship, who was in reality the Captain of a frigate. Should both France and Spain assert what they call their right, I tremble for the consequences. Your Honours will doubtless duly consider these things, and act as you think proper. It matters not, I well know, whether I approve or disapprove of the measures of Congress, but it may not be amiss to say, that in my judgment, wisdom, moderation, genuine patriotism, and impregnable fortitude, form the amiable characteristicks of all the measures already pursued, and I will, I must, cordially acquiesce in all your wise determinations. I ardently wish, however, that a respectable armament may be sent into Nova-Scotia by the middle of next March at farthest, and I could wish to go with them. I should think an army, guarded by two or three of our frigates, would proceed with most safety by way of the Bay of Fundy, and a sufficient number of cannon, &c., might easily be conveyed across the country to a hill directly opposite the navy-yard, and Halifax is nearly within point blank shot of both. My worthy friend, John Allen, Esquire, of Cumberland, in Nova-Scotia, who is probably present with Congress, can doubtless corroborate the chief I have wrote.

I am, honourable gentlemen, very respectfully, your most humble, and dutiful servant and subject,

Jas. Lyon.

P. S. I blush to send my first thoughts to Congress in all their native rudeness and deformity, but time will not permit me to copy and correct them, and humbly beg to be excused.

To the honourable and grand Congress of North-America.

Williamsburgh, December 27, 1776.

Colonel Carrington, of the Artillery, just arrived from Hampton, brings us the agreeable intelligence of a most valuable cargo being gone up to Baltimore from Cape François, which comes in a brig that was sent out by Congress, and has on board eight hundred stands of arms, fifteen tons of gunpowder, a quantity of sulphur, and a very large assortment of blanketing and coarse cloths for the soldiery. A number of French passengers came in the vessel, one of them an officer of rank. The Captain of her says, that the French show the utmost civility and give every encouragement to the Americans, and have cruisers out to protect their trade; also that a declaration of war was every moment expected from the French Court. And that gunpowder, woolens, and almost every other kind of goods, were in great plenty at the Cape, and to be bought on good terms.

GEORGE WELLS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, December 27th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I take this opportunity of informing you that I have launched one of the row galleys, and that I shall push on the other as fast as possible. Please let me know how she is to be masted.

As I am informed that there is some sheet-lead in this town belonging to you, I'd be obliged to you to send me an order for some, as I want it for scuppers and magazine.

Please to send me per bearer, Mr. Barry, any further directions or commands you may have for me, which shall be punctually observed, by, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

GEORGE WELLS.

The hon'ble Council of Safety for the State of Maryland, Annapolis.

Gentlemen, please to send me per bearer, Mr. John Barry, the sum of seven hundred pounds, on account of the row galleys, and also the amount of the accounts for repairing the old vessels belonging to you, which accounts he carries, and you'll oblige your humble servant,

GEORGE WELLS.

To the hon'ble Council of Safety for the State of Maryland.

---

JOHN HALL TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

Annapolis, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: We are greatly embarrassed by your request to part with Captain Martin's vessel. She was purchased by our agent in the West-Indies, and is now claimed by Captain Stone, who hath replaced her, and we have undertaken to indemnify the Sheriff. If we part with her Congress must take the risk off our hands.

Should you want a fast-sailing vessel, there is a brig at Baltimore, taken by the ship Defence, which we ordered our agent to buy for this State. That vessel you may have, if she will suit Congress. We are unwilling to part with Martin's vessel, she being now laden, and we expect her cargo of coarse woolens, &c., now ready at Martinique or Eustatia. However, if the honourable Congress cannot supply them else otherwise, we must let them have the brig and cargo, upon the terms they request, with this addition, that the State ought to be indemnified. We shall keep matters a day or two, in expectation of hearing from you again.

For and on behalf of the Council.

I have the honour to be, your most obedient servant,

J. HALL.

To the Hon'ble Benjamin Harrison, Esq., President of the Board of War.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO ROBERT MORRIS.

Baltimore, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed resolves, which I do myself the honour of forwarding, will inform you of the steps taken by Congress in the present critical state of our affairs.

Your favour of the 23d instant came to hand, and was immediately laid before Congress. The uneasiness you mention therein, with regard to your want of proper powers, is no doubt by this time removed, Congress having authorized the Committee in Philadelphia to adopt such measures in the business of the Continent as they shall judge proper. You will, therefore, in conjunction with Mr. Clymer and Mr. Walton, act not only in Marine matters, but in all others, as you shall think necessary and most conducive to the publick good.

I wrote you some time ago, per express, informing you that Congress had appointed a Committee in Philadelphia, to conduct all publick business, and at the same time enclosed you their resolves. To them, therefore, as well as to those herewith transmitted, I beg leave to refer your attention, and have only time to assure you that I am, with great esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, Pres'dt.

The moment I can steal a little time, I will write you fully; till then you must excuse me.

To Robert Morris, Esq.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Baltimore, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed resolves, being of the utmost importance, will naturally claim your attention, without any particular recommendation or comment. They are evidently calculated to retrieve the situation of our affairs, and I trust will have the desired effect.

I have wrote to the Councils of Safety of Massachusetts-Bay and Pennsylvania, on the subject of erecting magazines in their respective States, for both arms and ammunition.

The commissions necessary in pursuance of the enclosed resolves, shall be forwarded as soon as possible. I have only time to add, that I am, with the most perfect esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, Pres'dt.

His Excellency General Washington.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, December 27th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour by Captain Casdrop, I duly received, and communicated to Congress. In consequence of which they directed two hundred thousand dollars to be advanced you, agreeably to your request, you to be accountable for the same, which sum is committed to the care of Captain Casdrop. I wish it safe to hand, and that it may answer valuable purposes. Being much engaged, can only add, that I am, with much esteem, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Council of Safety of Pennsylvania.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, December 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The great importance to the welfare of these United States of supporting the credit of the Continental currency, will suggest the propriety of the above resolve, which I am commanded by Congress to transmit to you, and to request you will take measures for an immediate compliance therewith. I have wrote to the General to give you every necessary assistance in carrying your determinations on this subject into effectual execution.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Council of Safety of Pennsylvania.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

Baltimore, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: After acknowledging the receipt of your favour of 13th instant, I am to inform you that some time since I transmitted a resolve, empowering you to import any quantity of rice from Carolina you should think proper. In addition to that resolve, the Congress have come to the enclosed, authorizing you (agreeably to your own plan) to import such quantities of flour and other provisions from the Southern States as you may judge necessary for the support of the Army. The Delegates of Virginia will write immediately to the Governour and Council of that State to contract for the delivery of ten thousand barrels of flour, to your order, for which purpose you will please to send vessels to take them in. Your drafts on me for payment thereof shall be duly honoured.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Joseph Trumbull, Esq., Commissary-General.

ROBERT MORRIS TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, December 27, 1776, ten o'clock, a. m.

SIR: Captain Peters informs me he has just seen a letter from Colonel Cadwalader, wrote late last night, to the Council of Safety, wherein he says he has no account from General Washington; but from private information that he can depend on, our victory at Trenton has been complete. The killed, wounded, and prisoners, are very considerable. That we have taken sixteen pieces of their cannon. A wagon load of Hessian arms, with some Hessians, were sent over the ferry. Colonel Cadwalader was to cross over from Bristol this morning, before day, with his whole force. General Putnam is now sending him a reinforcement of fifteen hundred men, and the gondolas, under command of General Mifflin, who is returned from a successful excursion.

We shall change the face of affairs, and I hope soon to see you back here.

I am, respectfully, yours, &c.,

ROBT. MORRIS.

P. S. Captain Peters will soon follow this, but he must go via Lancaster.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

COMMITTEE FOR TRANSACTING CONTINENTAL BUSINESS TO THOMAS SMITH.

Philadelphia, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: The Congress have thought proper to appoint us a Committee to transact all Continental business in this city that may be necessary and proper; and they have empowered us to draw on the Loan Office for such sums of money as may be wanted, little suspecting there was no such office or officer to be found in Philadelphia. For our parts, we have been impatiently waiting your return, and are sorry to say the publick service has suffered by your absence. Had we been possessed of the notes, we could have borrowed considerable sums, which may probably be otherwise disposed of by this time. We expect your immediate attendance, and are, sir, your humble servants,

ROBT. MORRIS,
GEO. CLYMER,
GEO. WALTON.

Thomas Smith, Esq., Lancaster.

---

ROBERT MORRIS TO BENJAMIN HOGELAND.

December 27th, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Fanning's battalion of Virginians are on their march for this place, and a detachment thereof, if not the whole regiment, may now be expected at the Head of Elk, either commanded by Colonel Fanning or by Colonel James James; therefore, soon as you receive this, send the letter herewith to the Head of Elk, and if they send a proper officer with an order, pay him, or either of them, two thousand dollars, take a receipt for it as received from you by my order, for the use of that battalion, and send the receipt to me, or keep it until further orders from, sir, your humble servant,

R. MORRIS.

Mr. Benjamin Hogeland.

---

ROBERT MORRIS TO COLONEL FLEMING.

December 27th, 1776.

SIR: We have just received your letter of the 27th instant, to the Secretary of the Board of War, and are glad to find your regiment on their march this way. But we cannot conceive it necessary to send tents or arms to the Head of Elk, as the troops can quarter in houses on their march, or may come by water from Christiana Bridge. Arms are not necessary, as there is no enemy in the way. Blankets, shoes and stockings, we will provide, if possible under our present circumstances.

General Washington has struck an unexpected stroke at Trenton, where he now reigns master. We hope to drive the enemy out of New-Jersey; and if you hasten up, you'll come in for a share of the glory.

Mr. Benjamin Hogeland, at Christiana Bridge, will supply you with two thousand dollars, which you'll please to send a proper officer to receive, and give a receipt for it. The amount will be charged to your account; therefore you must render an account of the expenditure of it on the behalf of the Committee of Congress left in this city to transact Continental business.

I am, sir, your very obedient servant,

ROBT. MORRIS.

To Colonel Fleming, of the Ninth Virginia Regiment, or the Commanding Officer.

---

CAPTAIN NICHOLSON TO SAMUEL PURVIANCE, JUN.

Philadelphia, December 27th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: An hour's detainment of the tide gives me an opportunity of writing the particulars of yesterday's action at Trenton. General Washington, with about four thousand men, crossed on the Christmas night, and surrounded the town. The enemy was surprised, and collected confusedly. After a short resistance, they grounded their arms, and surrendered to the amount of seven hundred and fifty (Hessians solely). They lost thirty killed and wounded, and we two killed and three or four wounded; Captain Washington among the last, who commanded the advanced party, but not mortally. Had the weather proved favourable, and the other three divisions got over, there would, I have no doubt, the whole of them shared the same fate with those. Their Light-Horse scampered away on the first alarm, and all those on the outskirts of the town made their escape, about as many as were taken. There are one Colonel, two Majors, four Captains, seven Lieutenants, and eight Ensigns, prisoners; with six field-pieces, two standards, and one thousand stand of arms, twenty drums; one Colonel wounded, and left on his parole in Trenton, our people having returned on this side again. We should have whipped them in the same manner at Bordentown, could our men under Colonel Cadwalader have crossed; but the weather and ice made it impossible.

This affair has given such amazing spirit to our people, that you might do any thing or go any where with them. We have vast numbers of fine Militia coming in momently, but none from our Province.

I believe an attack is intended to-morrow upon the Hessian main body at Bordentown, in which I intend serving with my people as Artillerymen, and are embarked for that purpose on board the galleys. Immediately it is over, (please God,) I intend down, and am doubtful if I can bring an anchor with me. But more of this hereafter. I am not pleased about it.

I am yours, most sincerely,

JAMES NICHOLSON.

To Samuel Purviance, Jun., Esq., Baltimore.

---

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: We have the pleasure to transmit you two letters, received this morning from Brigadier-General John Cadwalader, containing an account of an action between part of our Army, under the command of his Excellency General Washington, and part of the British Army. Other letters confirm the loss of the enemy, in killed and wounded and prisoners, to be very considerable.

We are sending off reinforcements of Militia, in hopes this very important blow may be followed up. The great advantage which will arise to our cause must be apparent. Our Militia were turning out by degrees, but this will give them a new stimulus; and we are in hopes our worthy General will not remain without proper succours.

It may afford Congress some satisfaction to be informed that this Council has maintained their authority in the fullest extent, notwithstanding the near approach of the enemy, and the confidence which the Tories and disaffected derived from that cause. It is necessary to inform you that we found ourselves frequently embarrassed with business relative to the Army, that properly lay in the War Office Department; but now understand, with much pleasure, that your honourable body has empowered some of their members to transact that business here.

By order of Council. I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

THOS. WHARTON, Jun., President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed letter we meant to send by express this morning, but was informed by Robert Morris, Esq., that he had despatched a messenger with an account of the successful expedition of our troops to Trenton. We thought proper to delay a few hours for a more particular account. We have since met with a private trusty hand, and take the freedom to enclose you a copy of a letter this minute received from an officer of distinction in the Army, giving a more particular account of that action than any we have yet received; which we congratulate the honourable Congress thereon. We have it also from good authority that many of the British light-horse are taken; the riders, thinking their situation rather dangerous, took to their heels and escaped. Besides the arms mentioned in the enclosed letter to have fallen into our hands, we have taken about two hundred stand in General Dickinson's house at Trenton.

By order of Council. I have the honour to be, respectfully, sir, your most obedient servant,

THOS. WHARTON, Jun., President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

[No. 1.] Bristol, 26th December, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: There was a general attack to be made last night. The river was impassable here, and we made the attempt at Dunker's Ferry, but found it impracticable to get over our cannon. We returned this morning to Bristol about four.

I this moment have an account by Mr. McLane, a man of veracity, that he was at Trenton Ferry this morning, and heard a very heavy firing on the river and Penny-Town roads, that leads to Trenton. The heavy firing lasted about an hour, and continued to moderate for three quarters of an hour. The Light-Horse and Hessians were seen flying in great confusion towards Bordentown, but without cannon or wagons, so that the enemy must have lost the whole. A party of our men intercepted about a dozen Hessians in sight of our people, on this side, and brought them to the ferry and huzzaed. I have ordered the boats from Dunks's, and shall pass as soon as possible. We can muster here about eighteen hundred men, if the expedition last night in the storm does not thin our ranks. Has General Putnam crossed, and with what numbers? Pray let me know. Every thing of this kind gives confidence to the troops. I have no doubt of the report. A heavy firing was heard at this place. An attempt was made to pass at, or a little below, Trenton Ferry, but could not get over. That would have made the victory still more complete.

I received the three boats about one o'clock at night; but have still detained the two most valuable—I mean those that carried down the twelve-pounders. They were ferry boats belonging to Dunks's. If the wind blows we cannot transport our cannon.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

JOHN CADWALADER.

[No. 2.] Bristol, 26th December, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I wrote this morning to General Washington, directed to General Irving, at Trenton Ferry, who informs me that he cannot yet ascertain the particulars of this morning's action. One wagon, loaded with arms, was brought down to the ferry, (Hessian arms,) and safe landed on this shore, and six Hessians. We have taken fourteen or sixteen pieces of cannon, a considerable quantity of stores and clothing. The number of killed, wounded, and prisoners, is very considerable.

We have got our boats up from Dunks's, and shall embark in the morning, before day. We are greatly at a loss for the boats you promised to send up to transport our cannon. I ordered the three horse-boats that arrived last night (which were very useful) to remain till further orders; but they went off last night. If the gundolas were to come up again, they would be of great use.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN CADWALADER.

Pray let the gundolas make the attempt, and return if impracticable to get up.

To the honourable the Council of Safety, Philadelphia.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER OF DISTINCTION AT NEWTOWN, BUCKS COUNTY.

Baltimore, January 1, 1777.

Yesterday Congress received the following intelligence from the Council of Safety, as come from "an officer of distinction in the Army," dated New-Town, Bucks County, December 27, 1776:

It was determined some days ago that our Army should pass over to Jersey, in three different places, and attack the enemy. Accordingly about two thousand five hundred men, and twenty brass field-pieces, with his Excellency General Washington at their head, and Major-General Sullivan and Greene in command of two divisions, passed over on the night of Christmas, and about three o'clock, a. m., were on their march by two routes towards Trenton. The night was sleety, and the roads so slippery that it was daybreak when we were two miles from Trenton. But happily the enemy were not apprised of our design, and our advanced party were on their guards at half a mile from the town, when General Sullivan's and General Greene's divisions soon came into the same road. Their guard gave our advanced party several smart fires as we drove them, but we soon got two field-pieces at play, and several others in a short time; and one of our Colonels pushing down on the right, while the others advanced on the left, into the town. The enemy, consisting of about fifteen hundred Hessians, under Colonel Rohl, formed and made some smart fires from the musketry and six field-pieces, but our people pressed from every quarter and drove them from their cannon. They retreated towards a field, behind a piece of wood, up the creek from Trenton, and formed in two bodies, which I expected would have brought on a smart engagement from the troops, who had formed very near them; but at that instant, as I came in full view of them, from the back of the wood, with his Excellency General Washington, an officer informed him that the party had grounded their arms and surrendered prisoners. The others soon followed their example, except a part which had got off in the hazy weather towards Princeton, and a party of their Light-Horse, which made off on our first appearance. Too much praise cannot be given to the officers of every regiment. By their active and spirited behaviour, they soon put an honourable issue to this glorious day.

I was immediately sent off with the prisoners to McKonkey's Ferry, and have got about seven hundred and fifty safe in town, and a few miles from here, on this side the ferry, viz: one Lieutenant-Colonel, two Majors, four Captains, seven Lieutenants, and eight Ensigns. We left Colonel Rohl, the commandant, wounded, on his parole, and several other officers and wounded men at Trenton. We lost but two of our men that I can hear of, a few wounded, and one brave officer, Captain Washington, who assisted in securing their artillery, shot in both hands. Indeed, every officer and private behaved well; and it was a most fortunate day to our arms, which I the more rejoice at, having an active part in it. The success of this day will greatly animate our friends, and add fresh courage to our new Army, which, when formed, will be sufficient to secure us from the depredations or insults of our enemy.

General Ewing's division could not pass at Trenton for the ice, which also impeded General Cadwalader passing over with all his cannon and the Militia, though part of his troops were over; and if the whole could have passed, we should have swept the coast to Philadelphia. We took three standards, six fine brass cannon, and about one thousand stands of arms.

Published by order of Council of Safety.

G. BICKHAM, Secretary pro tem.

By an authentick account received this morning, the following is a list of prisoners taken, viz: One Colonel, two Lieutenant-Colonels, three Majors, four Captains, eight Lieutenants, twelve Ensigns, two Surgeon-Mates, ninety-nine Sergeants, twenty-five Drummers, nine Musicians, twenty-five servants, and seven hundred and forty privates.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER IN THE AMERICAN ARMY, DATED NEWTOWN, (IN PENNSYLVANIA,) DECEMBER 27, 1776.

By Colonel I have the pleasure of giving you an account of an advantageous victory obtained over the Hessians yesterday. To give you a just idea of the affair, it will be necessary to give you some intelligence of the original plan of the attack. Something was necessary to check the progress of the enemy; it was therefore resolved by his Excellency to attack the Hessian Army at Trenton; for which purpose every thing was in readiness, and on Christmas night we marched down to the river with upwards of two thousand men and twelve pieces of artillery, at McConkey's Ferry, Delaware river, and at half after three o'clock began our march to Trenton. A colder or severer season I never felt; rain and hail, with high winds. But no difficulties were too much for our worthy commander to surmount at this important crisis. At eight o'clock we began the attack in several divisions; his Excellency commanded in person, and in about three quarters of an hour they surrendered. The killed on our part was four, and eight wounded. We intended the attack should have been before daylight, but the fatigue of marching and trouble of crossing the Delaware, detained us, which perhaps was fortunate, for we were told the enemy had been out at reveille beating, their wagons loaded, and ready for a retreat; but the extremity of the weather made them conclude we were not coming, (as they had information,) and so all turned in, and thought themselves quite secure. We began the attack with artillery and musketry; and too much praise cannot be given to our brave troops; his Excellency was pleased at their undaunted courage; not a soul was found cowardly skulking, but was fierce for the battle. Colonel was to have crossed opposite Bristol, and formed in junction with us. Had this been the case, we should have made prisoners of about two thousand. We took of the enemy, one Colonel, two Lieutenant-Colonels, three Majors, four Captains, eight Lieutenants, twelve Ensigns, one Judge-Advocate, two Surgeons' Mates, ninety-two Sergeants, twenty Drummers, nine Musicians, twenty-five officers' servants, seven hundred and forty rank and file; forty, or thereabouts, killed, about eighty wounded; six brass field-pieces, two of which were twelve-pounders, twelve brass-barrel drums, two kettle-drums, trumpets, clarionets, hautboys, &c., &c., &c.; four standards, twelve or thirteen hundred fine muskets, four wagons of baggage, two ditto loaded with Grenadiers' caps, swords, &c.; forty fine horses. We stove about forty hogsheads of rum we could not carry off.

The weather was so amazingly severe, our arms so wet, and men so fatigued, it was judged prudent to come immediately off with our prisoners and plunder. Further accounts you shall have as soon as I get leisure.

I could sincerely wish the printers would publish the American Crisis. It's well calculated, as it carries the truth with it, and will doubtless be of service at this time.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO ROBERT MORRIS.

Camp at Newton, December 27, 1776.

Dear Sir: I this minute received the honour of your favour of the 26th; and you may be assured that I shall with great pleasure transmit all my despatches to Congress through your hands, and unsealed. The enclosed to them will give you a full account of the attack on Trenton, and to which I beg leave to refer you. I regret much that the ice prevented Colonel Cadwalader from passing. Could he have got over with his troops, I am persuaded we should have been crowned with much success. The same cause hindered General Ewing. With his aid, to have seized the bridge leading from Trenton, not a Hessian would have escaped from thence. The situation of our troops, and the apprehension that the means of obtaining succour would become more difficult, made it necessary that we should return, in the opinion of the General Officers, with the prisoners we had taken.

I am, in haste, with great esteem, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

To Robert Morris, Esq.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 31st.]

Head-Quarters, Newtown, 27th December, 1776.

Sir: I have the pleasure of congratulating you upon the success of an enterprise which I had formed against a detachment of the enemy lying in Trenton, and which was executed yesterday morning.

The evening of the 25th I ordered the troops intended for this service to parade back of McKonkey's Ferry, that they might begin to pass as soon as it grew dark, imagining we should be able to throw them all over, with the necessary artillery, by twelve o'clock, and that we might easily arrive at Trenton by five in the morning, the distance being about nine miles. But the quantity of ice, made that night, impeded the passage of the boats so much, that it was three o'clock before the artillery could all be got over, and near four before the troops took up their line of march. This made me despair of surprising the town, as I well knew we could not reach it before the day was fairly broke. But as I was certain there was no making a retreat without being discovered and harassed on repassing the river, I determined to push on at all events. I formed my detachment into two divisions, one to march by the lower or river road, the other by the upper or Pennington road. As the divisions had nearly the same distance to march, I ordered each of them, immediately upon forcing the out-guards, to push directly into the town, that they might charge the enemy before they had time to form.

The upper division arrived at the enemy's advanced post exactly at eight o'clock; and in three minutes after I found, from the fire on the lower road, that that division had also got up. The out-guards made but small opposition, though, for their numbers, they behaved very well, keeping up a constant retreating fire from behind houses. We presently saw their main body formed; but from their motions they seemed undetermined how to act. Being hard pressed by our troops, who had already got possession of part of their artillery, they attempted to file off by a road on their right, leading to Princetown; but, perceiving their intention, I threw a body of troops in their way, which immediately checked them. Finding from our disposition that they were surrounded, and that they must inevitably be cut to pieces if they made any farther resistance, they agreed to lay down their arms. The number that submitted in this manner was twenty-three officers and eight hundred and eighty-six men. Colonel Rall, the commanding officer, and seven others, were found wounded in the town. I don't exactly know how many they had killed, but I fancy not above twenty or thirty, as they never made any regular stand. Our loss is very trifling indeed, only two officers and one or two privates wounded.

I find that the detachment of the enemy consisted of the three Hessian regiments of Lanspatch, Kniphausen, and Rohl, amounting to about fifteen hundred men, and a troop of British Light-Horse; but, immediately upon the beginning of the attack, all those who were not killed or taken, pushed directly down the road towards Bordentown. These would likewise have fallen into our hands, could my plan have been completely carried into execution. General Ewing was to have crossed before day at Trenton Ferry, and taken possession of the bridge leading out of town; but the quantity of ice was so great, that though he did every thing in his power to effect it, he could not get over. This difficulty also hindered General Cadwalader from crossing with the Pennsylvania Militia from Bristol. He got part of his foot over; but finding it impossible to embark his artillery, he was obliged to desist. I am fully confident, that could the troops under Generals Ewing and Cadwalader have passed the river, I should have been able, with their assistance, to have driven the enemy from all their posts below Trenton. But the numbers I had with me being inferiour to theirs below me, and a strong battalion of Light-Infantry being at Princetown above me, I thought it most prudent to return the same evening with the prisoners and the artillery we had taken. We found no stores of any consequence in the town.

In justice to the officers and men, I must add, that their behaviour upon this occasion reflects the highest honour upon them. The difficulty of passing the river in a very severe night, and their march through a violent storm of snow and hail, did not in the least abate their ardour; but, when they came to the charge, each seemed to vie with the other in pressing forward; and were I to give a preference to any particular corps, I should do great injustice to the others.

Colonel Baylor, my first Aid-de-Camp, will have the honour of delivering this to you; and from him you may be made acquainted with many other particulars. His spirited behaviour upon every occasion requires me to recommend him to your particular notice.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

Enclosed you have a particular list of the prisoners, artillery, and other stores.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Head-Quarters, Newtown, 27th December, 1776.

Dear Sir: Your favour of the 21st instant has come duly to hand, in which you have mentioned the receipt of my letters of the 16th and 18th of this month. I now enclose you a duplicate of the one dated the 21st, lest that should have miscarried.

I have the pleasure of congratulating you upon the success of an enterprise which I had formed against a detachment of the enemy lying in Trenton, and which was executed yesterday morning.

The evening of the 25th, I ordered the troops intended for this service, which were about two thousand four hundred, to parade back of McKonkey's Ferry, that they might begin to pass as soon as it grew dark, imagining we should be able to throw them all over, with the necessary artillery, by twelve o'clock, and that we might easily arrive at Trenton by five in the morning, the distance being about nine miles; but the quantity of ice made that night, impeded the passage of the boats so much that it was three o'clock before the artillery could all be got over, and near four before the troops took up their line of march; this made me despair of surprising the town, as I well knew we could not reach it before the day was fairly broke; but as I was certain there was no making a retreat without being discovered and harassed on repassing the river, I determined to push on at all events. I formed my detachment into two divisions, one to march by the town or river road, the other by the upper or Pennytown road. As the divisions had nearly the same distance to march, I ordered each of them, immediately upon forcing the out-guards, to push directly into the town, that they might charge the enemy before they had time to form. The upper division arrived at the enemy's advanced post exactly at eight o'clock, and in three minutes after, I found from the fire on the lower road, that that division had also got up. The out-guards made but small opposition, though, for their numbers, they behaved very well, keeping up a constant retreating fire from behind houses. We presently saw their main body formed, but from their motions, seemed undetermined how to act. Being hard pressed by our troops, who had already got possession of part of their artillery, they attempted to file off by a road on their right, leading to Princetown; but perceiving their intentions, I threw a body of men in their way, which immediately checked them. Finding from our disposition they were surrounded, and that they must inevitably be cut to pieces if they made any resistance, they agreed to lay down their arms. The number that submitted in this manner were twenty-three officers, with seven others who were found wounded in the town. I don't exactly know how many they had killed, but I fancy not above twenty or thirty, as they never made any regular stand. Our loss is trifling, only two officers and one or two privates wounded.

I find that the detachment of the enemy consisted of three regiments, to wit: of Anspack, Kniphausen, and Roll, amounting to about fifteen hundred men, and a troop of Light-Horse; but immediately on the beginning of the attack, all those who were not killed or taken pushed directly down the road towards Bordentown. These would likewise have fallen into our hands, could my plan have been completely carried into execution. General Ewing was to have crossed before day, at Trenton Ferry, and taken possession of the bridge leading out of town; but the quantity of ice was so great, that though he did every thing in his power to effect it, he could not get over. This difficulty also hindered General Cadwalader from crossing with the Pennsylvania Militia, from Bristol; he got part of his foot over, but finding it impossible to embark his artillery, he was obliged to desist. I am confident that could the troops under Generals Cadwalader and Ewing have passed the river, I should have been able, with their assistance, to have driven the enemy from all their posts below Trenton; but the number I had with me being inferiour to theirs below me, and a strong battalion of Light-Infantry at Princeton, I thought it most prudent to return the same evening, with my prisoners and the artillery we had taken. We found no stores of any consequence in the town.

In justice to the officers and men, I must add, that their behaviour on this occasion reflects the highest honour upon them; the difficulty of passing the river in a very severe night, and their march through a violent storm of snow and hail, did not the least abate their ardour, but after they came to the charge, seemed to vie with each other in pressing forward; and were I to give a preference to any particular corps, I should do great injustice to the others.

I some time ago mentioned to you the importance of attacking the enemy's detached posts, when it can be done with a good prospect of success. The best of consequences must result from their being harassed on every occasion on that quarter.

With respect to the stores you have taken, you must use your own discretion; you can certainly judge with greater propriety what is to be done than I can, who am so far distant.

I am, sir, yours, &c., Go. Washington.

P. S. I must request you will forward the Militia with all possible expedition. The prisoners we have taken amount in number to nine hundred and eighteen, of which thirty are officers. We have also got about one thousand stand of arms, and four standards, and six brass pieces of artillery.

To Major-General Heath.

Dear Sir: Above is a very rough but as just a sketch of the prisoners taken yesterday morning, as I can collect. I was unfortunately too late to share in the honours of the day, being catched in the storm, and little imagining that any attempt would have been made at such an inclement time. There were about twenty killed and wounded; amongst the latter, the Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, and one Major. Our loss very inconsiderable; two or three killed, and as many wounded. Captain Washington, a fine spirited officer of Weedon's, is amongst the latter. Six pieces of artillery, brass double-fortified three-pounders, twelve drums, four standards, and about one thousand stand of arms, were taken. If the whole plan could have been put into execution, there is little doubt but the whole of the Hessians along the Delaware would have been done for.

The spirited conduct of the whole that went over, which, from the best computation, did not exceed twenty-two hundred, was great. You must remember what a morning yesterday was, for men clad as ours are to march nine miles to attack an enemy provided with every necessary, and elated with a succession of advantages over our handful of men, whom they were accustomed to see retreating before them. What a change in the scene! About fifty Light-Horse, and between six and seven hundred, pushed off before our men could be posted; the remainder submitted with their arms in their hands.

Colonel Baylor can inform you of more particulars, if he stays long enough with you. He goes to Congress with the good news. Gates promised to send me the plan for the battalion of Horse. When he does, shall trouble you with it. Adieu, my dear friend; believe me, I am most truly yours,

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

To Robert Morris, Esq., Member of Congress, at Philadelphia.

COLONEL CADWALADER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Burlington, 27th December, 1776, ten o'clock.

SIR: As I did not hear from you this morning, and being prepared to embark, I concluded you were still on this side, and therefore embarked and landed about fifteen hundred men, about two miles above Bristol. After a considerable number were landed, I had information from the Paymaster of Colonel Hitchcock's brigade, that you had crossed over from Trenton. This defeated the scheme of joining your Army. We were much embarrassed which way to proceed. I thought it most prudent to retreat, but Colonel Reed was of opinion that we might safely proceed to Burlington, and recommended it warmly, lest it should have a bad effect on the Militia, who were twice disappointed. The landing in open daylight must have alarmed the enemy, and we might have been cut off by all their force collected to this place. We had intelligence, immediately afterward, that the enemy had left the Black Horse and Mount Holly. Upon this we determined to proceed to Burlington. Colonel Reed, and two other officers, went on from one post to another till they came to Bordenton, where they found the coast clear. Colonel Reed and Colonel Coxe are now there; and we shall march at four, to-morrow morning, for that place. This information has induced me to proceed, though not quite conformable to your orders which I received on the march this afternoon.

If you should think proper to cross over, it may be easily effected at the place where we passed; a pursuit would keep up the panick. They went off with great precipitation, and pressed all the wagons in their reach. I am told many of them are gone to South-Amboy. If we can drive them from West-Jersey, the success will raise an army by next spring, and establish the credit of the Continental money to support it. I shall write you to-morrow, I hope from Trenton.

I am, sir, your most obedient, very humble servant,

JOHN CADWALADER.

I have eight six-pounders, brass, and two three-pounders, iron.

---

COLONEL TILGHMAN TO COLONEL CADWALADER.

Head-Quarters, Newtown, 27th December, 1776, ten at night.

DEAR SIR: I am commanded by his Excellency to inform you, that since he wrote you this morning, giving you an account of his return from Jersey, he had heard that you had passed over this day. By not having this from your own hand, he presumes you imagined he continued yesterday in Jersey, after his success at Trenton. Upon a supposition that you are over, he has ordered General Mifflin, who is coming up with fifteen hundred men from Philadelphia, to pass the river and join you. The General will cross the day after to-morrow with the Continental battalion. He would do it sooner, but the men have undergone so much fatigue that they want rest. He therefore desires that you would keep your ground, and not attempt any thing, (without you see a certainty of success,) till he passes the river, because a miscarriage would defeat all the good effects of our late victory. General Ewing will likewise pass over with his brigade, and I think it will be very hard if we cannot, by a junction of our forces, put Count Donnop to the rout.

I am yours, &c., T. TILGHMAN.

P. S. Keep the time of the General's intent to pass a secret.

To Colonel John Cadwalader, Pennsylvania Militia.

COLONEL BURD TO WILLIAM ATLEE.

Tinian, 27th December, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I send you herewith the present state of my battalion, as I have related to General Mifflin. I mean that you should read my letter to the General, and then seal and deliver it. I have informed the officers in the battalion that I shall attend at any time and place of rendezvous to supply any company or detachment, that intend to march, with money, and render every other acceptable service in my power. You will observe that I have resigned the command of the battalion, and the Major did say at Middletown that he would also resign. How that may be, I cannot say; but think it may be proper, for the present, to send any orders that may be necessary to the Major.

I am, with much esteem, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JAMES BURD.

Please to let Mr. Shippen peruse my letter to the General before you deliver it, and this to you, if you think proper. Ut supra, J. B.

William Atlee, Esq.

---

COLONEL BURD TO GENERAL MIFFLIN.

Tinian, 27th December, 1776.

SIR: I had the honour to be favoured with your orders last night, dated 23d current, previous to which I had resigned the command of the battalion. But this morning, by Captain Croutch, have forwarded your orders to Major Cornelius Cox, who at present commands the battalion, Lieutenant-Colonel Murray being taken prisoner at Fort Washington. I think it my duty to give you my reason for resignation, and the more especially at this time of publick danger. If I had had an opportunity of a personal conference, I think I would have convinced you that I not only had reason for this step, but a necessity for so doing. I would inform you that the battalion is very long, between forty and fifty miles in length, and broad withal; that it requires time to communicate any orders, and inconvenient to get the whole battalion together, especially at this season of the year. However, in consequence of the orders you refer to, I gave out orders for the whole battalion to meet in three districts, on Monday, the 9th instant, the middle of which I attended myself; and further, directions for all the officers of the battalion to meet me at Garbert Mill, on Tuesday, the 10th instant, to make report of their proceedings. Accordingly on Tuesday they all did meet me, and the report was that few volunteers were to be found; upon which I gave orders in writing, and sent them to every company in the battalion, that the whole battalion should rendezvous at Middletown, on Monday, the 16th current, in order to march by divisions to join General Washington; and those that were not provided with arms, &c., I promised to have them provided at Philadelphia; that money nor nothing should be wanting.

I attended, ready to march with the battalion, from Monday, the 16th, to Sunday night, the 22d instant, and not one man turned out but eighteen, seven of whom were officers, myself included, except a small company of volunteers, commanded by Captain Elder, of thirty-three, officers included, whom I marched off. I put it to the vote of the eighteen, if I should not march with them: it was carried against me—I should not. On Saturday morning I was on my journey to go to Lancaster to see you. The officers advised I should not proceed, but remain to endeavour to get the battalion to march; this they thought more advisable for the good of the service. Lest I should stand in the way, I thought proper to resign, offering at the same time my personal attendance, and to render any service acceptable upon notice being given me of such being wanting. You will no doubt expect I should give some reasons for such conduct in the battalion at this time. I cannot suggest any, unless the following may be the reasons: that three companies have already marched to camp, one of which, viz: Captain James Murray's, still remains there; that Captain Smith has taken two companies from the battalion, and Captain John Murray one, which renders the battalion so weak that they have not more, or very few men more, left than are sufficient to attend their cattle, &c., prejudice against myself. I have commanded the battalion ever since our troubles began, with pleasure to myself and to the battalion seemingly for any thing I know to the contrary, and have been able to comply with all orders heretofore given me, which was not the case in the last instance to which your orders alludes. And from what I have already said, I make no doubt I will stand unimpeached in your judgment, and of all those of my superiour officers; judging that I have done every thing in my power.

After making an apology for troubling you with this long scrawl, I beg leave to subscribe myself, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JAMES BURD.

The Honourable Brigadier-General Thomas Mifflin, Esq.

COLONEL DE HART TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Morris-Town, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of your Excellency's orders and request, by General Maxwell, I have this day begun the recruiting service of the First Jersey Regiment, and shall expedite it with all possible speed. Had I been determined to remain longer in the Jersey service, I should long before have done it, and nothing but your Excellency's request, and this critical period of time, should have induced me to have done it now.

I find it necessary that the old troops of this regiment should be paid off their arrears. Many of them demand a settlement before they will reinlist. I am now collecting the pay-rolls of the Captains, who are much scattered in different parts of this Province and Pennsylvania, and shall, as soon as possible, make a settlement of the regimental accounts. Recruiting money is likewise necessary, as the officers cannot do without it. If your Excellency should think proper to give your order for five thousand or six thousand dollars on the Paymaster for that purpose, Lieutenant Morrison will be the bearer thereof to me. Many of our officers, for the want of any fixed place of Head-Quarters for the regiment, are at this time not easy to be found. I believe great part of them are at your camp. Lieutenant Morrison will take your Excellency's directions in what way to collect them. I have ordered them all to this place, if not countermanded by your Excellency.

The enemy have about five hundred or six hundred Highlanders at Newark, and about as many Waldeckers at Elizabeth-Town. They have withdrawn their outposts from Boundbrook and that way, into Brunswick. They have as yet made no attempts on this place, although we find it's the daily conversation of their Army.

Our three months' recruiting service goes on well, and I am this day informed that the three regiments of Greaton's, Bond's, and Porter's, here, have mostly agreed to stay till the 15th January. A party of Militia, of about three hundred men, are at Pluckamin, and we have about the same number here. The spirit of our people begins much to revive. I have the greatest confidence that, with care and attention, we shall be able to maintain this part of the Province.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

WM. DE HART,
Major of the First Jersey Regiment.

To his Excellency General Washington, at Delaware River.

PETITION FROM CAPTAIN HAMLEN.

To the Honourable WILLIAM HEATH, Esq., Major-General in the service of the UNITED STATES:

Honoured sir, the Petition of your Petitioner humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, by order of General Nixon, took the charge of a number of sick belonging to his brigade, in Orange-Town, the Province of New-York; and as various reports have circulated, and are still circulating, to the prejudice of your petitioner, viz: your petitioner making application of publick stores, received from Colonel Tupper for the use of the sick under my care, and sundry other accusations, which would only create a multiplicity of words not worthy of troubling your Honour with; therefore, as your petitioner is thus prejudiced to his dishonour, he would esteem it a favour your Honour would order a Court of Inquiry, as quick as may be, that he may have a publick hearing; and your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

ELEAZER HAMLEN.

Peeks Kill, 27th December, 1776.

GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Ramapough, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: Since I wrote you yesterday, Colonel Hay has been with me, and has taken proper measures for supplying the troops under my command in this quarter with provisions. And I doubt not but it will be regularly done in future. He tells me that he never had the least intimation from Convention that such a body of men were ordered to this quarter, and had not made any provision for them, and that he never received my last letter; which I believe to be true.

In a former letter to the honourable Convention, I mentioned the propriety of dismissing part of the Militia, retaining only in the service about one thousand of them. I am convinced, unless this is done, their minds will be much soured and the cause thereby greatly injured. And I flatter myself that number will be sufficient to guard the passes on this side the river, and protect the well-disposed inhabitants. For though we have had frequent reports of large bodies of the enemy coming this way by different routes, and confirmed by letters from pretended friends in the city, and common reports and other circumstances among the Tories, I am convinced it was no more than an artful contrivance to retard the recruiting service, and unnecessarily harass the country by drawing out the Militia; and this you will find to be the case with the dreaded expedition on your side the river.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

GEO. CLINTON.

To Abraham Ten Broeck, Esq., President of the honourable the Convention of the State of New-York, at Fishkill.

MAJOR MOFFAT TO JOHN M'KESSON.

Peekskill, 27th December, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed is a list of the officers in Colonel Nicoll's regiment, who have not received commissions for the service of this campaign. General Clinton has been several times applied to for them, but they never came to the regiment yet. What the matter has been, I cannot tell, but I suppose it slipped the General's memory. By order of Colonel Nicoll, before he left this post, I have sent Adjutant Howell for them, on account that the regiment will be disbanded in a few days. And the officers think that they have been treated with neglect, that they have not received their commissions before.

You will be good enough to lay the matter before Convention, if necessary, and dismiss the bearer as soon as possible. No news at present.

I am, with respect, truly your most obedient and very humble servant,

THOMAS MOFFAT, Major.

To John McKesson, Esq., Secretary to the Convention of the State of New-York, at Fishkill.

A List of Officers belonging to Colonel NICOLL'S Regiment that want Commissions.

Captain, John Wood; has been Adjutant.
Jacob Dunning, First Lieutenant; has been Second Lieutenant.
Israel Wells, Second Lieutenant.

Under Captain John Little, who is already commissioned:
Samuel Cole, Second Lieutenant, has been commissioned below his present rank.

Captain, Joshua Brown; has been First Lieutenant.
Henry Brewster, Jun., First Lieutenant.

Under Captain William Blain, who is already commissioned:
Thomas Sears, First Lieutenant; has been Second Lieutenant.
David Rogers, Second do.; has been Ensign.
Captain, James Smith; has been First Lieutenant.
Barnet Marlin, Second Lieutenant.

Under Captain Samuel Raymond, who is already commissioned:
Richard Langdon, First Lieutenant; has been Second Lieutenant.

In the company that was raised, and some time commanded by Captain John Wisner:
Obadiah Gore, Second Lieutenant.
Stephen Howell, Adjutant; Benjamin Wallworth.

JONATHAN POLLARD TO ABRAHAM TEN BROECK.

Head-Quarters, Peekskill, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: The General received your favour of yesterday, and by his desire I transmit to you the names of the prisoners alluded to in your letter: Captain Phineas Ford, Ephraim Tripp, a Sergeant, Ephraim Hathaway, a Sergeant, James Gray, a Corporal, and Peter Sears, a Corporal. The four last have not been examined, but accused by their Captains.

The travelling being so bad, the General thinks not to send the prisoners on till to-morrow, when he shall send them to your care to forward them.

I am, sir, with respect, your humble servant,

JONA. POLLARD, A. D. C.

To the Hon'ble Ab'm Ten Broeck, President of the Convention for the State of New-York.

RECOMMENDATION OF LIEUTENANT LAWRENCE.

New-Windsor, December 27th, 1776.

Lieutenant Lawrence, of my regiment, being desirous to continue in the service, if there was a vacancy for him, and applies to me for a recommendation. He is desirous to serve in your regiment, if you can help him to a place; if not, I hope you will use your endeavour to have him appointed in some other, as I believe he will make a good officer, as he is always willing to do his duty; but the officers of my regiment have never had it in their power to show their courage.

I am, your humble servant,

JAMES CLINTON, B. Gen'l.

JOHN DUNCAN TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Hermitage, near Schenectady, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: Even if gratitude did not sufficiently prompt, would be much wanting in duty not to return you my most sincere thanks for the many favours received whilst a captive under your care. My grateful sense of your admitting me to visit my aged father and family, to you and yours, by me shall never be forgot, and I most ardently wish that you and them may always be as happy as that act made me and mine. It was with some difficulty I was admitted to remain at home the six weeks contained in your pass, though I have lately obtained leave to abide on my farm till called on by the Committee of Albany; and had I not in that case, till a few days ago, been in some expectation to have returned to Hartford, would have wrote your Honour before now.

I beg leave to be gratefully remembered to the worthy gentlemen of your Council, who so readily concurred in granting my request; and am, with real esteem and due respect, sir, your most obedient and much obliged humble servant,

JOHN DUNCAN.

To his Honour Governour Trumbull.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

State of Connecticut, Middletown, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 19th came to hand per Mr. Babcock. I feel for your distresses and my country, and the apparent prospect of our northern posts being left so naked and destitute. Shall neglect nothing in my power for the good of the service. Among other things, it appears of great importance to forward the recruiting, or raising of a new Army, which suffers for want of money to pay the premiums. You are kind enough to offer advancing a sum sufficient for one regiment or more, if it can be spared. The good of the service obliges me to ask for it. You will, therefore, be pleased to order your Paymaster to issue a sum sufficient to raise one regiment, and deliver the same to Colonel Swift or Lieutenant-Colonel Starr, one of which will wait on you for that purpose. They are faithful and valuable officers, and will exert themselves to promote the raising a regiment, which will probably be ordered to join your department. I have no doubt but you will give him all the despatch which the nature of the service requires.

I am, sir, with the greatest esteem and regard, your most obedient, humble servant,

JON'N TRUMBULL.

P. S. Am informed by Colonel Swift that he could not obtain the mileage and marching money for his regiment in the last campaign, which he expected at Albany. As you were then at Saratoga, he was not able to wait on you for the necessary orders; that the men complain much for the want of it. Am sure you will consider, and see that perfect justice is done him in this matter.

Hon'ble Major-General Schuyler.

PAROLE OF PHILIP PALMER.

Whereas I, Philip Palmer, of West-Chester, in the State of New-York, have for some time past resided at Windham, in the State of Connecticut, being apprehended and sent thither by the Committee of the Convention of the State of New-York, as one suspected inimical to the United States of America: And whereas, upon my application to his Honour Governour Trumbull, of the State of Connecticut, he hath permitted me to return to West-Chester, to take care of my interest and effects, and there to reside till otherwise ordered: I do hereby pledge my faith and word of honour to said Governour Trumbull, that I will neither bear arms, nor excite or encourage others to bear arms, against this, or any other of the United States of America, and that I will not do or say any thing in prejudice of the interest or measures of this, or any, or all of the United States, in the present controversy with Great Britain, and that I will give no intelligence to the enemies of said States of any of their counsels, operations of war, or other the transactions of this or any other of the United States, and that I will return to any place in this State when requested by his said Honour Governour Trumbull, or the General Assembly of this State, or the Convention of the State of New-York for the time being.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, this 27th day of December, 1776, at Windham, in the State of Connecticut.

PHILIP PALMER.

Present: EBEN'R BACKUS.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR APPREHENSION OF MAJOR FRENCH AND OTHERS.

One hundred and twenty Dollars reward.

Major Christopher French, Ensign Joseph Moland, and the infamous Gurdon Whitmore, broke gaol, and escaped this evening. Said French and Moland are Continental prisoners. Said French is about fifty years of age, wears his hair, is small of stature, hard favoured. Said Moland is about twenty-five years of age, tall, walks erect, wears his hair, light complexion. Said Whitmore is short, well made, has black eyes, wears his hair. It's expected they will change their dress, as they did when they run away before. Any person that shall take up the aforesaid prisoners, or either of them, and return them to the gaol at Hartford, shall receive as a premium, forty dollars for each, and all necessary charges, by BARZ. HUDSON, Gaoler.

EXTRACT OF LETTER FROM COLONEL HUNTINGTON TO HIS SON, DATED ROXBURY CAMP, 27TH, 1776.

I spent this afternoon at General Spencer's, with the Indian Chiefs. They walked with a number of officers about our encampment, to view our situation and works. The Guards turned out under arms to receive them: that pleased them much, as they are very fond of tokens of respect, as well as other people.

JOHN WATSON TO MASSACHUSETTS BOARD OF WAR.

East-Windsor, Connecticut, December 30, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 25th instant, I have now received. When I saw Mr. Elliot last, I did not pretend to set a price at which I could engage to deliver any quantity of tobacco; and since I returned home, I find the price with us advanced fifty per cent. since last year, which is much higher than I expected. I am engaged to buy some, which I propose to send to the West-Indies, about seven or eight thousand, and the tobacco is now chiefly purchased out of the hands of the planters; consequently it will be out of my power to supply you with any quantity at any thing near the price you mention.

Am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN WATSON.

Mr. J. Warren.

MASSACHUSETTS BOARD OF WAR TO COLONEL CRAFTS.

War Office, Boston, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: By a resolve of the Board of War of this State, you are ordered, as commanding officer of the garrison of Boston, and the forts in the harbour of said town, to make a return to the said Board immediately of every kind of military stores, including ordnance and ammunition, now in your possession, belonging to the State of Massachusetts-Bay. Whereof fail not.

By order of the Board.

J. WARREN, President.

Colonel Thomas Crafts.

MESHECH WEARE TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 20 January, 1777: Referred to the Committee of Treasury.]

Exeter, December 27th, 1776.

SIR: This State, very desirous of exerting with full vigour all the strength of their small Republick in the common cause, find themselves much obstructed in pursuing their resolutions, for want of money; and the depreciation of the present currency is such that discourages them from emitting any more. I have therefore sent James Belton, Esq., express, to request of the honourable Congress twenty thousand dollars, to purchase shoes, stockings, and other clothing for the Army, agreeable to the resolutions of Congress; also that money may be transmitted to Colonel John Stark, Colonel Enoch Poor, and Colonel Alexander Scammell, persons appointed to command the three battalions directed to be raised in the quota of this State to serve during the war, to enable them to pay the bounty to the soldiers; which money we understand they could not procure from the Paymasters in either the Northern or Eastern departments, the chest being empty. Also a sum, in part of what this State hath advanced for the Continent, the accounts of which advance will soon be forwarded.

In behalf of the Council and Assembly. I am, sir, your very humble servant,

MESHECH WEARE, President.

Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

MESHECH WEARE TO MATHEW THORNTON AND WILLIAM WHIPPLE.

Exeter, December 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed I send you the copy of a vote, appointing you, with Colonel Bartlett, Delegates to represent this State in Congress one year from the first of January next. Mr. Betton, who brings you this, is sent by the General Court to solicit money for this State for several purposes, as he will show you in his instructions. The great need we have of a supply for our Treasury must excuse my very earnest desire of all your aid in procuring the same. Great sums we must advance, in addition to the Continental establishment, or no men can be inlisted here. Every thing is so amazing dear that the soldiers say their wages will not half support them. We expect soon to be under the necessity of raising a body of men to relieve the Massachusetts and Connecticut Militia, at Rhode-Island. One thousand of our Militia are just come home from New-York, and five hundred newly raised are now on their march for that place. All the intelligence you are permitted to disclose from Congress, be kind enough to send us, especially good news, which are almost strangers to us at present, and therefore shall receive them as a rarity.

I am, your very humble servant,

MESHECH WEARE.

P. S. The names of the persons for field officers in the Continental battalion raised here have been sent forward some time for approbation. As the regiment is now ordered to Ticonderoga by General Ward, we desire you to forward the appointments.

Hon'ble Mathew Thornton and William Whipple.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO WILLIAM DUER.

Exeter, December 27, 1776.

SIR: The prisoners sent from your State have been received here, and disposed of agreeable to the resolutions of your Committee, and the advice of Mr. Benson sent from you. Great uneasiness prevails among them, and their clamours of being sent here without an examination at home and consciousness of their innocence which they assert, has had considerable influence among the people in these parts in their behalf. Three of the prisoners, of the number of those not directed to be confined in jail, have liberty to return to New-York, viz: Timothy Clossen, Joseph Gage, and Elias Doty, to provide necessaries for themselves and other prisoners here; and to return in six weeks, unless they have license from the Convention of New-York or your Committee to remain at home. And as a great number of them make such protestations of their not being sensible of their having ever given occasion for any person to suppose them unfriendly to the American cause, we wish an impartial inquiry might be made into their characters, and if any may appear innocent who were taken up, and sent from their homes in the confusion and unavoidable hurry that you was involved in at that time, that an order may be sent for their discharge; also particular directions to this State relative to their future disposal and regulation of the prisoners. Some of the persons who had the liberty of providing their own lodgings have eloped, the number and names we cannot transmit, as this letter is wrote to be forwarded by a person ordered to Philadelphia on urgent business, and cannot be detained. However, one John Vandeburgh, Esq., is among the number. Many more we expect will follow their example. The five hundred dollars sent by your State is expended, and a considerable sum advanced to support the prisoners in jail, which amount to near seventy, and necessaries for some others, who appear poor and naked, though not in prison. As our Treasury is empty and can't be soon supplied with ourselves, it would very much assist us at this time to have such a sum transmitted from you as you think adequate to support the prisoners while they may tarry here. I am, &c.

William Duer, Esq., Chairman of the Committee for Inquiring into, Detecting, and Defeating all Conspiracies formed against the State of New-York.

THOMAS THOMPSON TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE ASSEMBLY.

Portsmouth, December 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have to inform you that the schooner lately commanded by Captain Burke, now a tender to the Milford, was run on shore last night at Little Harbour. She has four officers, passengers, besides the one that commands, and about fifty men. The officers shall be sent off early to-morrow morning. Should be glad of your further directions in the behalf of the United States for the disposal of the prisoners who are now in custody of Colonel Long, all but the officers, who are in my care.

Your humble servant,

THOS. THOMPSON.

To the honourable the Council and Assembly of the State of New-Hampshire.

COLONEL LONG TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE ASSEMBLY.

Portsmouth, December 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This morning I received advice of one of the enemy's tenders being drove into our harbour. I thought it my duty to secure her, being apprehensive that the prisoners might attempt an escape with the prize. I immediately ordered a number of soldiers to embark on board boats, to take possession of her; and in the interim, prepared others to follow, in one of which I went myself. When I came on board I found Colonel Mooney and Major Hodgdon, with a sufficiency of men to bring her to town. We hove her from off the shore, and proceeded as far up the river as the tide would permit before it was spent, after which I gave orders for the prisoners to be brought to town, who are now, to the number, I think, of forty-three or forty-five, under a proper guard, exclusive of five officers who were brought up by Captain Pinkham, (the person that brought her in,) and put to lodge at a publick house. The Captain of the Raleigh ordered a guard on them, for which I am much obliged. This night, Captain Salter, in conjunction with Captain Robert Parker, who I have appointed pilot of her, will bring her to her mooring. I shall be obliged for an order for the disposition of all the prisoners, excepting those who will be accompanied to Exeter to-morrow by Captain Dearing, to be examined and disposed of as you may judge proper.

I am, gentlemen, with due respect, your most obedient servant,

PIERCE LONG.

P. S. I beg leave to observe that Captain Pinkham had this vessel delivered to him by the officers and people belonging to her, to do with her as he thought proper, which induced him to make this push. He has libelled her, and applied to a friend to transact his business.

To the honourable Council, &c., of the State of New-Hampshire.

PETITION OF JOHN GROUT.

To the Gentlemen Committee of the town of CHARLESTOWN, in the Province of NEW-HAMPSHIRE:

The Petition of JOHN GROUT, of CHESTER, in the State of NEW-YORK, most humbly sheweth:

That a wicked conspiracy has lately been formed in the said County by a part of the people (the notorious Charles Phelps at the head of the conspiracy) to disunite the States of America, and to set them to quarreling among themselves at this time when harmony and friendship is so necessary for our common defence.

The conspirators began by denying the jurisdiction of the State of New-York over the County of Cumberland, and claiming to put themselves under the jurisdiction of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, and for this purpose procured a majority of a small part of the County Committee to write and send such claim to the General Convention of the State of New-York; which extraordinary procedures justly alarming that Convention, they made some spirited resolves thereon, which your petitioner hereunto annexes, and begs leave to refer you. These resolves being sent to the County Committee, they, at a full Committee met at Westminster on the first Tuesday of November last, fully rescinded said claim, and made, in the name and behalf of the people of the said County, a full, ample, and formal submission to the jurisdiction and authority of the State of New-York. To which submission a small part of the said County Committee entered their dissent, and withdrew themselves. But finding that the virtuous people of the State of Massachusetts-Bay would give them no aid in the quarrel they have begun with the State to which they belong, they are now endeavouring to effect their wicked designs of disturbing the union and harmony that now exists among the United States by making a quarrel at this all-important day between the States of New-Hampshire and New-York; and for this purpose have procured an inhabitant of New-Hampshire, one David Currier by name, to complain of your petitioner for an assault; and your petitioner having by Chester Committee been adjudged to be guilty, they have ordered that your petitioner be delivered to said Currier in New-Hampshire, to be by him there imprisoned until your petitioner shall pay and make such satisfaction as said Currier shall arbitrarily impose on him, (a copy of which unprecedented and arbitrary judgment is hereunto annexed,) from which judgment your petitioner appealed to the General Committee of the said County of Cumberland, agreeable to the laws and rules established in such cases by the Convention of the said State of New-York; but the said Committee of Chester avowing a full revolt from that State, in high contempt of the said Convention, and breach of the rights of your petitioner as a member of that State, have absolutely refused to allow such appeal, and your petitioner is now in custody of one William Atwood, to be delivered here to said Currier for the purposes aforesaid. Your petitioner flatters himself that the virtuous Committee of the town of Charlestown will protect your petitioner from all wrongs and violences from the hands of said Currier within their district, and will give a full proof of their design to cultivate and improve the good understanding now existing between the two States, by protecting your petitioner, and delivering him from the unconstitutional imprisonment he is under within your district, and that you will give the Convention of New-York a pleasing proof that the Committee of Charlestown, in New-Hampshire, will discountenance all violences which shall be offered to the peaceable subjects of that State, contrary to their just rights and the true dignity of New-York, by any and every contentious person who may seek the destruction of the friendship that exists between the said States.

Your petitioner, therefore, most humbly prays that you would please to order him safely to be returned to the County of Cumberland, where he belongs, and delivered to the Chairman of the said County Committee, that so he may prosecute his appeal there agreeable to his rights as a member of the State of New-York, and according to the rules and regulations by the Convention or Assembly of that State in such case lately made and provided; and your petitioner shall ever pray, &c.

JOHN GROUT.

Charlestown, in the State of New-Hampshire, December 27, 1776.

P. S. December 27th, 1776, seven o'clock, p. m.—Mr. Atwood has delivered the petitioner to Mr. Currier, and he is now in Mr. Currier's custody.

Chester, 25 December, 1776.

To DAVID EARLL, greeting:

You are hereby required to take John Grout and bring him forthwith to Landlord Grub's, in said Chester, for which this shall be your sufficient warrant, from

GEORGE EARLL.

A true copy of the original.
Attest:

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, December 28th, 1776.

SIRS: I have bought the brig, agreeable to your orders, at a very great price. The people all seemed determined to have her. She cost two thousand five hundred and fifty pounds. I suppose she is a fine sea vessel, but she is not worth that money. But I believe it was the Congress against the Province. I was very candid about the matter. I hear they intend to apply to you for her. I think you had better spare her to them. I don't think her the vessel that she was represented. I have her hauled to a wharf, and hands at work to get her ballast out.

I have bought a good deal of pork for the Defence, and shall have the brig ready for sea as soon as I can, if you don't spare her to Congress. Mr. Chase told me to-night that Congress must have her. I have put her under the care of Captain Forsyth to put in order, a very good man.

From your humble servant,

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH.

To the hon'ble Council of Safety, at Annapolis.

---

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, December 28th, 1776.

SIRS: I wrote by Stephen Steward, acquainting you that I had bought the fine brig, but I think her a dear bargain.

I have got a well-recommended Captain for her; and Captain Forsyth has been this two days under his care. If you keep her from Congress, who, I understand, wants her, you may send up four thousand pounds, by Wm. Crockket, who is a safe hand, to pay for ship and cargo; twenty-five hundred and fifty for the brig, and the fitting and cargo will cost the other part of the four thousand pounds. Please write me about it. Mr. Crocket can tell you more of the Captain than I know of him. He recommended him to me.

Excuse haste. From your humble servant,

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH.

The Council of Safety, at Annapolis.

THOMAS JOHNSON, JUN., TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Frederick-Town, Saturday, 28th December, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Colonel Beatty tells me Peter Mumed, who was Captain, Adam Crush, who was First Lieutenant, and Adams, who was Second Lieutenant, of a company in his battalion, and went to the Flying-Camp, refuse to hold their commissions in his battalion. Crush is in the regular service; Maure, he says, desires to be so; and Adams says he will not act at any time hereafter. All agree not to desire any body who has retreated from the camp to go again.

Nicholas White, Colonel Beatty tells me, the company are desirous he should be a Captain, and that he thinks him a proper man. I should therefore be glad you'd send him a commission. We have a very deep snow. Upwards of three hundred of Colonel Beatty's battalion begin their march to-morrow. I wish they were better provided. I am very desirous of hearing from your Board; and am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

TH. JOHNSON, Jun.

The hon'ble Council of Safety of Maryland.

COLONEL MURDOCK TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Montgomery County, December 28th, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: In consequence of a letter I received lately from Brigadier-General Johnson, directing me to call together the battalion of Militia under my command, to take an account of their arms, &c., to prepare them for an immediate march, and to hold themselves in readiness for further orders, I have to acquaint you that all this has been done agreeable to the said instruction. I have also, in Committee of this County, seen two requisitions of Congress to the same purport, directed to the Committee of Frederick County. Whereupon this Committee has recommended it to the Militia to put themselves in readiness to march to reinforce General Washington, and have requested the Colonels to call them together for that purpose; all this has likewise been done; and I have now to inform you that not more than eighty-eight men of this battalion are willing to march, in which number is included the greatest part of the officers belonging to the different companies.

From the disposition of many of the people, I am urged to request you will inform me of the destination of these troops, of the time they are to continue in actual service, and whether your orders in particular are not immediately necessary towards forwarding this expedition, which, when received, shall be punctually complied with, by, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOHN MURDOCK.

The hon'ble the Council of Safety of Maryland.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

Baltimore, December 28th, 1776—five o'clock, a. m.

GENTLEMEN: The necessity of having proper magazines established in places of security, has induced the Congress to order three to be erected: one in Virginia, one in Pennsylvania, and one in Brookfield, in Massachusetts-Bay, with an elaboratory adjacent to each. The foregoing resolve respecting the magazine and elaboratory to be fixed at Brookfield, I am directed to transmit to you, and to request that you will be pleased to take such measures as you judge necessary for the immediate execution of it. I beg leave to refer you to the resolve; and am, with every sentiment of esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Hon'l Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

---

JAMES WILSON TO ROBERT MORRIS.

Baltimore, 28th December, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The Committee of Congress at Philadelphia are directed, by a late resolution of Congress, to contract for erecting a magazine at Carlisle. I shall be at that place in a short time, and will give every assistance in my power to those whom you employ.

You are much wanted in Congress, though I know you are of essential service at Philadelphia.

I am, dear sir, yours sincerely, JAMES WILSON.

The Hon'ble Robert Morris, Esq.

COMMITTEE FOR TRANSACTING CONTINENTAL BUSINESS TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 31 December.]

Philadelphia, December 28th, 1776.

SIR: Your Committee have opened their office, and given publick notice of their daily attendance to transact such Continental business as may be proper and necessary in this place. We wrote General Washington of our appointment, and proposed that he should forward his despatches to Congress through our hands, unless when they might be of such a nature as he would not choose any person should see them before Congress. He approves this plan, as it will ease his correspondence with us, and at the same time we shall receive information that will be necessary for our government in many affairs that will most probably come under our consideration.

You have enclosed herewith the General's account of the action at Trenton, with a return of the prisoners, &c. Allow us to congratulate Congress on this success, and to presage that, if our good fortune is well followed up, our affairs will very speedily wear a pleasing countenance. We take the liberty to enclose, also, an extract of a letter from General Cadwalader to General Putnam, by which it appears that our enemies are panick-struck. We hope our troops will follow them up, and not give them time to recover; and shall write in this strain to General Washington, with an assurance that every man shall follow to his assistance that can be prevailed on to move from this State; and we have not a doubt but their spirits will now be up, and what they have before thought dangers will vanish before them like a vision.

You'll observe, sir, that Mr. Cadwalader is now a Brigadier-General, made so by our Council of Safety; and you cannot conceive what general satisfaction it gives. He is a gentleman of amiable private character, fine fortune, numerous connexions, has a martial spirit, and has taken infinite pains to qualify himself for command. He is beloved by his troops, and gains their confidence wherever he goes. General Washington, in a letter to Congress some time past, recommended their appointing this gentleman a Brigadier-General in the Continental service. His having recommended him for that purpose, and our knowledge of his merits, and a conviction that it would be vastly pleasing to all the Associators of this State, prompts us to recommend to Congress to do it immediately. He now commands the Continental Colonels, and they cannot complain that he is put over their heads. He is now leading on a valuable band of men in your service, and the appointment will give spirit and vigour to their operations. The present success will induce you to make other promotions; and we hope this will not be neglected.

We are sorry to inform you that Captain Robinson's information respecting his prize was premature. She is not arrived, nor have we heard further from below, although the Fly has been sent down some days to reconnoitre. The Wasp is gone to cruise outside the British fleet. She took a schooner, with molasses and rum, that had been taken by the Roebuck.

We have the honour to remain, sir, your obedient servants.

John Hancock, Esq.

COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, December 28th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: We have the pleasure to own receipt of your acceptable favour of yesterday, by Colonel Baylor, and most sincerely do we rejoice in your Excellency's success at Trentown, as we conceive it will have the most important publick consequences, and because we think it will do justice, in some degree, to a character we admire, and which we have long wished to appear in the world with that brilliancy that success always obtains, and which the members of Congress know you deserve. Permit us to congratulate you on this success, and to suppose it is only the beginning of more important advantages.

You will excuse us for taking up so much of your time as will be necessary to read this letter, which is not intended as an official letter of business, but merely to gratify our present feelings, and to offer you such thoughts as occur on the present state of affairs, without intending you the trouble of any reply, as we know you have too much writing necessarily.

It appears to us that your attack on Trentown was totally unexpected, the surprise complete, and the success beyond expectation. Could Generals Ewing and Cadwalader have executed their parts, no doubt but more good consequences must have followed instantly. However, we apprehend it is not yet too late, as it appears by General Cadwalader's letter to General Putnam, that the enemy have abandoned all their posts from Bordentown downwards, and fled with precipitation towards South-Amboy. It's probable they are seized with a panick, whilst your forces are flushed with success; and such precious moments should not be lost. We apprehend, if your victory is immediately pursued, and no time allowed the enemy to recover from their surprise, you will have little difficulty in clearing the Jerseys of them. It is probable that those troops whose times of inlistment are now expiring will follow their successful General, although they would have left him whilst acting a defensive part. Be that as it may, we have the pleasure to know that considerable bodies of Associators are marching from every part of this State to your assistance. These have been put in motion when our affairs were at the worst; but you have now given a spring to the tardy spirits, and we think their numbers will be greatly augmented; in short, it is our opinion that you may from this time form a reasonable dependence on daily additions to your force. Common fame will double the numbers of those that actually do turn out; and if such reports reach our enemies, it will probably have great effect on their fears, and assist wonderfully in causing them to evacuate their lately-acquired territory in New-Jersey.

We have received a letter from Colonel Fleming, of the Ninth Virginia Regiment, which is on its march from the Eastern Shore; and we have ordered them a supply of money at the Head of Elk, and the necessary clothing to be got in readiness against they come here. We also expect the Pennsylvania Regulars that have been lately raised in the back Counties of this State; and we understand Militia and other reinforcements are coming from Maryland and Virginia. You may depend we will give every assistance in our power to forward these reinforcements to you, and that we shall assist and advise, far as we are able, in every publick department here.

We have considered that part of your Excellency's letter of the 25th instant, to Mr. Morris, that relates to the seamen in the two New-England battalions, whose times expire with this year; and should any of them obstinately persist in being discharged from your service on New Year's day, we think it advisable to prevail on them to come down here, and assist in getting the frigates out. When they come, we will make the best bargain we can with them; and if nothing else will do, we will engage to send them home in one or two of those ships. If they come on these terms, we think Captain Read and his officers should come with them, that we may, if possible, get away the Washington as well as the Delaware. Congress are very anxious to have these ships out, and will be pleased if this measure is pursued.

We cannot avoid mentioning that we don't think it advisable to exchange your Hessian prisoners at this time. We think their capture affords a favourable opportunity of making them acquainted with the situation and circumstances of many of their countrymen, who came here without a farthing of property, and have, by care and industry, acquired plentiful fortunes, which they have enjoyed in perfect peace and tranquillity until these invaders have thought proper to disturb and destroy those possessions. It will be proper to separate the officers from the men, and to canton the latter in the back Counties; which may be done by the Council of Safety, until the Congress are consulted thereon.

Your Excellency will excuse us for troubling you with our sentiments on these matters; and we think it necessary to apologize for doing so, as it's probable the whole has occurred to yourself.

We remain, with perfect regard and esteem, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servants,

ROBT. MORRIS,
GEO. CLYMER,
GEO. WALTON.

His Excellency General Washington.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO ROBERT MORRIS.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, 28th December, 1776.

SIR: Captain Francis Nichols, who succeeded to the command of the late Captain Hendricks, who was killed at Quebeck, has applied to us for the pay of his company. He was referred to Mease & Caldwell, who, we are told, don't think it lies in their department. We should be glad to know where the officers and men of that corps are to be paid, as frequent application is made to this Board for that purpose, and 'tis out of our power to give them satisfaction on this head. Indeed, much of our time is spent in quieting the discontents of the soldiery, who have not their pay regularly, and are in exceeding great distress for want of it. Some general regulation in that department seems absolutely necessary.

By order of Council:

DAVID RITTENHOUSE, V. President.

To the Honourable Robert Morris, Esq.

GENERAL MIFFLIN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Bristol, Saturday evening, December 28, eight o'clock.

MY DEAR GENERAL: The enclosed I have this minute received from an express sent by my order to General Cadwalader. The General not knowing that I was here, did not write to me; and as I supposed the contents of importance in my movements, I took the liberty to open the letter, for which I must plead only the occasion in excuse.

I came here at four o'clock this afternoon. Five hundred men, sent from Philadelphia yesterday, crossed to Burlington this morning; this evening I sent over near three hundred more; to-morrow seven or eight hundred shall follow. I will cross in the morning, and will endeavour to form them into regiments and brigade. They consist of many different corps, and want much regulation. If your Excellency has any orders for me, other than to join General Cadwalader as soon as possible, please to favour me with such as are necessary, and I will punctually obey them. Pennsylvania is at length roused, and coming in great numbers to your Excellency's aid. Mr. Hall will return with your orders.

I am informed that we cannot cross at Bordentown, nor at any place between that place and this. I have no doubt of effecting it here, having sent from Philadelphia in the morning several fine boats, which are now here.

I most heartily congratulate your Excellency on your late capital stroke, and wish most ardently a repetition.

I am, with great affection and attachment, your Excellency's obedient servant,

THOMAS MIFFLIN.

His Excellency General Washington.

---

COLONEL CADWALADER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Bordenton, 28 December, 1776.

SIR: We arrived here about one o'clock, the advance party about ten. I have sent horsemen to reconnoitre; and from every information the enemy left Allen-Town about eight o'clock this morning. If I had been happy enough to have crossed at Dunk's Ferry, we should have completely destroyed the Army in this quarter. I am informed that the Hessians went off in the utmost confusion. I am sorry some of the troops have marched up to Kirkbridge as it is impossible to get , the commanding officer at Bristol, to . I have about eighteen hundred men, and Colonel Penrose informs me that he is advancing with about five hundred men.

We shall pursue with my troops to-morrow before day. About five hundred go this evening to Crosswix. The enemy are much encumbered with baggage and cattle. I hope to fall on their rear.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN CADWALADER.

To his Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL M'DOUGALL.

Head-Quarters, Newtown, 28th December, 1776.

Dear Sir: I have yours of the 22d, and am sorry that affairs bore so bad an aspect in your quarter at that time; but I hope that the late success at Trenton, on the 26th, and the consequences of it, will change the face of matters not only there, but every where else. I crossed over to Jersey the evening of the 25th, about nine miles above Trenton, with upwards of two thousand men, and attacked three regiments of Hessians, consisting of fifteen hundred men, about eight o'clock next morning. Our men pushed on with such rapidity that they soon carried four pieces of cannon out of six, surrounded the enemy, and obliged thirty officers and eight hundred and eighty-six privates to lay down their arms, without firing a shot. Our loss was only two officers and two or three privates wounded. The enemy had between twenty and thirty killed. We should have made the whole of them prisoners, could General Ewing have passed the Delaware at Trenton, and got in their rear; but the ice prevented him. I am informed that Count Donop, with the remainder of the Army below Trenton, decamped immediately upon this news, and is on his march towards South-Amboy. Generals Mifflin, Ewing, and Cadwalader, have already passed over to Jersey, with a capital force, and I shall follow with the Continental regiments as soon as they have recovered from their late fatigue, which was indeed very great. I hope you, sir, General Maxwell, (to whom I have wrote,) Colonel Vose, Colonel Ford, and every gentleman who is well affected, will exert yourselves in encouraging the Militia, and assuring them that nothing is wanting but for them to lend a hand, and driving the enemy from the whole Province of Jersey. Pray watch the motions of the enemy, and if they incline to retreat or advance, harass their rear and flanks; but at all events endeavour to collect a body of men to be ready to join me, or act otherwise, as occasion shall require.

Your son was mentioned among the first of our prisoners that I demanded in exchange; but General Howe (or Mr. Loring in his absence) sent out others than those I demanded. I have remonstrated to him upon this head, and have assured him that I will send in no more prisoners till he sends out the paroles of the officers taken in Canada.

I am yours, &c.,

Go. Washington.

To Brigadier-General McDougall.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL MAXWELL.

Head-Quarters, December 28th, 1776.

Sir: As I am about to enter the Jerseys with a considerable force immediately, for the purpose of attempting a recovery of that country from the enemy, and as a diversion on your quarter may greatly facilitate this event by distracting and dividing their troops, I must request you will collect all the force in your power together, and annoy and distress them by every means which prudence can suggest. It will be exceedingly proper for you to use every argument to inspirit and encourage the Militia, as also to prevail on the troops commanded by Colonel Vose to continue longer in service. You may assure the Militia that every effort shall be made to rescue their country from the hands of the enemy, and that with their concurrence I hope and expect to effect it. It may be urged to the Eastern troops with great truth, that if a successful opposition is not made to the enemy in the Jerseys, their country will not remain long free from the ravages of war.

I have the pleasure to inform you of the success of an enterprise which took effect the 26th instant, at Trenton. On the night of the preceding day, I crossed the Delaware, with a detachment of the Army, under my command, amounting to about twenty-four hundred. The difficulties arising in the passage of the river prevented my arriving at the town as soon as I expected, by which means the attack did not commence till eight o'clock; when our troops pressed forward with so much ardour and spirit, as never to suffer them to form completely. About seven hundred of the enemy ran away in the beginning of the action; the rest, amounting to one thousand, including thirty officers, after making a feeble opposition, laid down their arms and surrendered themselves prisoners of war. We have taken about one thousand stand of arms, four standards, and six pieces of brass artillery, with some other stores. I have issued some orders to-day for the encouragement of the troops whose terms are near expiring, which I shall be glad you will immediately communicate to them in your orders.

I am, sir, yours, &c.,

Go. Washington.

To Brigadier-General Maxwell.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Head-Quarters, 28th December, 1776.

Dear Sir: Since I had the pleasure of informing you yesterday of our success at Trenton, I have received advice that Count Donnop, with the remainder of the enemy's Army, immediately upon the news, decamped, and was on his retreat towards South-Amboy. On hearing this, Colonel Cadwalader and General Ewing passed the river, with the troops under their command, and General Mifflin will follow this day, with a considerable body of Militia from Pennsylvania, from whence large reinforcements are coming in. I purpose to go over myself, with the whole of the Continental troops, as soon as they are refreshed and recovered of their late fatigue. These added together, will make our force very respectable. I have wrote to General McDougall and General Maxwell, who are at Morristown, and have desired them to collect as large a body of Militia as they possibly can, and whether the enemy advance or retreat, harass them on flank and rear. If they cannot be brought to that, to keep them imbodied till they are joined by our regular troops. Things being in this situation, I think a fair opportunity is offered of driving the enemy entirely from, or at least to the extremity of the Province of Jersey. I would therefore have you advance as rapidly as the season will admit, with the Eastern Militia, by the way of Hackensack, and proceed downwards till you hear from me. I don't think there is the least danger of the enemy's making any move towards the Highlands at this season of the year; that they cannot do it by water is most certain.

I am, dear sir, yours, &c.,

Go. Washington.

To Major-General Heath.

LORD STIRLING TO GOVERNOUR LIVINGSTON.

New-Town, December 28th, 1776.

My dear Sir: I dare say you have heard of our little expedition to Trentown on the night of the 25th; the result was, that we made a most complete surprise on them, and have taken and killed at least one thousand two hundred of the best Hessian troops, with their artillery and stores. The effect is amazing; the enemy have deserted Borden-Town, Black Horse, Burlington, Mount-Holly, and are fled to South-Amboy. We are now in possession of all those places, and the spirit of that part of the country is roused; every part of New-Jersey will take spirit if proper measures be adopted. It will in New-Jersey now greatly depend on your Legislature exerting themselves. The Speaker of your Assembly has summoned its members to be at the Four Lanes, about four miles from hence, on Thursday next. It will be of infinite use that you and some of your Council could be there at the same time, in order to have an immediate meeting of your Legislature. I hope we shall soon be in full possession of New-Jersey; but there is an absolute necessity of a new arrangement of the officers of your quota of the troops for the Continental service. As things now stand, no man of spirit will serve, nor will any one exert themselves in the recruiting service until the appointments of officers is altered; if this is not immediately done the force of New-Jersey is lost. Come, for God's sake, and see these matters regulated; let merit in service, and not dirty connexions, take place. Excuse all this freedom: I write this at the request of General Washington, with a very lame hand, but I hope it will be well enough to give them another drubbing soon. I had the honour to make two regiments of them surrender prisoners of war, and to treat them in such a style as will make the rest of them more willing to surrender than to fight.

Several regiments of the Continental troops are now in Morris County, and some in Bergen County. If your Militia would now exert themselves in small scouting parties, and fall on their detached cantonments, or their line of march in retreat, they would be completely knocked up. Now is the time to exert every nerve; and if we do, General Howe's Army will be ruined; they will have no recruits in the spring, and the next campaign will be our own. God bless you: be active, and make the State of New-Jersey what it ought to be.

Most affectionately yours, STIRLING.

JOSHUA LORING (ENGLISH COMMISSARY) TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

New-York, December 28th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Majors Campbell, Dunbar, and Hughes, Captain Robertson, and Doctor Gill, being taken prisoners in Canada, and now duly exchanged agreeable to General Washington's desire, I am directed by the Commander-in-Chief to apply to you for a safe pass, and your assistance to them in returning to Canada, as they belong to that district. They will wait here for your answer, which request may be as soon as possible, either by a flag of truce to our out-posts at King's Bridge, or any other, the most expeditious, way.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient and most humble servant, JOS'A LORING, Commissary for Prisoners.

GENERAL SIR WILLIAM HOWE TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

New-York, 28th December, 1776.

MY LORD: Lieutenant-Colonel White, who has served a volunteer in this Army for a part of the campaign, and to whom I have given the care of my despatches by this conveyance, has mentioned to me a plan he had the honour of proposing to the Secretary at War, a short time before he left England, for drafting forty or fifty volunteers from each regiment of Dragoons in England, with officers in proportion, to form a battalion to serve on foot in America. As this scheme would add to the Army an exceeding serviceable corps, and well officered, I would humbly submit the propriety of it to your Lordship's consideration, and if approved, hope your Lordship will lay it before the King. I do not dwell upon the particulars of this proposal, as Lieutenant-Colonel White will have the honour of giving your Lordship all the information that may be required, further than to recommend him for the command.

I have the honour to be, your Lordship's faithful and most obedient servant, WILL. HOWE.

PHILIP SKENE TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, the 28th of December, 1776.

SIR: I hear two servants of mine are confined at Litchfield, in your Province, Mr. Sanger the one, Mr. Ludlow the other. As their duty, and bread, led them, as servants, to be careful of my property under them, am induced to write, that upon inquiry they may be returned to their trust, agreeable to the protection given to my estate by Congress. The inhabitants on Skenesborough are my tenants under rent; from them Committees are formed; Mr. Langdon as my clerk, to receive my rents when they offered it. No doubt they would wish to remove him and me, so circumstanced, as well as Mr. Ludlow, my steward; but their principle is no reason that our good constitution should be destroyed, and the faithful servant should be imprisoned, where men of better reason govern. Lord Howe has set all the people taken in his department at liberty, who were not taken in arms, and means so to do; and I am happy to find the General will not take any subject for his principles, not being in arms. It would be felo de se to the very constitution he means to protect; and I hope your Honour will upon inquiry discharge my servants, and let them about their business, as they never did nor will take arms. As to myself I shall sail for Europe in a few days, and hope to be early in the spring at Crown-Point, &c., should not peace take place before that time. The prisoners from the southard are all arrived and exchanged. It now rests with you, sir, to forward those in your Province to exchange, and make no doubt but you will sympathize, so far as in you lies, to relieve the distressed captives.

I have the honour to be, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant, PHILIP SKENE.

P. S. I inquired for Mr. Lee, a friend of Mr. Wadsworth, but cannot find him. Please to let him know this.

Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of Connecticut.

ALEXANDER WALLACE TO GOUVERNEUR MORRIS.

New-York, 28th December, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I got safe home here on the 25th July, and found all my family in good health except my son Hugh, who is very bad, and little hopes of his recovery. Mrs. Hugh Wallace is pretty well in health, but very unhappy about her husband being kept so long from her; and what adds to her distress is the very heavy loss she has met with about ten days ago, in losing all her plate. She sent it to Richard Yates, last summer, at Aquacknack, to be kept there, as a place of safety, but upon his leaving that place, he had the box which contained the plate put on board a brig commanded by Captain Roche, bound to this place. About five miles below Hackensack, the brig was seized by a party of your Army, and all the goods taken out. The plate cost upwards of fifteen hundred pounds, this currency. She thinks the gentlemen belonging to the Convention, when they know it belongs to her, will order it to be sent her immediately, as it would be very hard indeed to send her husband away to Connecticut, and allow her property to be plundered. I must request the favour of you to get this affair settled as soon as possible. Enclosed is an inventory of the plate. It was all in one box. My papers, &c., are in much better order than I expected, but my brother and I shall suffer greatly by being sent away from our property. I have sent your letter to your mother, who is very well, as are all your old friends. I shall go and see your mother in a few days. General Robinson assures me all the women and children, who have a mind to go to their husbands or friends, have liberty to go by this flag or any other way they may think proper. I am sorry Major Fish has not liberty to come on shore, or that Mr. Scott's request is not granted. Be assured I have done all in my power, but have no interest with General Howe. He is too busy at present sending despatches to England, to be seen. You will please present my compliments to all friends; and be assured I am, with great esteem, your much obliged, humble servant, ALEXANDER WALLACE.

Please deliver the enclosed letters. Give the one for Hugh Wallace, to Mr. Samuel Loudon, to be sent by post. My brother has lost all his clothes in the Jerseys. Mrs. Wallace sent them there. Tell Mr. John Ten Brock I have not yet seen Mr. May, but am told he is here.

Gouverneur Morris, Esq., at Fish Kills.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Peek's Kill, December 28, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I have just received the honour of yours of the 21st instant, and am much distressed to hear of the disagreeable situation that your Excellency is like soon to be in.

None of the Eastern Militia have as yet arrived that I know of, except those mentioned in my letter of yesterday. When they come in I shall endeavour strictly to observe your Excellency's directions.

It is truly surprising that whilst the New-England Militia are marching hundreds of miles in a severe season, and leaving a large body of the enemy near the centre of their country, and none but Militia to oppose their attempts to ravage, those who are in immediate danger of destruction should need rousing from a stupid lethargy to save themselves; and it will be more so if they should not be roused.

Philadelphia is undoubtedly an object of great importance, but I think cannot be more so than these passes, of which, if the enemy should avail themselves, all communication between the Eastern and Southern States will be entirely cut off; and I cannot but think this to be a principal object with the enemy.

If I may be allowed to express my own opinion, I think the service cannot, under present circumstances, be better promoted than by posting a respectable body of troops in West-Chester County, and another in the Jerseys, extending from Tappan to Morris-Town. This will produce a diversion on the side of the enemy, and at the same time secure our own communication; whilst in the other case I think it will be in danger of being cut off. Your Excellency's superiour wisdom will, however, best determine what should be done.

By a person the day before yesterday from New-York, we have a confirmation that General Howe is returned to that place, and that barracks are taking up with the greatest expedition, and that a brigade of Hessians have moved up to King's Bridge.

If the Eastern Militia should arrive, agreeable to your Excellency's expectations, I shall without loss of time move forward with them to join your Excellency; being determined, while I continue in the Army, instantly to yield a cheerful obedience to your Excellency's commands.

The Committee from the State of Massachusetts-Bay, when they left this place, committed to my care the commissions, beating orders, &c., for their officers, desiring that I would issue them, agreeable to the directions given to them; and that I would transmit to them a list of the staff for the regiments in the Southern department belonging to that State, for their confirmation and appointment. My excursion into the Jerseys immediately afterwards put it out of my power to pay attention to it. The present scattered state of the field officers of the several regiments still continues it out of my power to answer their expectations.

The recruiting service is an object of the highest importance, for upon the speedy raising and disciplining a new Army is suspended the fate of America and of unborn millions. It is vain to trust to a Militia. Many of those belonging to this State, who have been lately called out under General Clinton, have returned home in three or four days' time.

As I think the enemy are now going into winter quarters, or will in a few days, I solicit your Excellency for leave to ride to New-England for a short time, as I am confident that the publick service may be promoted thereby; and as there are but few Continental troops now in the field, and a great number of General Officers present, and at the same time the Militia which are coming from Massachusetts-Bay fully officered, and commanded by a gentleman of whose "judgment and abilities" your Excellency has expressed "a very high opinion," I think I cannot better serve the publick cause than by paying a particular attention to the forming of the new regiments of that State, of which not only myself, but also the officers, are very desirous. The number of regiments which are to be raised by Massachusetts-Bay, I think affords me ground for a better plea than can be made by any other officer. I ask not for, neither do I desire any particular station, and it is my highest ambition to obey your Excellency's orders; but shall I be thought immodest if I express a desire to command the troops raised by the State to which I belong? This they are anxious of; this I most ardently solicit. To your Excellency's wise determination I submit it.

This moment the express from Providence calls in, on his way to your Excellency, with the agreeable news of the arrival of the Alfred's prize, on which I most heartily congratulate your Excellency. I have also just received a letter from Brigadier-General Warner, informing that one regiment of the Massachusetts Militia are on their march from Danbury to this place, and others soon expected there. General Lincoln is still behind; he was some time since at Providence, but now on his march. General Pomroy is coming Colonel of a regiment from the County of Hampshire.

I shall invariably pursue your Excellency's orders, but request your indulgence of my desire so far as it is consistent with the publick good, for which I am determined to sacrifice every consideration.

I have the honour to be, with great respect and esteem, your Excellency's most humble servant,

W. Heath.

His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. I am just informed that the enemy are making a large number of sleds in New-York. I am also informed by a person from that place, that a number of men are employed by Billy Bayard to intercept our intelligence if possible. It therefore behooves our post-riders to be very careful.

GENERAL ARNOLD TO GENERAL HEATH.

Fish Kill, December 28th, 1776.

Dear General: This minute I arrived here from Head-Quarters, on my way to join our Army at or near Providence. I have received express orders from General Washington to forward on the Militia from Massachusetts and Connecticut as fast as possible to Head-Quarters, as his Excellency has very little dependence on the Militia of Pennsylvania, Jerseys, or on the troops he now has, their times of inlistment being so near at an end. He apprehends it will be very difficult to retain them any considerable time.

I have the pleasure to hear this minute that a large number of the Militia are arrived at Peak's Kills. I make no doubt you will forward them on as fast as possible. General Washington will be glad to know as early as possible what number there are, and when he may expect they will join him.

I am, with esteem, dear General, your obedient, humble servant,

B. Arnold.

Major-General Heath.

---

JONATHAN POLLARD TO WILLIAM DUER.

Head-Quarters, Peekskill, December 28th, 1776.

Sir: I yesterday, by order of General Heath, wrote to the honourable President of your Convention, wherein I mentioned the names of the prisoners desired to be sent to Gloucester County, and also that the four last had not passed examination.

The General further desires that they may be examined as soon as may be, as he thinks they will appear innocent.

I now send them on to you, under a guard of a Sergeant and ten men.

I am, sir, with respect, your humble servant,

Jona. Pollard, A. D. C.

To William Duer, Esq.

---

Peeks Kill, 28th December, 1776.

To the Captain of the Main Guard:

Sir: Send to the General's quarters, under a proper guard, Sergeant Gripp, Sergeant Hathaway, Corporal Seers, and Corporal Gray.

By order of Major-General Heath.

Eben. Huntington, Dept. Adj. Gen'l.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read January 14th: Referred to the Board of War.]

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, Fishkill, December 28th, 1776.

Sir: I am directed by the Convention to make a second application to Congress upon the subject of clothing and blankets for our troops. It is needless to repeat that the distresses of this State incapacitated us from procuring the necessary supplies of these articles; and any person who considers that we are entirely secluded from the sea, that we have no kind of commerce, and that in the Eastern States these articles have been taken for the use of the troops as they might send, will readily perceive that unless Congress will make an order in our favour for as much as will be necessary for the men raised within this State, they must go utterly naked; and how far this is consistent with the good of the service and the safety of America, it will not be difficult to determine. It is highly distressing to us to be besieged by ragged wretches, asking wherewithal to hide them from the inclemencies of the season; and this distress will be infinitely increased if, after repeated endeavours to warm them with hope, we shall be at last reduced to the necessity of telling them that although there are materials enough in America for their comfortable accommodation, we have not sufficient interest to procure any, and that therefore they must even freeze as patiently as they can. This is no exaggeration. The people of this State believe, and we hope with justice, that the captures and importations lately made on account of Congress are amply sufficient for all their troops. If we now had a sufficiency of clothes and blankets, our proportion of troops could take the field very soon complete. If these things cannot be procured they must disband in a short time. For these reasons we have written to Congress, confiding in their wisdom to make a proper provision for this service in such manner as they shall think best.

The Convention, sir, further direct me to assure Congress that it is with much reluctance they are obliged to step out of their own line and animadvert upon matters within the department of others; but the dictates of humanity oblige them to mention, that there are numbers of sick in this place dying for want of the commonest attentions. Without blankets, medicines, and the proper care of physicians, they are reduced to the lowest ebb of human wretchedness; and what astonishes us still more—what, indeed, hardly any evidence would make a man of sense believe, is, that between two and three hundred soldiers are now here returned unfit for duty, because there is not sulphur to cure them of the itch. We must, therefore, submit it to Congress whether it would not be proper to have some arrangements made for a hospital, in such manner as at least to leave men who are sick a possibility of recovering.

I am further directed, sir, to inform you that the Convention view with the most anxious solicitude the several fruitless attempts made to prevent the enemy penetrating the interiour parts of this State through Hudson's river. The successful exertions we have lately made in favour of New-Jersey will convince every candid mind that our emotions arise from the importance of this object to the freedom of America, more than from the immediate danger to which our own territory is exposed. For however this State may have been censured for a listless inattention to the great cause in which we are engaged, and however severe the trial of her virtue during the campaign, we still dare to sacrifice the little which is left us. But when we consider that the loss of what country still remains to us would give a fatal stab to the freedom of our sister States, we then feel the deepest concern at beholding this great river open to the incursions of the enemy's fleets. Those fortifications which have been erected were constructed without skill, and yet remain incomplete; what is still worse, they are in a great measure unprovided of cannon. On this side the Highlands, the navigation may, we believe, be effectually obstructed, and such works erected as not only to cover those obstructions, but to endanger any vessel which should attempt to remove them; while, upon a supposition that one or two of the enemy's ships should force a passage, the frigates now in our river, if properly equipped, would be able to cope with them. But how are these objects to be effected without engineers, sailors, or cannon? We must, therefore, entreat Congress to pay a particular attention to the welfare of America in this important instance.

The Convention, sir, are also much concerned to find that the laying up proper magazines of provisions and forage hath as yet been utterly neglected; and I am sorry to add, that in the next campaign, unless great attention be paid to these things, the enemy will be in the full career of victory before our Army can take the field. Whether the appointing a Commissary of Forage would not in some sort remedy this inconvenience, by relieving the Quartermaster from a burthen he cannot possibly undergo consistent with the due attention to the business of this department, must be submitted to your better judgment; and at the same time, we would suggest that as it is of some advantage to General Officers to be acquainted with the country in which they are to march and fight, it would not be quite useless to have a proper department for sketching out these rivers, roads, defiles, &c., which may soon be the scenes of important transactions. But should these hints be thought of so much consequence as to obtain a part in your deliberations, we must take the liberty of cautioning Congress against the hasty appointment of persons inadequate to the duties of their offices and unacquainted with the resources of the country; and we are sorry to apologize for this freedom of observing that such appointments have in some instances already been almost fatal to the service; not to mention the indecency (much too frequent among some of the officers) of applying not only to the Convention, but even to the County Committees, for instructions and assistance in the very line of their duty.

As two of the Delegates from this State, Mr. Livingston and Colonel Floyd, have left Philadelphia, and the Convention did not know whether Mr. Lewis was certainly there, I am directed, sir, to enclose you a copy of an Address of this Convention to their constituents. The Convention intended to have it translated into German, and three hundred copies sent hither for the use of such of their inhabitants as speak that language. If Mr. Lewis is now at Philadelphia he will take care to complete this business; and if not, we must entreat that Congress will be pleased to direct it at the expense of this State, for which we shall be much obliged, as it may, in the opinion of this Convention, tend in some small degree to rouse the people from that lethargick situation which must in the end prove fatal to American freedom. We only lament that the Congress themselves have not paid some small attention to this object, since the wisdom of their councils and their own dignity must have given infinite weight to sentiments of such general importance.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant.

By order: AB'M TEN BROECK, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

January 1st, 1777.

SIR: Since writing the above letter, the Convention are informed that Congress have given orders to the Commissary and Quartermaster-General to lay up magazines of forage, to the perfecting of which business the Convention will give every assistance in their power.

We congratulate you, sir, and the Congress upon the success of your arms at Trenton, and wish the New Year may be attended with frequent instances of the same happy complection.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

AB'M TEN BROECK, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

REPORT ON SALTPETRE IN NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

A. M., December 28th, 1776.

Mr. David Gelston, one of the Committee formerly appointed on the 14th day of October to have the Saltpetre manufactured in Suffolk County, and thence removed to Connecticut, transported to this State, delivered in their Report; which was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee appointed to transport to this place the Saltpetre manufactured upon Long-Island, and transported to Connecticut, do report:

That whereas Mr. Gelston has collected from sundry persons five hundred and eighty-five pounds fourteen ounces, part of which he has paid for to the amount of £128 5*s.*, and that there is in the hands of other persons a quantity of Saltpetre manufactured upon Long-Island, to the amount of six or seven hundred pounds, or thereabouts, making in the whole about twelve hundred pounds, which will amount, at 6*s.*, to £360: And whereas Mr. Gelston has received £ on account,

Therefore Resolved, That this Convention advance to Mr. Gelston the sum of £300, to enable him to pay for the same, and transport it to this place as soon as may be with conveniency.

And whereas the persons who have manufactured the Saltpetre purchased by Mr. Gelston have suffered the loss of their works by the enemy's taking possession of Long-Island: And whereas the Convention of this State did, on the fifteenth day of October last, agree to give 8*s.* 6*d.* per pound for all such Saltpetre as should be made in this State out of materials collected within the same, from the said 15th day of October last until the 1st day of January, 1778:

Therefore Resolved, That Mr. Gelston be authorized to give the further sum of 2*s.* 6*d.* per pound for the Saltpetre above-mentioned, as an indemnification for the loss of such works as aforesaid; and that he be allowed a further sum of £150 to enable him to pay the same; and that he account to this or a future Legislature for the moneys by him so received.

DAVID GELSTON.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Middletown, December 28th, 1776.

SIR: The General Assembly of this State, at their last session, in November last, ordered four battalions to be raised in this State, to march and be stationed as part of the Continental Army, and to serve until the 15th of March, while our quota of said Army is filling up. Considerable progress is made therein; but fearing there would not a sufficient number of them arrive in season, and before the term of our troops in the service should expire, and hearing of the situation of our affairs and the efforts of General Howe to penetrate to the capital of Pennsylvania, the said General Assembly, now sitting here, zealously disposed to promote the common cause of America, and lend all the aid in their power, having issued out pressing recommendations to all denominations of men in the western parts of this State immediately to exert themselves and cheerfully engage as volunteers, and march with all possible speed for the assistance of General Washington's Army, for the term of two months, and not longer without their own free consent,—in consequence of which, several companies (I have not yet ascertained how many) of able, substantial freeholders, many of them not belonging to the Militia, have engaged with a generous ardour to serve as above. They were allowed to have chosen their own officers. In some instances which I have heard of already, field officers at home have accepted the command of companies, (a laudable condescension and zeal.) I thought it, therefore, my duty, and justice to their spirit and patriotism, to inform you of their character and the circumstances of their undertaking, and to request you to consider them in a favourable light, to support and afford them all the necessaries of tents, camp utensils, and every proper convenience in your power. It is not possible for us to supply them with those articles, as we are extremely exhausted. The disposition and spirit of the inhabitants of this State is unaltered, but we are weakened by the constant demand of men and every kind of clothing, &c. Our whole Militia have had their turns of duty, and have suffered greatly by hardships and sickness, and many deaths of valuable and substantial officers and men, and a larger number now at Providence and on our sea-coasts, so that they cannot but feel a good deal of discouragement; but I hope will soon recruit their health and spirits. From your knowledge of human nature, sense of the importance of our common cause, and your own honour and humanity, I have not the least doubt of your treating these volunteers, and all under your command, with all the favour, generosity, and goodness, in your power.

I am, with great respect and esteem, your most obedient and very humble servant.

To his Excellency General Washington, and the Commanders on any posts of the Continental Army.

JONATHAN WARNER TO GENERAL HEATH.

Danbury, December 28th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Agreeable to request, I have ordered one regiment to march this morning for Peekskill. I should have sent them forward sooner, but it was not in my power to procure provisions sufficient for the march. It is very unhappy for us that there was nobody appointed in this place to supply these troops. I applied to Mr. John McLain, who has done all in his power to help us to bread, and is willing to undertake to supply the whole of the Bay recruits now on their march, provided he be properly deputized and appointed by authority for that purpose; and I fear that we shall be unable properly to supply the men, except that should be the case. I shall do all in my power to forward the troops as fast as they come up. I forwarded the express to General Lincoln, but have had no return.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

JONA. WARNER.

N. B. Mr. McLain is one of the Selectmen and Committee for this town, and is a very suitable person, in my opinion, to be appointed a Deputy Commissary, and I think it highly necessary that he should be immediately deputized for that purpose.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO JOHN LANGDON.

On board the Warren, between Providence and Newport, December 28th, 1776.

SIR: Captain Whipple, late of the Columbus, his officers and men, understand you have sold and collected the money for the prize ship Royal Exchange; and as the service of the States will not permit the officers and people to go to the different States to collect their prize money, they have sent Mr. Joseph Hardy, clerk of the Columbus, to bring it on board to be distributed. I think it will be for the general good that you pay him the captors' part, first deducting your commissions; and his receipt will be your discharge for said part.

I am, with great regard, sir, your most humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

To John Langdon, Esq., Continental Agent for the State of New-Hampshire.

---

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO JOHN BRADFORD.

On board the Warren, between Providence and Newport, December 28th, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of the 24th instant. Am glad that care is taken to unload the Mellish, which, by a letter received from Mr. Jarvis, I believe is done. I am extremely obliged to you for the favour done me by supplying my son with thirty pounds, which was sufficient for him; but am at a loss how you should think my prize money was connected with the company's, as the Congress have settled my part at one-twentieth of the captors' part. I have applied to Captain Whipple in respect to sending you a list of the men concerned, but as the greatest part of the officers and men are now on duty on board the several vessels in this harbour, the general interest of the country will not permit their applying in person to the several agents for their money, so that if it can't be distributed to them on board, they must go without it; to remedy which, Captain Whipple, his officers and people, have sent Mr. Hardy, clerk of the Columbus, to bring the money on board, which I hope will be agreeable, you first taking out your commissions and the money you advanced my son, and Mr. Hardy's receipt will be your discharge. Captain Whipple would not have taken this step if there was any other way to satisfy his officers and people. Shall be greatly obliged to you if you will take care of my part of the other prizes within your jurisdiction until you receive my orders to send it me.

I am, with esteem, sir, your humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

P. S. Enclosed you have a copy of the resolve of Congress in respect to my share of the prize money.

To John Bradford, Esq., Continental Agent at Boston.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO LEONARD JARVIS.

On board the Warren, between Providence and Newport, December 28th, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of the 24th instant, and am glad to hear the goods are secured out of reach of the enemy, as they are much wanted by our Army. I was not knowing to Mr. Russel's coming to assist you, but believe it was done by the Governour and Council, with the advice of some of the principal men of your State. I desired Mr. Tillinghast to send Mr. Jenckes to assist in procuring the carts, which I did by the advice of General Lincoln, and can assure you it was done with a view of the general good, and not with any design of intruding on your department, as I could not tell whether you might arrive at home soon enough for that purpose, and on seeing a letter from you to Mr. Tillinghast was surprised you should take it amiss.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

To Mr. Leonard Jarvis, Deputy Agent for the State of Massachusetts.

BENJAMIN HARRISON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, December 29, 1776.

SIR: It is the wish of the Committee of Secret Correspondence to avoid as much as possible doing injury to the State of Maryland, for which reason they return you many thanks for your obliging compliance with their request as to the brig; but seeing the great prejudice their taking of her would be to the State, most willingly give her up, provided the Council shall favour them with a small armed schooner now in this port, which they hope will answer their purpose. The price will be left to your honourable Board, which it is expected will be what she cost the State. Your immediate answer will much oblige your most humble servant.

To the President of the Council of Safety of Maryland.

BENJAMIN RUMSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Joppa, 29th December, 1776.

I do hereby certify, that I am and have been for a number of years acquainted with Captain Bennett Mathew; that during a great part of that time he followed the sea, and commanded a ship, of which he was, as I understand, half owner; that I have always heard that he had served a regular apprenticeship to the sea, and followed it till a few years ago, when he retired to a paternal estate. He has always bore the character of an expert and able seaman, and on shore an honest man; and if the Council of Safety will give him the command of a galley, I am convinced he will acquit himself with such spirit, skill, and honour, as not to discredit or bring disgrace on those who appointed him, and that he will do his country all the service in his power.

BENJAMIN RUMSEY.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

---

ROBERT MORRIS TO BENJAMIN HARRISON.

Philadelphia, December 29th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I received, yesterday, yours of the 25th, by express, with the sundry enclosures, with which I shall do the needful; but I think you should send copies by some of the outward-bound vessels from Virginia and Maryland. There is a new ship of Mr. Archibald Buchanan's near ready to sail for France, from Baltimore, and I fancy your son must have either the Aurora, Gratz Birg, or the snow about sailing; and I don't yet hear of any British cruisers at the Capes of Virginia. If any do appear, pray inform me of it. I must send you an order to receive from the Secret Committee about twenty-seven hundred pounds, and send it down to Ben, by the first opportunity. I have received the money here from Mr. Hare, and used it for the Secret Committee, who must repay it; and Ben is to lay it out in tobacco, concerning which I wrote him two posts ago. I shall make additions to the letter to our Commissioners, suited to our present circumstances, and send you copies in due time.

I detained this express until this morning, hoping to give you some news from General Cadwalader; but no accounts are yet come in. I wrote to General Washington, and said every thing I could say with decency to encourage a pursuit of our enemies with his whole force. Our Militia are daily coming in, and I really hope to see him strong enough to drive the invaders out of New-Jersey, and then Congress may come back here. I believe it would have an excellent effect, were they to return immediately. Our friends would be inspirited, and our external and internal foes would form favourable judgments of our support and strength from it. A few days more will determine whether it will be proper or not, and soon as I can I will write a publick letter on that subject. Your invitation to join you is very civil; but you know I have always been satisfied with Philadelphia and the Hills, and I have, throughout this alarm, been determined not to quit until fairly drove off. At the same time, I have been constantly prepared, my things packed up, horses and carriage ready at any moment, and constant means of intelligence, had they approached.

I beg my compliments to all friends; and tell Ben. Levy I expect he will be a very great politician, now the great council have removed his quarters.

We had a merry Christmas at Smith's, in spite of the times. The absence of my family sits grievously hard on me, as never parted with them before; but my time is too much employed to dwell much upon any subject; and I am now pleasing myself with the thoughts of bringing them back. I dine at the Hills to-day; and have done so every Sunday. Thus you see I continue my old practice of mixing business and pleasure, and ever found them useful to each other.

I am, with great affection, your friend and servant,

ROBT. MORRIS.

To the Honourable Benjamin Harrison, Esq., Member of Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO ROBERT MORRIS.

New-Town, December 29th, 1776.

Dear Sir: The enclosed letter to Congress will show you my intention of passing the river again, and the plans I have in view. After you have perused it, I beg your care of it, and that it may be enclosed and transmitted 'em by the earliest opportunity.

I am, dear sir, with sentiments of great regard, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

P. S. I shall be particularly obliged to your care of the two other letters enclosed. That for Mrs. Washington, you will have put in the post office.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 3d January, 1777.]

New-Town, December 29, 1776.

Sir: I am just setting out to attempt a second passage over the Delaware, with the troops that were with me on the morning of the 26th. I am determined to effect it if possible; but know that it will be attended with much fatigue and difficulty on account of the ice, which will neither allow us to cross on foot, or give us an easy passage with boats. General Cadwalader crossed from Bristol on the 27th, and by his letter of yesterday was at Bordentown, with about eighteen hundred men. In addition to these, General Mifflin sent over five hundred from Philadelphia on Friday, three hundred yesterday evening from Burlington, and will follow to-day with seven or eight hundred more. I have taken every precaution in my power for subsisting of the troops, and shall, without loss of time, and as soon as circumstances will admit of, pursue the enemy in their retreat, try to beat up more of their quarters, and, in a word, in every instance adopt such measures as the exigency of our affairs requires and our situation will justify. Had it not been for the unhappy failure of Generals Ewing and Cadwalader in their attempts to pass on the night of the 25th, and if the several concerted attacks could have been made, I have no doubt but that our views would have succeeded to our warmest expectations. What was done occasioned the enemy to leave their several posts on the Delaware with great precipitation. The peculiar distresses to which the troops who were with me were reduced by the severities of cold, rain, snow, and storm, the charge of the prisoners they had taken, and another reason that might be mentioned, and the little prospect of receiving succours on account of the season and situation of the river, would not authorize a further pursuit at that time. Since transmitting the list of prisoners, a few more have been discovered and taken in Trenton; among 'em a Lieutenant-Colonel and a Deputy Adjutant-General; the whole amounting to about one thousand.

I have been honoured with your letter of the 23d, and its several enclosures, to which I shall pay due attention. A flag goes in this morning with a letter to General Howe, and another to General Lee. For the latter, Robert Morris, Esq., has transmitted a bill of exchange, drawn by two British officers, for £116 9*s.* 3*d.*, on Major Small, for money furnished them in South-Carolina, which I trust will be paid. This supply is exclusive of the sum you have resolved to be sent him, and which Mr. Morris will procure in time.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

P. S. I am under great apprehensions about obtaining proper supplies of provision for the troops. I fear it will be extremely difficult, if not impracticable, as the enemy, from every account, has taken and collected every thing they could find.

To the Hon. John Hancock, &c.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO LIEUTENANT-GENERAL HOWE.

Head-Quarters, Bucks County, December 29th, 1776.

Sir: I take the liberty of enclosing you a letter for General Lee, which I must beg the favour of you to have forwarded as early as possible, as it contains a draft upon Major Small for a sum of money, of which I fear the General will be in want.

A division of prisoners of the Seventh Regiment, with Captain Newmarsh, crossed the river at Easton, and went in without Mr. Moylan's knowledge. From the irregularity of the officer who conducted them, who did not make me a return of their names and rank, I am ignorant of either. I shall therefore be much obliged if you will order Mr. Loring to furnish me with a proper list of them, that I may make a demand of the like number in exchange.

I am, sir, &c.,

Go. Washington.

To Lieutenant-General Howe.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LEE.

Newtown, 29th December, 1776.

Dear Sir: I have the pleasure of enclosing you a letter from your friend Robert Morris, Esq., with a draft on Major Small for £116 9*s.* 3*d.* sterling.

It will afford me the highest satisfaction to receive a line from you, informing me of the state of your health and your situation, in both of which I hope you are as happy as a person under your circumstances can possibly be.

Such further supplies as you may have occasion for, shall be from time to time remitted to you.

I am, dear sir, yours, &c., Go. Washington.

To Major-General Lee, Prisoner.

GENERAL MAXWELL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Morristown, 29 December, 1776.

Sir: I arrived here the 24th, past eleven o'clock at night, found things not in so good a state as I could wish. General McDougall commanded, and as he seemed to be well acquainted with the state of the troops, and where the different necessaries was most likely to be found to support them, I was not anxious to take much of the command upon me for some days, but assisted all I could. He says I must take it all to-morrow. I endeavoured to rouse out the Militia to the westward, but I met a good many of them going home, some whose month was out, some not. They promised to be out again in eight or ten days. I hope they will keep their words. Before I came here they had begun the recruiting under Colonel Ford, to the 1st of April, and seemed to go on rapidly, I suppose many of the men with a design to take the two bounties; but that we must put up with. The Captains have let most of their men go a-recruiting, by which means there is scarcely any of the Militia here but those out on the different passes. I have ordered them all in the 1st of January. Colonel Ford makes no doubt of making up a full regiment out of them, with a few others, for three years or during the war, shortly after he has the regiment formed, if your Excellency will give him assurance that he shall have the command of them when so engaged. I think it is the most likely place to raise the regiment you spoke of; and from the small acquaintance I have had with Colonel Ford, he appears very zealous for the service, and I believe will command them with a good deal of reputation.

General McDougall has been trying with the New-England troops, before and since I came, to stay; first for one month, and then for a fortnight. I have done and said what I could. The latter proposal, the majority, or, as they say, mostly all have agreed to, but have not been able to get a definitive answer from them yet.

You see the condition I am in at present, and not very likely to get provisions and forage for the few I have. I am determined to suspend the Quartermaster till your pleasure is known, for he does nothing. He is a son of General Williamson, who has resigned.

There has been troops of Horse in these parts before. General McDougall has been trying to assemble them. Some of them are absolutely necessary—the General thinks forty. There is such a chain of garrisons round us, like a half moon, that I think the above will not be too many. There was some engaged part of this summer. They were promised twelve shillings per day, and find every thing themselves. They have the same promise now, till your Excellency's pleasure is known; and then they are to put up with the pay and allowance of the Army. If the Quartermaster and Commissary-Generals will send me the prices and forage with the Army, I will insist on having them articles at the same rate here. Let me know if you want a large quantity of either laid in here. There are some few Highlanders and Hessians taken daily: What shall I do with them? A great many Tories, amongst whom is Benjamin Morgan, Esq., from Boundbrook, for administering the oath of allegiance to the country people: What shall I do with them?

Captain Kenedy is here on his parole; a very unfit place for him, as it is impossible to prevent intelligence passing to the enemy. I find lead is very scarce here. There are two pieces of artillery here, but neither officers nor men to work them, nor matches. I wish to have some sent. The commanding officers of the New-England troops told me to-night, they made no doubt of their men declaring to stay to-morrow.

I congratulate your Excellency heartily on your late success; it raises the drooping spirits of the people, and will much forward the recruiting.

I am your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

Wm. Maxwell.

His Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the American Forces.

---

GENERAL SIR WILLIAM HOWE TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

New-York, December 29, 1776.

On the 25th instant, in the evening, a party of the enemy attacked an out-guard from the post of Trenton, where Colonel Rall commanded with three battalions of Hessians, fifty Chasseurs, and twenty Light-Dragoons, having with them six field-pieces, which party was beaten back.

On the succeeding morning, at six o'clock, the Rebels appeared in force with cannon, evidently intending to attack the post. Colonel Rall, having received intelligence of their design, had the troops under arms, and detached his own regiment to support an advanced picket: this picket being forced, and falling back upon the regiment, threw it into some disorder, which occasioned them to retire upon the other battalions; no advantage being taken of this, they recovered themselves and the whole formed in front of the village.

The Rebels, without advancing, cannonaded them in this situation, and Colonel Rall moved forward to attack them, with the regiments of Lossberg and Rall; in which attack Colonel Rall was wounded, and the regiments were made prisoners. The Rebels then advanced to the regiment of Knyphausen, and also made that corps prisoners.

Some few officers, and about two hundred men of the brigade, with the Chasseurs and a party of Dragoons, retreated to Colonel Donop's corps at Burdenton, six miles distant. Several officers were wounded, and about forty men killed and wounded.

This misfortune seems to have proceeded from Colonel Rall's quitting his post, and advancing to the attack, instead of defending the village.

The Rebels recrossed the river Delaware immediately, with the prisoners and cannon they had taken.

HUGH HUGHES TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Peekskill, 29th December, 1776.

Sir: I have endeavoured to comply with your Excellency's instructions relative to the department, as far as time and circumstances would permit.

The tents, to the amount of about eight hundred, good and bad, have been forwarded to Fishkill, as well as the entrenching tools, pots, and camp-kettles, unless it be those received within three or four days. I have ordered an exact return to be made from the Fishkill, which, with the like of what is here, shall be forwarded as soon as possible. It was thought most advisable to detain those delivered in last, on account of the expected Militia. The tents are in very bad plight, the most of them; to remedy which, I have sent for a tentmaker to New-Haven, and ordered up all the old sails I could collect here, with others taken by General Heath at Hackensack.

As to the tools, I am at a loss, till I receive further instructions, how to get them repaired; the artificers' times being expired, and no orders relative to them being come to hand, makes it difficult how to act; especially as I have no cash to discharge their abstracts, having paid the last yesterday. I borrowed three thousand two hundred and fifty dollars, in hopes that it would enable me to answer the most pressing demands; but that also is expended. I have written six letters, at different times, to General Mifflin, on this subject, but am apprehensive some of them have miscarried, or perhaps his absence from Head-Quarters may have prevented an answer, as I received none till yesterday, and no mention of the cash in that. This is such a necessary article, at present especially, that I hope your Excellency has ordered some provision to be made for the department at this post before this arrives; as I find, by Colonel Biddle's letter, that the last but one of mine got safe to Head-Quarters, in which I had repeated my apprehensions of being out of cash before any could arrive.

As Colonel Biddle was directed to advise me of your Excellency's order concerning the clothing, I beg leave to refer your Excellency to a letter on that subject, which goes by the same conveyance as this, to him.

I have employed several hands to repair the different kinds of boats belonging to the Army, and purpose, if plank and boards can be had, to have more of every sort built, unless countermanded.

It appears to me that the inlisting of teamsters and wagoners, independent of the Army, and that for a year at least, would be productive of advantage to the service. As long as they know that they can go to their regiments when they choose, they are regardless of their teams; whereas, if they are entirely attached to them, there will be a great inducement to keep them in order, as well as the carriages. As the service has, and does now suffer, for want of some further regulation of this sort, I could not be silent on an affair which so nearly affects the Army. My reason for mentioning the affair is, that it cannot be done, I conceive, without your Excellency's approbation.

The late conduct of the artificers seems to make it necessary that they should undergo a reform of men or measures. Bacon's abstract, which has just come in, amounts to a thousand pounds, lawful, and it is thought by all that they have not earned three hundred of it. Neither is that the only evil; but when every thing is at stake, they can't be prevailed on to drive a nail or set a shoe. I don't care who has the management, if the work is but done, sir.

Any further instructions that may be necessary, I shall gladly endeavour to execute with fidelity.

I am, with regard and respect, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

Hugh Hughes.

His Excellency General Washington.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Albany, December 29th, 1776.

Sir: As I have not been honoured with a line from Congress on the subject of the preparations necessary for the next campaign in the northern quarter, although I transmitted my opinion on the subject at the beginning of November, I conclude the enemy's manœuvres in Jersey have so entirely engrossed their attention, that they have not been able to attend to what I suggested. I have therefore resolved, without waiting any longer for their directions, as the winter is slipping away, to carry into execution whatever I deem essential to the service, and which does not admit of further delay; of which, amongst other things, that of procuring a sufficiency of cannon for the defence of Ticonderoga, &c., is a capital article. I should, therefore, be glad to know what cannon you can furnish me with, and where I may send for them, as I wish that an article so extremely difficult to move in the spring of the year should be carried to the places for which they are designed whilst we are favoured with good sledding. A very considerable quantity of shot is also wanted; and as Mr. Livingston's furnace is out of blast, I cannot procure them there. Can these be got at Salisbury, and when? Besides the cannon for the forts, a number will be wanted for five or six stout galleys, which I propose to build in Lake George, to prevent the enemy's penetrating by that lake, if they should be able to dislodge us from the Ticonderoga side of Lake Champlain, and draw their boats by land into Lake George, which it would be possible for them to do, although we keep possession of Mount Independence. By the way of Skeensborough, I am morally sure they will not be able to penetrate, as I hope in the course of the winter so effectually to obstruct the lake between Ticonderoga and the Mount, as that no kind of vessel will be able to pass, unless they first make themselves masters of Mount Independence, which I think will be impossible if we can procure men, cannon, and ammunition. A stock of provisions I shall take care to lay in this winter.

Colonel Simmons, with part of a regiment from the Massachusetts-Bay, is on his way from hence to Ticonderoga. I shall be extremely happy to see a succession of troops coming on, for I very much fear that the garrison will not be detained after the term of their inlistment expires.

I shall want two companies of carpenters to construct the vessels intended for Lake George. Captain Lester and Captain Winslow gave good satisfaction last campaign, and I wish them to be employed in that business. Permit me to beg the favour of you to inquire of them if they will each raise a company, so as to leave Connecticut about the first day of April. As Fort George is in an extremely healthy place, they will, in all probability, not suffer so much by sickness as they did at Skeensborough.

I have the pleasure to inform you that I have received friendly messages from the Indians, who seem determined to observe a strict neutrality.

Please to accept my best respects, and the compliments of the season; and may the Supreme Being continue a succession of them to you and yours, in health and liberty, is the sincere wish of, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

The Hon'ble Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., &c., &c.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Baltimore, December 30th, 1776.

SIR: You will perceive from the whole tenour of the enclosed resolves which I have the honour of transmitting, that Congress have paid every attention to the situation of the Northern Army which the circumstances of it required. On the 25th instant they passed sundry resolves, urging the States of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay, and Connecticut, to send forward to Ticonderoga, with the utmost expedition, a body of four thousand five hundred troops. These resolves I despatched immediately, accompanied with letters, wherein I informed them of the very critical situation of that fortress. As the troops who at present garrison it were resolved not to stay after the 31st day of December, the day on which their time expired, every consideration that had a tendency to induce them to comply immediately with the requisition of Congress, I endeavoured to hold up to them in the most striking view. To the same effect, also, I wrote them before Congress removed from Philadelphia, in consequence of your representing that you wished Congress would stimulate them to a compliance with your letter on that subject. These measures, I trust, will prove successful, and be attended with the preservation of Ticonderoga during the winter. In pursuance of the enclosed resolve, I have wrote to Governour Trumbull, desiring him to have twenty eighteen-pounders cast with all possible expedition, and transported to Ticonderoga, for which you will please to provide carriages. I have likewise wrote to the Commissary-General to procure provision for five thousand men for eight months, to be sent to Fort Ann, and an equal quantity to be lodged in Albany, and to be occasionally removed as circumstances may make it necessary. He is also directed to send a sufficient quantity of salt to cure the provisions, and by all means to supply the Northern Army with vegetables and vinegar this winter. The Congress have resolved that the present mode of supplying that Army, by the Commissary-General, under the direction of the Commander-in-Chief, is more advantageous than that by a contractor could possibly be.

As a General Hospital is to be erected on Mount Independence, the Congress are desirous that a garden should be enclosed in the neighbourhood of the same, that the Army may be the better supplied with vegetables the ensuing winter. You will therefore be pleased to appoint some suitable person as an overseer, to see this resolve carefully complied with. The many disorders that have crept into the Hospitals render it absolutely necessary that the strictest inquiry should be made into the conduct of the Directors, their officers and dependents, and that the offenders should be punished. You will please to order the commanding officer of every regiment to pay the greatest attention to the health of the men under his command, and to report any misconduct or neglect of the Surgeons to the General, and likewise to Congress.

I shall transmit to the State of Massachusetts-Bay the enclosed resolves, by which they are requested to procure such a quantity of oakum and other articles, as you shall think proper to write for.

In consequence of your favour of the 10th instant, which was laid before Congress, the Committee appointed to consider the same are directed to send some persons to Mr. Livingston, Governour Trumbull, and to the State of Massachusetts-Bay, to procure the cannon and ordnance stores you mentioned in your letter of that date as being immediately necessary for the Northern department. The Congress have the firmest reliance on your best exertions to carry the enclosed resolves into that effect, and depend much on your assistance in accomplishing their views in that quarter. Should we succeed in our attempts to prevent the incursions of the enemy into the back settlements of the New-England and New-York States, by a vigorous defence of Ticonderoga and the adjacent posts, the happiest consequences to America must result from it, and the glory of completing this great work, I trust, will be reserved for you. As your inclination at all times prompts you to undertake whatever has the prospect of advancing the good of your country, so your wisdom and abilities will certainly enable you to execute the task.

General Gates arrived in this town the day before yesterday, in a very poor state of health, but is since much recovered.

The enclosed copy of resolves vesting General Washington with very large and important powers, the Congress were induced to pass in hopes of retrieving thereby the present unfavourable situation of our affairs. To them I beg leave to refer you; and have the honour to be, with great esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

General Schuyler.

P. S. I most sincerely congratulate you on the success of General Washington. The enclosed printed account will give you all the particulars we are possessed of. This may give a different face to our affairs, and be productive of very happy consequences. I have not time to add, only to beg your attention to the several resolves enclosed. You will observe Congress have laid an embargo on the exportation of salted provisions and some other necessaries. Should any thing material occur, you may depend I will give you the earliest notice of it. Wishing you the compliments of the season, I am your very humble servant,

J. H., Pres't.

I never heard any thing of my band of musick since I wrote you.

General Schuyler, Albany.

CIRCULAR FROM THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Baltimore, December 30th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Ever attentive to the security of civil liberty, Congress would not have consented to the vesting such powers in the military department as those which the enclosed resolves convey to the Continental Commander-in-

Chief, if the situation of publick affairs did not require, at this crisis, a decision and vigour which distance and numbers deny to Assemblies far removed from each other, and from the immediate seat of war.

The strength and progress of the enemy, joined to prospects of considerable reinforcements, have rendered it not only necessary that the American force should be augmented beyond what Congress had heretofore designed, but that it should be brought into the field with all possible expedition. These considerations induce Congress to request, in the most earnest manner, that the fullest influence of your State may be exerted to aid such levies as the General shall direct in consequence of the powers now given him, and that your quota of battalions formerly fixed may be completed with all the despatch that an ardent desire to secure the publick happiness can dictate.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

The resolve prohibiting the exportation of sundry articles, and the other resolves enclosed, I beg leave to refer to your particular attention. I congratulate you on the success of General Washington in the Jerseys. The particulars you will find in the papers enclosed.

NOTE.—The foregoing letter I sent to all the States, with the resolves referred to, with this variation: that the States of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New-Jersey, and North-Carolina, are desired to order their new levies to join General Washington. The other States are addressed as in the foregoing letter.

To the Convention of New-York the following was added: "The enclosed packet I beg the favour you will please to order to be forwarded by a fresh express to General Schuyler immediately; and I further request you will give my express the best route to Boston, and pray direct him to use all despatch on his journey."

In Congress, December 27th, 1776.

Resolved, That General Washington be empowered to use every endeavour, by giving Bounties and otherwise, to prevail upon the Troops whose time of inlistment shall expire at the end of the month, to stay with the Army so long after that period as its situation shall render their stay necessary.

That the New Levies in Virginia, Maryland, the Delaware State, Pennsylvania, and New-Jersey, be ordered to march by Companies and parts of Companies, as fast as they shall be raised, and join the Army under General Washington with the utmost despatch.

That the foregoing Resolution be transmitted by the President to the Executive powers of the States before-mentioned, who are requested to carry it into execution; to appoint Commissaries to precede the Troops, and procure Provisions for them on their march; and that they be empowered to draw Money for this purpose from the nearest Continental Paymaster.

That General Washington be empowered to appoint a Commissary of Prisoners, and a Clothier-General for supplying the Army, to fix their salaries, and return their names to Congress.

That General Washington be requested to fix upon that system of promotion in the Continental Army which, in his opinion, and that of the General Officers with him, will produce most general satisfaction; that it be suggested to him whether a promotion of Field Officers in the Colonial line, and of Captains and Subalterns in the Regimental line, would not be the most proper.

That the Committee of Congress at Philadelphia be desired to contract with proper persons for erecting at Carlisle, in Pennsylvania, a Magazine sufficient to contain ten thousand stand of Arms and two hundred tons of Gunpowder, and also for erecting an Elaboratory adjacent to such Magazine.

That the Council of Massachusetts-Bay be desired to contract with proper persons for erecting in the town of Brookfield, in that State, a Magazine sufficient to contain ten thousand stand of Arms and two hundred tons of Gunpowder, and also for erecting an Elaboratory adjacent to such Magazine.

That Congress approve of General Washington directing the Quartermaster General to provide Teams for each Regiment, and for other necessary purposes.

That the Committee of Secret Correspondence be desired to direct the Commissioners at the Court of France to procure, if possible, from that Court an hundred thousand stand of Small-Arms.

That the Second and Seventh Virginia Regiments, with all the convalescents from the other corps, left in that State and now fit for duty, be ordered to march and join the Army under General Washington with the utmost despatch, leaving the arms that they have at present with the Governour and Council of that State, as they will be provided with others at the Head of Elk.

That three of the Regiments upon the New Establishment in North-Carolina be ordered to march immediately to join General Washington. That the State of Virginia be empowered to call into service, at the Continental expense, three Regiments of Militia or Minute-Men, if such a measure shall be by that State judged necessary.

The unjust but determined purpose of the British Court to enslave these free States, obvious through every delusive insinuation to the contrary, having placed things in such a situation that the very existence of civil liberty now depends on the right execution of military powers, and the vigorous decisive conduct of these being impossible to distant, numerous, and deliberative bodies, this Congress having maturely considered the present crisis, and having perfect reliance on the wisdom, vigour, and uprightness of General Washington, do hereby resolve that General Washington shall be, and he is hereby, vested with full, ample, and complete power, to raise and collect together, in the most speedy and effectual manner, from any or all these United States, sixteen Battalions of Infantry, in addition to those already voted by Congress; to appoint Officers for the said Battalions; to raise, officer, and equip three thousand Light-Horse, three Regiments of Artillery, and a Corps of Engineers, and establish their pay; to apply to any of the States for such aid of the Militia as he shall judge necessary; to form such Magazines of Provisions, and in such places, as he shall think proper; to displace and appoint all officers under the rank of Brigadier-General, and to fill up all vacancies in every other department in the American Army; to take, wherever he may be, whatever he may want for the use of the Army, if the inhabitants will not sell it, allowing a reasonable price for the same; to arrest and confine persons who refuse to take the Continental Currency, or are otherwise disaffected to the American cause, and return to the States of which they are citizens, their names and the nature of their offences, together with the witnesses to prove them.

That the foregoing powers be vested in General Washington for and during the term of six months from the date hereof, unless sooner determined by Congress.

Resolved, That the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania be requested to take the most vigorous and speedy measures for punishing all such as shall refuse Continental Currency, and that the General be directed to give all necessary aid to the Council of Safety for carrying their measures on this subject into effectual execution.

By order of Congress:

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

In Congress, December 30, 1776.

It appearing to Congress that it will be extremely difficult, if not impracticable, to supply the Army of the United States with Bacon, Salted Beef and Pork, Soap, Tallow, and Candles, unless the exportation thereof be prohibited:

Therefore Resolved, That none of the said articles, except such as may be necessary for the crew, be exported from any of the United States after the fifth day of January next, until the first day of November next, or until Congress shall make further order therein. And it is earnestly recommended to the Executive powers of the several United States to see that this Resolution be strictly complied with.

By order of Congress:

COMMITTEE OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS TO THE COMMISSIONERS IN FRANCE.

Baltimore, December 30, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: You will be pleased to receive herewith copies of our letter of the 21st instant and of its enclosures, which we recommend to your attention. Since that letter was written, General Washington, having been reinforced by the troops lately commanded by General Lee and by some corps of Militia, crossed the Delaware with twenty-five hundred men, and attacked a body of the enemy posted at Trenton, with the success you will see related in the enclosed handbill. We hope this blow will be followed by others that may leave the enemy not so much to boast of as they some days ago expected, and we had reason to apprehend.

Upon mature deliberation of all circumstances, Congress deem the speedy declarations of France and European assistance so indispensably necessary to secure the independence of these States, that they have authorized you to make such tenders to France and Spain as they hope will prevent any longer delay of an event that is judged so essential to the well-being of North-America.

Your wisdom we know will direct you to make such tenders to France and Spain as, they hope, will procure the thing desired, on terms as much short of the concessions now offered as possible. But no advantages of this kind are proposed at the risk of a delay that may prove dangerous to the end in view.

It must be very obvious to the Court of France, that if Great Britain should succeed in her design of subjugating these States, their inhabitants, now well trained to arms, might be compelled to become instruments for making conquests of the French possessions in the West-Indies, which would be a sad contrast to that security and commercial benefit that would result to France from the independence of North-America.

By some accident, in removing the papers from Philadelphia to this place, the Secretary of Congress has mislaid the additional instructions formerly given you, by which you were empowered to negotiate with other Courts besides France. We think it necessary to mention this to you, lest the paper should have got into wrong hands, and because we wish to have a copy sent us by the first opportunity.

We observe that Mr. Deane sent his despatches for this Committee open to Mr. Bingham; but though we have a good opinion of that gentleman, yet we think him rather too young to be made acquainted with the business passing between you and us; and therefore wish this may not be done in cases of much importance.

The next opportunity will bring you the determination of Congress concerning the persons that are to be sent to the Courts of Vienna, Prussia, Spain, and the Grand Duke of Tuscany. In the mean time it is hoped, that through the medium of the Ambassadors from those Courts to that of France, you may be so fortunate as to procure their friendly mediation for the purposes proposed by Congress.

Our Andrew Doria, of fourteen guns, has taken a King's sloop-of-war of twelve guns, after a smart engagement.

In our last we say the enemy made near three thousand prisoners at Fort Washington; but the number is fixed at two thousand six hundred and thirty-four.

The West-Indiamen taken by our cruisers amount to two hundred and fifty sail.

The scarcity of ships here is so great that we shall find much difficulty in making the extensive remittances to France that we ought, in due season; therefore, it will, in our opinion, be an object of great importance to obtain the consent of the Farmers-General to send to Virginia and Maryland for any quantity of tobacco they may choose, or to the State of North-Carolina for any quantity of naval stores which may be wanted for publick use, or to supply the demands of private merchants. The terms, both as to quantity and price, you will endeavour to learn, and let it be known to us with all possible expedition, that you may receive an answer thereon.

The Captain of the armed vessel that carries these despatches, has orders to deliver them himself to you in Paris, and his vessel will expect his return in a different port from the one he arrives at. He will take your directions about his return, and receive your letters; but the anxiety prevailing here to know your success, renders it proper that he should return with all possible despatch.

Wishing you health, success, and many happy years, we remain, honourable gentlemen, yours, &c.,

B. Harrison, J. Witherspoon,
R. H. Lee, W. Hooper.

To the Hon'ble B. Franklin, S. Deane, and A. Lee, Esquires, at Paris.

JAMES WILSON TO GENERAL ST. CLAIR.

Baltimore, December 30th, 1776.

My dear Sir: With peculiar pleasure I congratulate you on the victory at Trenton. I hope the tide is now turning, and will run high in our favour.

I have wrote to General Washington, recommending Colonel Irvine to a regiment, and Mr. Robert Smith (a young gentleman of great merit, who studied law with me) to a troop of Horse. You will oblige me much by adding your influence to the recommendation, and by letting me know the result of it as soon as possible.

I am, in haste, dear sir, yours sincerely,

James Wilson.

General St. Clair.

WILLIAM LUX TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, 30th December, 1776.

Dear Sir: Mr. Hopkins waits on your honourable Board agreeable to your own appointment, and I hope will obtain the result of his wishes. He brings a letter from the President of the Congress, and a copy of their resolve in his favour, which, with the service he has seen, will, I hope, convince you that he is entitled to a Majority.

I have sent an account of Solomon Allen's for twenty bolts duck for the Defence, one hundred and fifty pounds. He has applied for payment to us; but as our accounts were settled, we did not choose to pay it. We did not know the quantity when we rendered our account against the ship. It was entered by us, but left blank for want of the voucher, as he had removed out of town. Pray settle it, and send the money by Mr. Hopkins, as he ought to have been paid long since. I wish you many happy New Years; and am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

Wm. Lux.

To the Hon'ble Dan'l of St. Thos. Jenifer, President of the Council of Safety.

PETITION OF HENRY ASHFIELD.

Annapolis, December 30th, 1776.

The humble Petition of Henry Ashfield, Private in Captain Fulford's Company, the Second Maryland Matrosses, humbly sheweth:

That your poor petitioner hath been afflicted these several months past with a disorder called the piles, so that I have been rendered incapable of doing any duty ever since I was first taken, and after various and different applications to the Doctor, cannot receive any benefit or ease, but rather seems to grow worse, and has no likelihood of ever growing better without some assistance. Therefore, most honourable gentlemen, hope your Honours will take your poor petitioner's petition into your most serious consideration, and grant him some remedy towards his relief, otherwise his discharge from said company. And compliance with the former or latter, most gracious and considerate gentlemen, your poor distressed petitioner shall ever be in duty bound to pray. So God bless the Congress, and direct the General.

Henry Ashfield.

To the honourable the Council of Safety, now sitting in the City of Annapolis, these by submission, present.

J. HALL TO BENJAMIN HARRISON.

In Council of Safety, Annapolis, December 30th, 1776.

Sir: Considering the State of Maryland to be embarked in the same cause with the honourable Congress, we readily and cheerfully agree that you should have the small armed schooner now in your port, which we hope will answer the purpose intended. Nothing more will be asked for her in point of price but what she cost the State. We expect not to gain, nor would you wish, we are persuaded, that the State of Maryland should lose any thing by the vessel. We let you have her in the publick cause to oblige Congress. Be pleased to notify this to the commander, and direct him to return a schedule or memorandum of guns and other effects on board. The price we will send hereafter.

Blankets we have none, but we will furnish Mr. Griffin with cotton to make them, which may be easily done,—'tis the shift we are forced to make for our own hospital,—as also enough to make two for your servants, which may be returned in kind when convenient.

We are, sir, your most obedient servants. By order:
J. Hall, V. P.

To Benjamin Harrison, Esq.

CAPTAIN HAMMOND (ENGLISH NAVY,) TO ROBERT MORRIS.

Roe Buck, off Lewes-Town, 30th December, 1776.

Sir: The assurance that you have been pleased to give me, "that the officers taken on board British merchant ships and carried in to Philadelphia, have not been detained as prisoners of war, but permitted to depart as opportunities offered," together with an extract I have at the same time received from the minutes of the Council of Safety at Philadelphia, "that an equal number of such prisoners, being subjects of the King, shall be delivered to me, or some other of his Majesty's officers, when the Council shall have it in their power," has induced me to give immediate orders that every prisoner now on board the ship under my command here, shall be set at liberty without delay, being of nothing more ambitious than to prove myself on all occasions desirous of relieving the distressed.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

A. S. Hammond.

COMMITTEE FOR TRANSACTING CONTINENTAL BUSINESS TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

December 30th, 1776.

Sir: Mr. Thomas Smith, the loan officer, returned here this day. It seems he has certificates for no more than sixty thousand dollars, and we have procured more than that sum for him already; wherefore we pray that an express may be immediately despatched with certificates for three or five hundred thousand dollars, as we shall use our utmost endeavours to get the money into his office, and doubt not but pretty good success will attend his endeavours. We have given Mr. Commissary Carpenter Wharton an order on Mr. Mease for forty thousand dollars, part of the sum you sent him, which arrived on Saturday night. Mr. Wharton produced the General's orders for establishing magazines of provisions at Lancaster and York-Town, and we referred him to Congress for the sums necessary for that purpose. We mean only to supply him with what may be wanted to lay in stores between this and Lancaster, at this place, and for what may be required in New-Jersey, where we hope our Army will finally take up their winter quarters. That State will suffer amazingly by both Armies. It is not what they consume that does the mischief: but the destruction of provisions, first by one side and then by the other, will cause a famine there. New-Jersey has always supplied very large quantities of pork; but the want of salt, the consumption and destruction of that article by both Armies, will prevent it this year, and we all know that very large supplies of it will be wanted next summer for our Army. The Lower Counties of Delaware State, Maryland, Virginia, and North-Carolina, have hitherto been exempt from the ravages of war. Some of them have had tolerable good supplies of salt, and no doubt they will cure as much meat as they can. We think Congress should immediately employ some prudent, industrious person, in each of these Governments, to buy, or contract immediately for, as much salted provision as possible, and collect it into secure and proper places, ready for use when wanted. Should this be neglected, depend upon it you will repent next summer; and if it is not managed with secrecy and prudence, you will not only pay dear for what you get, but poor individuals that cannot afford it will also suffer.

We think similar measures should be taken in the Eastern States. The Commissary will buy all he can here; and we wish he possessed all the prudence and circumspection that we think requisite for executing that department as it ought to be.

We are told that the American prisoners suffer amazingly in New-York for want of some proper person to attend them. Congress have allowed Mr. Franks to supply the British prisoners here, and we think it would be well done to send in to New-York an agent for our prisoners, whose business should be to see them well supplied with clothing and provisions, and to attend them constantly to prevent their inlisting in the enemy's service, but, on the contrary, to engage all such whose times expire, to reinlist with us. We are told General Howe would admit such an agent, (but he must hear nothing about the inlistments we suppose;) and if a suitable spirited American can be found, whose mind will support him through accumulated insults to perform his duty with fidelity, we think a good salary would be well bestowed on him; but if the support of our prisoners and proper regulations in the medical departments are not attended to, you cannot expect a permanent formidable Army, and which, above all things, is now wanted to save America.

The enclosed from the General came to hand this day, but we keep it for the post, as the contents do not require your immediate inspection by express. Since then Mr. Morris has received another letter from his Excellency, requesting one hundred and fifty pounds, in hard money, for particular purposes in the publick service, and it will be sent up this night. That letter is dated at Trentown, this day. He then says, "Some of the troops are yet on the other side of the river, only waiting for provisions." We have urged and will continue to press Mr. Commissary to push forward the supplies with all possible diligence.

General Cadwalader had despatched one hundred Riflemen, one hundred Light Infantry, and one hundred smart, active lads, to pursue our retreating enemies, in hopes of overtaking and keeping up their panick. Doctor Hodge says they were within five miles of the enemies' rear, when he passed them. Not having seen the Doctor ourselves, we do not know the time. And another person, since come in, reports that the General was within eleven miles with his main body. His troops are fresh, full of spirits, eager for an action, and march briskly. The Hessians are encumbered with a deal of plunder and baggage, which obliges them to move slow. No doubt Sir William Howe, Knight of the Bath and General, &c., will be very angry at these doings in the Jerseys, and probably in his wrath he will come over, armed with vengeance, and threaten destruction; but we expect he must dance to a different tune upon this march than he did on his late passage to Trentown, for we have the pleasure to assure you with certainty, that the face of things is totally changed. Our people are full of spirits and turn out freely, so that General Washington will find himself daily gathering fresh strength, and we shall not be surprised if New-Jersey turns out in like manner.

We are now at the 31st December, twelve o'clock, and have just received your Honour's letter of the 27th, enclosing sundry important resolves of Congress, copies whereof we shall despatch to General Washington in half an hour. Every part that relates to this Committee shall be carefully attended to, and no time shall be lost in carrying into execution such things as Congress have ordered.

We had yesterday the pleasure to see the Hessian prisoners paraded in Front Street. They formed a line two deep up and down Front Street from Market to Walnut Street, and most people seemed very angry they should ever think of running away from such a set of vagabonds. We have advised that both the officers and men should be well treated, and kept from conversing with disaffected people as much as possible.

One of our Light-Horse brought down ten prisoners this morning, that were taken near Princetown, and appear to have been a reconnoitring party; and a Captain Smith writes from Crosswicks, that nine Hessian officers were taken, and one killed, in that quarter, supposed to be part of those that fled from Trentown.

No further account yet from General Cadwalader Troops are constantly coming in and marching for the Jerseys, so that every thing may be reasonably expected in our favour. Six of the enemy's ships are still in Delaware Bay, so stationed that Captain Biddle cannot pass them—the Fly and Musqueto employed in watching them, and the Wasp cruising outside of them. We intend to send a person to stay at Cape May to give us regular advice of their motions, which we are much in want of.

We are much hurried, but ever remain, sir, your humble servants.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

ROBERT MORRIS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, December 30th, 1776.

SIR: I have received your favour of yesterday, and will duly forward your despatches to Congress and the other letters by post. I am desired to put the enclosed letters in the way of being sent into New-York, and make no doubt your Excellency will readily forward them by the first flag after they reach your hands. I am impatiently waiting for further news from General Cadwalader; and, with constant wishes for success, remain, sir, your obedient servant,

ROBT. MORRIS.

To his Excellency Geo. Washington, Esq., Head-Quarters.

ROBERT MORRIS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, December 30th, 1776.

SIR: I have just received your favour of this day, and sent to General Putnam to detain the express until I collect the hard money you want, which you may depend shall be sent, in one specie or other, with this letter, and a list thereof shall be enclosed herein. I had long since parted with very considerable sums of hard money to Congress; therefore must collect from others; and, as matters now stand, it is no easy matter. I mean to borrow silver, and promise payment in gold; and will then collect the gold in the best manner I can.

Whilst on this subject, let me inform you that there are upwards of twenty thousand dollars, in silver, at Ticonderoga. They have no particular use for it, and I think you might as well send a party to bring it away, and lodge it in a safe place, convenient for any purposes for which it may hereafter be wanted.

I gave Mr. Commissary Wharton an order for forty thousand dollars this morning, and pressed him to attend most diligently to your supplies. I will send for him again, know what is done, and add springs to his movements, if I can. I wish he was more silent, prudent, &c.; but I fancy he is active. Whatever I can do, shall be done for the good of the service.

I ever am, dear sir, your Excellency's obedient humble servant,

ROBT. MORRIS.

P. S. Hearing that you are in want of a quarter-cask of wine, I have procured a good one, which Mr. Commissary Wharton will send up.

To his Excellency General Washington.

ROBERT MORRIS TO CONTINENTAL AGENTS.

December 30th, 1776.

SIR: The bearer hereof, Nicholas Eveleigh, Esq., is a gentleman of fortune and established character in South-Carolina, and I beg leave to introduce him to your acquaintance, and to recommend him to your friendship. He has some commercial views in his journey to New-England; and this introduction may possibly be of mutual advantage, which will please me exceedingly.

Our Loan Office is just opened; and by way of setting a good example, and in order to make a beginning, I have given a considerable sum of money, and have persuaded Mr. Eveleigh to carry with him Continental Loan Office notes to a large amount, instead of the money, because I think it will answer all his purposes equally, if not better, than the money. At any rate, Eveleigh must not be disappointed. If he meets with any difficulty in getting money in exchange for these notes when or where he wants it, I must beg you will assist him, and even, if needful, that you will supply him out of the publick money you have in hand. This is but justice to the credit of the Continent, and it is essential to Mr. Eveleigh; therefore I am sure you will not suffer any disappointment to take place.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

ROBT. MORRIS.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA, DATED DECEMBER 30, 1776.

The late enterprise of General Washington has had a most glorious effect. It animates the friends of liberty amazingly. I firmly believe if he pursues the blow, which I believe he does, he will take the greatest part of the enemy's Army prisoners. It is said when all our forces in Jersey join, they will amount to fifteen thousand effective men.

The Continental brig Lexington, Captain Hallock, of fourteen carriage guns, laden with gunpowder and other warlike stores, from Cape François, bound to Philadelphia, was lately taken, off the Capes of Delaware, by the Pearl frigate, Captain , who put a Lieutenant and a small number of hands on board, with orders to carry her immediately to New-York; but leaving on board the Lexington seventy brave fellows, who were all acquainted with the fate of Captain Johnson and his crew, of the Yankee-Hero, and what might be expected from British humanity, they determined, at all hazards, to regain their liberty. This they effected the same night they were taken, in a manner which reflects the highest honour on their resolution and presence of mind. As soon as they had secured their prisoners, they put the vessel about for the Capes of Virginia, (unskilled as they were in navigation,) which they very fortunately fell in with in a few hours after, and on Wednesday last arrived safe in this harbour. Captain Hallock and his officers were taken on board the Pearl, but have since been set on shore, and arrived at Philadelphia.

THOMAS RODNEY TO CÆSAR RODNEY.

Allen's Town, in Jersey, twelve miles from Princeton, twenty do. from Brunswick, Dec. 30th, 1776.

SIR: I wrote you a long letter on the 24th, which I had no opportunity of sending, and left it in my trunk at Mr. Coxe's, two miles from Bristol; it contains the news to that time, which I cannot repeat here. On the 25th instant, in the evening, we received orders to be at Shamony Ferry as soon as possible. We were there, according to orders, in two hours, and met the Riflemen, who were the first from Bristol; we were ordered from thence to Dunk's Ferry, on the Delaware, and the whole Army of about two thousand men followed, as soon as the artillery got up. The three companies of Philadelphia Infantry and mine were formed into a body, under the command of Captain Henry, (myself second in command,) which were embarked immediately to cover the landing of the other troops. We landed with great difficulty through the ice, and formed on the ferry shore, about two hundred yards from the river. It was as severe a night as ever I saw, and after two battalions were landed the storm increased so much and the river was so full of ice that it was impossible to get the artillery over, for we had to walk one hundred yards on the ice to get on shore. General Cadwalader, therefore, ordered the whole to retreat again, and we had to stand at least six hours under arms—first, to cover the landing and till all the rest had retreated again; and by this time, the storm of wind, hail, rain, and snow, with the ice, was so bad, that some of the Infantry could not get back till next day. This design was to have surprised the enemy at Black Horse and Mount-Holley, at the same time that Washington surprised them at Trenton; and had we succeeded in getting over, we should have finished all our troubles. Washington took nine hundred and ten prisoners, with six pieces of fine artillery, and all their baggage in Trenton. The next night I received orders to be in Bristol before day: we were there accordingly, and about nine o'clock began to embark one mile above Bristol, and about three o'clock in the afternoon got all our troops and artillery over, consisting of about three thousand men, and began our march to Burlington—the Infantry, flanked by the Riflemen, making the advanced guard. We got there about nine o'clock, and took possession of the town, but found the enemy had made precipitate retreat the day before, bad as the weather was, in a great panick. The whole Infantry and Riflemen were then ordered to set out that night and make a forced march to Bordentown, (which was about eleven miles,) which they did, and took possession of the town about nine o'clock, with a large quantity of the enemy's stores, which they had not time to carry off. We stayed there till the Army came up; and the General finding the enemy were but a few miles ahead, ordered the Infantry to proceed to a town called Crosswick's, four miles from Bordentown, and they were followed by one of the Philadelphia and one of the New-England battalions. We got there about eight o'clock, and at about ten, (after we were all in our quarters,) were informed that the enemy's baggage was about sixteen miles from us, under a guard of three hundred men. Some of the Militia Colonels applied to the Infantry to make a forced march that night and overhaul them. We had then been on duty four nights and days, making forced marches, without six hours' sleep in the whole time; whereupon the Infantry officers of all the companies unanimously declared it was madness to attempt, for that it would knock up all our brave men, not one of whom had yet gave out, but every one will suppose were much fatigued. They then sent off a party who were fresh, but they knocked up before they got up with them, and came back and met us at this town next morning. They surrounded a house where there was six Tories; took three of them; one got off; and one who run and would not stop, was shot dead. They gave him warning, first by calling, and at last shot two bullets over his head, but he still persisted; and the next two shot, one bullet went through his arm and one through his heart. The enemy have fled before us in the greatest panick that ever was known: we heard this moment that they have fled from Princeton, and that they were hard pressed by Washington. Never were men in higher spirits than our whole Army is; none are sick, and all are determined to extirpate them from the Jersey, but I believe the enemy's fears will do it before we get up with them. The Hessians, from the General to the common soldier, curse and imprecate the war, and swear they were sent here to be slaughtered; that they never will leave New-York again till they sail for Europe. Jersey will be the most Whiggish Colony on the Continent: the very Quakers declare for taking up arms. You cannot imagine the distress of this country. They have stripped every body almost, without distinction—even of all their clothes, and have beat and abused men, women, and children, in the most cruel manner ever heard of. We have taken a number of prisoners in our route, Hessians and British, to the amount of about twenty. It seems likely, through the blessing of Providence, that we shall retake Jersey again without the loss of a man, except one General Washington lost at Trenton. The enemy seem to be bending their way to Amboy with all speed, but I hope we shall come up with the Princeton baggage yet, and also get a share of their large stores at Brunswick. I hope, if I live, to see the conquest of Jersey, and set off home again in two weeks. Some of my men have complained a little, but not to say sick; they are all now well here.

THOMAS RODNEY.

Brigadier-General Cæsar Rodney, Esq.

---

BENJAMIN RUSH TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

Crossides, December 30, 1776.

MY DEAR SIR: There is no toil so dear to a soldier as that which is marked with the footsteps of a flying enemy. Every thing looks well. Our Army increases daily, and our troops are impatient to avenge the injuries done to the State of New-Jersey; the Tories fly with the precipitation of guilty fear to General Howe. A detachment from our body yesterday took four of them, and killed one; two of the former were officers of Howe's new Militia establishment.

We suffer much for the want of intelligence, which can only be procured by money that will pass in both camps. Howe owes the superiority and regularity of his intelligence above ours not so much to the voluntary information of the Tories as to the influence of his gold. Pray send two or three thousand pounds, in hard money, immediately to General Washington; it will do you more service than twenty new regiments. Let not this matter be debated and postponed in the usual way for two or three weeks: the salvation of America, under God, depends upon its being done in an instant.

I beg leave for a moment to call off your attention from the affairs of the publick, to inform you that I have heard, from good authority, that my much-honoured father-in-law, who is now a prisoner with General Howe, suffers many indignities and hardships from the enemy, from which not only his rank, but his being a man, ought to exempt him. I wish you would propose to Congress to pass a resolution in his favour, similar to that they have passed in favour of General Lee. They owe it to their own honour, as well as to a member of their body. I did not want this intelligence to rouse my resentment against the enemy, but it has increased it; every particle of my blood is electrified with revenge; and if justice cannot be done to him in any other way, I declare I will, in defiance of the authority of the Congress and the power of the Army, drive the first rascally Tory I meet with a hundred miles barefooted through the first deep snow that falls in our country.

Two small brigades of New-England troops have consented to serve a month after the time of their inlistments expire; there is reason to believe that all the New-England troops in their predicament will follow their example. We have just learned that the enemy are preparing to retreat from Princeton. Adieu. General Washington must be invested with dictatorial power for a few months, or we are undone. The vis inertiæ of the Congress has almost ruined this country.

Yours, BENJAMIN RUSH.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO ROBERT MORRIS.

Head-Quarters, Trenton, 30th December, 1776.

DEAR SIR: We have the greatest occasion at present for hard money to pay a certain set of people who are of particular use to us. If you could possibly collect a sum, if it were but one hundred or one hundred and fifty pounds, it would be of great service. Silver would be most convenient.

I am taking every measure to improve our late lucky blow, and hope to be successful. The greatest impediment to our motions is the want of provisions. If it lays in your way to give the Commissary any advice or assistance in that way, I am sure you will do it. Some of the troops are yet on the other side of the river, only waiting for provisions. Jersey has been swept so clean that there is no dependence upon any thing there.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Robert Morris, Esq.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL M'DOUGALL.

Head-Quarters, Trenton, 30th December, 1776.

SIR: I have the pleasure to acquaint you that the Continental regiments from the Eastern Governments have, to a man, agreed to stay six weeks beyond their term of inlistment, which was to have expired the last day of this month. For this extraordinary mark of their attachment to their country, I have agreed to give them a bounty of ten dollars per man, besides their pay running on. I hope this noble example will be followed by the four regiments under your command; promise them the same reward, and endeavour to work upon them by every means in your power. Let them know the Militia are pouring in from all quarters, and only want veteran troops to lead them on. Since our success at this place on the 26th, the enemy have evacuated all the country below; they went off in the greatest hurry and confusion. I beg you will collect all the men you possibly can about Chatham, and after gaining the proper intelligence, endeavour to strike a stroke upon Elizabeth-Town or that neighbourhood; at any rate be ready to coöperate with me. Let me hear what success you have with your troops as soon as possible.

I am, sir, &c., GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Officer commanding at Morristown.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MAJOR BLAND.

Head-Quarters, Trenton, 30th December, 1776.

SIR: I am informed that you are on your march from Virginia to join the Army under my command, and that you have the charge of the prisoners who were ordered up to be exchanged. As this must delay your march very much, and as I do not think it expedient for the prisoners to come on just at this time, I desire you will leave them at the most convenient place, there to remain till further orders from me, and advance with the Horse as quick as you possibly can. If a guard should be wanted to remain with the prisoners, apply for Militia, for I would not have a Horseman left behind. When you arrive at Philadelphia, apply to General Putnam, who will inform you of the most proper place to cross the Delaware.

I am, sir, yours, &c., GO. WASHINGTON.

To Major Theodorick Bland, or Officer commanding the Virginia Light-Horse.

GENERAL M'DOUGALL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Morris-Town, 30th December, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I sincerely congratulate you on the late success at Trenton; it came very seasonably. I have continued here since my last to you of the 22d instant, with the troops under Colonel Vose.

The Militia greatly lessening in number since the arrival of those troops, has put it out of my power to do any thing with the enemy, but to act on the defensive; indeed we have scarce force enough to do that, where it is necessary for covering the country. The enemy have not ventured above the mountains; and have been cautious of advancing out of the towns below, except a few stragglers without arms. Some of them have been taken prisoners.

The state of this part of the country is so critical and distressed, that I consider the expiration of the time of Colonel Vose's corps much to be dreaded, if they quit the service at that period. I clearly saw it would dispirit the inhabitants, sink the credit of the Continental currency, prevent the raising the Continental troops, and those who are to serve till the first of April. To prevent these dreadful events, about seven days since I proposed to the Continental troops, if they would continue a month, (fifteen or twenty days after their time expired,) I would engage to get them a month's pay, as an allowance for their time in going home, over and above what should be due to them at the expiration of the second inlistment, and that this, together with their pay from the first January coming, I would endeavour to get for them, which would accommodate them to their respective places of abode; and for this purpose I would despatch one of their officers to Head-Quarters to obtain your approbation and the money; the result of which would be known before their first engagement expired, so that they would be on the utmost certainty.

I was induced to make them this offer, from a full conviction that the month's pay would be amply compensated for to the country. For I had reason to expect, that in the course of the new engagement, some progress might be made in both levies, some assistance procured from the Bay Militia, or some event cast up to the southward, which might give a favourable turn to our affairs. Encouraged by these hopes, the troops were collected in the church, the proposal opened up to them, and warmly recommended to them by their Chaplain and Mr. Caldwell. There was reason at first to expect the consent of the whole to stay; but as they have delayed an answer so long, I fear not above two-thirds of them will stay, owing to the machinations of some of the officers, who are bent on going, notwithstanding I have used my utmost endeavours to persuade them of the absolute necessity of using their influence with the men to tarry.

The Governour being out of the State, as well many other principal people, and no Legislature in it, threw all their affairs into confusion; and it was some time before I could set the officers in motion to recruit for both levies. There are near three companies inlisted of those who are to serve to 1st of April, but very little done in inlisting the Continental troops, owing to the reasons above, the want of the warrants and money to advance the recruits. But as the former of these are come to hand, I am in hopes, when the money comes, some progress will be made, especially if a considerable number of Continental troops stay.

My health is much restored, and as General Maxwell is sufficient for this command, and General Heath is to be removed from Peekskill, I intend to set off to-morrow for that post. General Maxwell stands in need of your directions respecting the prisoners (soldiers) taken from the enemy, now in this town. Circumstances are much altered in this State since Captain Kennedy was confined in this place. Then the enemy was out of it, and at some distance; now they are near and in it. If he inclines, he can give intelligence to the enemy of every thing that passes. It is therefore my opinion that it will be safest for the publick service to exchange him for some officer of ours, or some respectable citizen, or to remove him from hence. For it is impossible to prevent his communications if he will risk it, though I have no reason to suspect him.

You may rest assured, from undoubted authority, that the utmost pains are taken in New-York to keep European intelligence from the fleet and army: for two packets past, the boats from them are not suffered to land, or any of the crew even to go on board the Admiral. Nor is any man suffered, who has business on board of them, to speak to any of the crew but in the presence of an officer. Although packet arrived there the 15th instant, yet Gaine has not inserted one paragraph of European intelligence in his papers since, but the address of the Corporation of York to the King, and General Howe's being made a Knight of the Bath.

From all these circumstances, it is evident some important events exist at home which it is their interest to keep from us. By a gentleman who left New-York 22d instant, and who conversed with the British officers, they consider a French war as certain; and they are advised of the sailing of a French fleet of men-of-war, with transports and troops on board. This I take to be the one arrived at Martinico.

Since my last I have collected a more accurate state of the enemy's force: At the New Bridge, Second Battalion of the Seventy-First Regiment; at Newark, First and Third of that Regiment; at Elizabeth-Town, five hundred Waldeckers; at Bonum Town, about four hundred; and General Mathews, at Brunswick Landing, with about six hundred; General Grant, at Brunswick, numbers unknown. Colonel Wines is in the neighbourhood of Pluckhimin, with about one hundred and fifty men. The Essex Militia give some assistance to guard the passes of the mountain below this. I found it impossible to receive the necessary intelligence for the safety of the country without the assistance of horse, the posts are so distant from each other that the state or movements of the enemy cannot be known in time by foot, to give the advice in due season. I was therefore obliged to direct that about forty horse should be mustered, and taken into pay, to be given to the Continental Horse to do duty till your pleasure should be known, which I hope will meet your approbation. General Maxwell has directions for mustering them, and ordering them to be properly enrolled.

I wrote the General upon the subject of exchanging my son, a Second Lieutenant, taken in Canada. I beg leave to remind you of it.

I have the honour to be, with great truth and regard, your Excellency's very humble servant,

ALEX. MCDOUGALL.

COLONEL ROBERT ROGERS'S ORDERS TO DANIEL STRANG.

Valentine's Hill, December 30th, 1776.

Whereas his Majesty's service makes it absolutely necessary that recruits should be raised, this is to certify that Mr. Daniel Strang, or any other gentleman who may bring in recruits, shall have commissions according to the number he or they shall bring in for the Queen's American Rangers. No more than forty shillings bounty to be given to any man, which is to be applied towards purchasing necessaries—to serve during the present rebellion, and no longer. They will have their proportion of all Rebel lands, and all privileges equal to any of his Majesty's troops. The officers are to be the best judges in what manner they are to get their men in, either by parties, detachments, or otherwise, as may seem most advantageous, which men are to be attested before the first Magistrate within the British lines.

ROBERT ROGERS,
Lt. Col. Commandant of the Queen's Rangers.

GENERAL HEATH TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Peekskill, December 30, 1776.

SIR: By Colonel Chester, this moment arrived from his Excellency General Washington, who is at Newtown, I have the pleasure to acquaint you that early on the morning of Thursday last his Excellency in person, at the head of about three thousand of our troops, crossed the Delaware and attacked the enemy at Trenton, consisting of about sixteen hundred men; and after a brisk action of thirty-five minutes, entirely routed them. One Colonel, two Lieutenant-Colonels, three Majors, four Captains, eight Lieutenants, twelve Ensigns, one Judge-Advocate, two Surgeons' Mates, ninety-two Sergeants, twenty Drummers, nine Musicians, twenty-five officers' servants, and seven hundred and forty rank and file, were taken prisoners, besides killed and wounded; six pieces of brass cannon, two of which were twelve pounders, twelve drums, four standards, twelve hundred small-arms, six wagons, a number of swords, caps, &c., are trophies of victory. We had not more than four killed and eight wounded. All the prisoners except one were Hessians. Our troops behaved with the greatest bravery. This signal victory at this time will be productive of the best consequences. Ardour glows in every face. And I hope we shall soon retrieve all our losses.

I am, with respect and esteem, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

W. HEATH.

P. S. Please to transmit this news to Providence, to Governour Cooke. I have sent an express to Boston.

W. H.

Hon'ble Governour Trumbull.

REPORT OF COURT OF INQUIRY ON CAPTAIN HAMLEN, DECEMBER 30th, 1776.

The proceedings of a Court of Inquiry, whereof Colonel Read is President, which sat this day at Peeks Kill, agreeable to General Orders, to inquire into the conduct of Captain E. Hamlen, with respect to his transactions while at Tappan, with the sick:

Colonel Read, President; Captain Seagrave, Captain Allen, Captain Ball, Captain Soper, Members.

Captain Clapp's Evidence.—Captain Clapp says, that some time in October last, Colonel Tupper and his detachment retreated over Dobb's Ferry, with some publick stores. Soon after Captain Hamlen, who was taking care of the sick of General Nixon's brigade at Taupon, applied to the Colonel for some wine, molasses, and rice, that was in his custody, belonging to the publick; a quantity of which stores Captain Hamlen received, and gave his receipt in full for the same.

Captain Harwood's Evidence.—Some time in October last Captain Hamlen applied to Colonel Tupper for some wine, molasses, and rice, then in his custody, belonging to the publick. Colonel Tupper being in doubt as to delivering the articles, said he did not know as he had a right to deliver them, inasmuch as he was no Commissary. Captain Hamlen then urged the necessity of the sick; consequently, Colonel T. delivered the stores, and took Captain Hamlen's receipt. When Captain Hamlen applied for these articles, he urged that they were allowed as Hospital stores. Upon Captain H. being interrogated how he came to sell the afore-mentioned stores, he answered, "Where shall I be if I don't sell them, as I am obliged to maintain the sick at seven pence half penny per day per man, and have given my receipt for them?" Upon which Colonel T. replied, "I don't know I had a right to deliver them, but I did it for the best; and would have you give back the money you have taken, and deliver the stores gratis, agreeable to the direction of the doctors; the sick shall not pay for the stores. If any body has to pay for them, I will do it. I will settle with the Commissary for them." Insisted upon having the articles, alleging they were Hospital stores, and they were not to be had any where else.

Lieutenant Sears's Evidence.—Testifies the same as Captain Harwood; and farther says, that Captain Hamlen asked for some rum that was in Colonel Tupper's custody, and said that it was wanted for the nurses, and was allowed accordingly in the General Hospital. Colonel Tupper answered, the nurses ought to have an allowance of rum, but he could not spare that then present, because it was private property.

Captain Hamlen, to save the trouble of evidence, grants he sold wine at twelve shillings per gallon, molasses at eight shillings per gallon, York currency, and rice at three pence per pound, lawful money; and farther grants that he ordered the kidneys and all the tallow to be taken from the beef, and tried up, and made into candles for the use of the sick in the Hospital, and, after supplying them, sold the rest to the inhabitants.

Joseph Whiting's Evidence.—Says that the best pieces were taken from the beef, and the poorest delivered to the soldiers; and that he has seen the inhabitants carry away some of the best pieces of beef; but says he never made any complaint to any of the commanding officers of sick that the beef was poor, or that they were not well provided for; but says there was some uneasiness among the soldiers.

John Lincoln's Evidence.—The same as Whiting; and that he once saw the inhabitants, after the beef was cut up, ask the price, which was different according to the goodness, and then they took such pieces as they liked. I never complained at any time to Captain Hamlen that I was unjustly dealt by, but did to the person that tended me. I have often heard the soldiers complain that they thought they did not have the beef as it would hold out for goodness.

Joshua King's Evidence.—Testify the same as Lincoln. I have bought rum by the half pint of Captain Hamlen's son, in his apartment. I asked one Hooper, a soldier that was there eight or ten days, what duty he did. He said he was making candles.

James Bonney's Evidence.—That Josiah Jones, a soldier, was employed in making soap and candles above a fortnight, at Captain H.'s.

George Frazier's Evidence.—Says he bought rum and cider of Captain Hamlen's son, at Captain Hamlen's apartment.

Robert Fuller's Evidence.—That he drew a piece of neck beef that was hurt, and smelt bad. I returned the beef to the officers. They ordered me to the steward, and I had it exchanged for three pounds less. The steward said I was very difficult, and those that made the least difficulty fared the best; and that was the reason I never complained afterwards.

Sergeant Lincoln's Evidence.—That the best pieces were taken from the beef, and sold, and the poorest sold to the soldiers at three pence, York currency, per pound, and to the inhabitants at six pence, five pence, and four pence, according to the goodness.

Captain Allen sworn, but knew nothing of the matter but hearsay.

Ensign Cotton's Evidence.—Captain Hamlen accounts for the ration money at seven and a half pence per day per man, to me weekly, for all the soldiers under my care; and I delivered a return of what provision was necessary daily to the tenders of the sick, and have often seen them supplied accordingly. I never heard any complaint from any man at all under my care, except in the case of the beef which I ordered to be exchanged. The sick were daily supplied with meat, bread, rice, molasses, potatoes, candles, meal, soap, salt, and vinegar, when to be had; also milk, at the rate of one pint per man per day, till it grew scarce; then they were supplied with the other articles to the same amount, and this was done for seven and a half pence per man per day. One soldier was employed as a butcher, while he was well, constantly.

Ensign Remmington's Evidence.—I had the care of the sick of Colonel Varnum's regiment under the direction of Captain Hamlen. I received of Captain Hamlen seven and a half pence per man per day, and with that I supplied them with the articles in the afore-mentioned evidence. I have often seen the provision, and never thought the men were wronged. Thought they were well provided for; never heard a word of complaint among the men, notwithstanding I often told them to let me know it if they were wronged, and I would see them righted. I had positive orders from Colonel Varnum, if Captain Hamlen, had need of butchers, to detain one or more men for that purpose.

Mr. Samson (the steward's) Evidence.—I had the care of all the stores for the sick under Captain H. I daily dot them, according to the returns made by the officers of each ward. I took what care I could to proportion the bad pieces of beef with the good. I believe there was but a trifle of odds between the pieces delivered to the soldiers and others, but think that the people where the officers boarded generally had the best pieces of beef. I have heard the men say they could not use all their allowance—they had more than they wanted; in particular, R. Fuller, one of the evidences, has himself brought back allowance and thrown it into the store, and said they could not eat it before it would spoil. They had more provision than they wanted.

Doctor Tenny's Evidence.—Immediately after the sick were put into quarters, I, with another Surgeon, went through the various wards and prescribed the diet of each particular patient, according to the diet table of General Hospital, which we gave to the officers of those departments, together with the diet table itself. By these they regulated their daily provision returns. I altered these tables as often as the case required. I often asked the sick whether they had a plenty of provisions? They always told me they had, except a few whose appetites required more than I thought proper to allow them. I never heard any complaint of a deficiency of good provision except once, which I found happened through mistake. As to the wine, I, with the other Surgeons, conceived that Colonel Tupper had no right to deliver it to the sick as Hospital stores. Fearing there would be a difficulty, and unwilling to be brought into difficulty, declined giving orders for the wine, till application was made to General Greene, who ordered it to be sold. As to the best pieces, I have heard the people where I lived complain that they had not so good beef as they ought to have. On the whole, I fully believe that the sick under Captain Hamlen's care could not have been better provided for, for seven and a half pence per day per man, than they were.

Sergeant Hammond's Evidence.—I had the care of the publick stores, consisting of beef, bread, &c., left by Colonel Wharton in Captain Hamlen's custody. I was entrusted with the delivery of the same. Finally, when I was about to leave the stores, I had about four hundred barrels of hard bread left of the said stores, I wanted to get rid of, and knowing there was troops under Colonel Tyler, did not know but they might want. I offered it as publick stores, if Colonel Tyler would give his receipt for it, but he did not want; and farther, that Captain Hamlen never gave me any orders, directly or indirectly, to dispose of any publick stores, only by receipt, according to the Commissary order. I was sick in the Hospital under Captain Hamlen's care. I was always as well provided for as I could expect. I had more allowance than I could use, nor did I ever hear any complaint among the soldiers on this head.

DECISION OF A COURT OF INQUIRY.

A Court of Inquiry, whereof Colonel Read is President, which sat this day at Peeks Kill, agreeable to general orders, to inquire into the conduct of Captain Eleazer Hamlen, while taking care of sick at Tappan; the Court, after hearing the evidences, and maturely deliberating upon and weighing the same, are unanimously of opinion that the conduct of Captain Hamlen, with respect to the sick under his care and the disposition of the publick stores entrusted with him, has been agreeable to his orders, as well as to the rules of justice, prudence, and good economy; that the complaints against his conduct that have come before us, are by no means supported; and consequently, that his character must, in our humble opinion, stand as fair in the eye of the world as ever.

Peeks Kill, December 28th, 1776.

JOSEPH READ, President,
For and in behalf of said Court.

SENTENCE OF GENERAL COURT MARTIAL.

December 30th, 1776.

The proceedings of a General Court Martial held at Peeks Kill, on the 17th day of December, 1776, by order of Brigadier-General James Clinton, for the trial of all such persons as should be brought before said Court; of which said Court Colonel Thomas was President.

Members:

|---|---|
| Lieut. Colonel Hall, | Lieutenant Dire, |
| Captain Roll, | Lieutenant Seton, |
| Captain Platt, | Lieutenant Sherwood, |
| Captain Stuard, | Ensign Read, |
| Captain Allen, | Ensign Henshaw, |
| Lieutenant Yates, | Captain Dodge. |
| Lieutenant Sumway, | |

The Members being assembled, the President made choice of Captain Dodge to act as Judge Advocate.

The Members and President being sworn, proceeded to the trial of David Keerts.

The Court examining the crime alleged, are of opinion, that the prisoner's crime doth not come under their cognizance, and that the prisoner be discharged as soon as may be.

Joseph Fosey, Alexander Richeu, Jacob Hasmo, and Joseph Newman, being arraigned before the said Court, for inlisting more than once in the service of the United States of America, and taking money for the same; and being asked whether guilty or not, each plead Guilty of said charge. Whereupon the Court adjudge the prisoners guilty of a breach of third article of war, section the sixth, and order that each of them receive thirty-nine lashes on the naked back, and repay the money they have received of those officers who inlisted them after they were inlisted the first time, and that they be discharged from their confinement.

The within are the proceedings of the within-mentioned Court-Martial.

THOMAS THOMAS,
President of said Court, &c.

GENERAL JAMES CLINTON TO COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENT.

Fort Montgomery, December 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain De Witt informs me he is in want of a Lieutenant in his company, and that he would be glad to have Jierck De Witt appointed as such; he applies to me to recommend him. I know him well; he has served this season in my brother's brigade, but had no commission, though, in my opinion, he would make a good officer, if you see fit to appoint him.

JAMES CLINTON, Brig. Gen'l.

To the Gentlemen of the Committee of Arrangement for the State of New-York.

RESOLUTION OF NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, Fishkill, December 30th, 1776.

Resolved, That General George Clinton, General Scott, Mr. Duer, and the other Members of the Committee for carrying on a Secret Expedition in the County of Westchester, be, and hereby are, authorized to make drafts on the Treasury of this State for any sums, in the whole not exceeding six hundred Pounds, for the purpose of executing the powers with which they are vested; and that the said Committee account for the expenditure of the same.

By order.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

SIR: I am directed by the Convention to make a further application to Congress on the subject of clothing our levies. The situation of this State is such that it is impossible for us to get the several articles necessary for this purpose. And after we had procured at Philadelphia a very considerable quantity, it was taken by the Committee of Safety in that city, and applied for the use of their own soldiery. It gave the Convention great pleasure to learn, about a month ago, that our sister Colony of Massachusetts-Bay had been able to procure materials for clothing their quota of troops, and that pleasure hath been greatly increased by our information of the capture of clothing for twelve thousand men by a Continental ship-of-war, and of the arrival of a vessel from France, with a large assortment of clothing on account of Congress. As there is not any one State in America which has suffered so severely as New-York in the present war, as there is not one whose commercial resources have been so entirely cut off, we submit it to Congress whether she ought not to have a particular attention in the distribution of those articles which belong to the United States, and which by no care or industry can be procured on her separate account. In a word, sir, I am directed by the Convention to assure Congress that they are of opinion our regiments will be speedily filled if we can get any thing to cover them, and that without clothes they cannot possibly get troops.

General Morris, who is directed to repair to Congress, is charged with this letter, and instructed to urge for their answer, on which the safety of this State and the success of the common cause greatly depend.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient and very humble servant.

By order.

To the Honourable John Hancock, President of the General Congress.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 14 January: Referred to J. Adams, Harrison, R. H. Lee, Whipple, Hayward.]

Albany, December 30th, 1776.

SIR: That I have not been honoured with the commands of Congress, on the various matters mentioned in my former letters, and in a paper which I delivered to Messrs. Stockton and Clymer on the 11th ultimo, is most probably to be imputed to the necessity it has been under of giving the closest attention to the manœuvres of the enemy in Jersey. This consideration, and that of the winter's being considerably advanced, has induced me to proceed in making such preparations for the next campaign as I deem essentially necessary, without waiting the determination of Congress, trusting that Congress will readily pardon every faux pas I may commit from erring in judgment.

On the 3d instant I addressed myself to General Ward on the subject of cannon and military stores. From the copy of his letter, which is enclosed, Congress will perceive that I am not likely to receive any aid from the Massachusetts-Bay. I have, however, since the receipt of his letter, which was received on the 29th instant, written by express to the Honourable Thomas Cushing, entreating that the Legislature of that State would reconsider the matter, and furnish what cannon, &c., they can, and urged the necessity of their being sent whilst the earth is covered with snow, as a great expense in the transportation will be saved by these articles being carried to Ticonderoga in winter. I have made similar applications to Governour Trumbull and the President of New-Hampshire, and I propose in a few days to visit the Convention of this State on the same subject; for, indeed, unless a sufficient number of cannon and ammunition can be procured, we must inevitably lose Tyonderoga; and what the consequences of such a disaster would be, are too evident to dwell upon.

I have caused ten blacksmiths' shops to be erected in this city, and engaged workmen to be employed in making intrenching tools, axes, nails, &c., and hope, with the assistance of the smiths in the vicinity, to get a sufficient stock of those necessary articles, provided I can any how procure a quantity of steel, for which I have applied to the Massachusetts-Bay. But lest none should be sent me from thence, I must again entreat Congress to order three tons from Pennsylvania or Jersey, with all the despatch possible.

I have ordered all the provisions that can be procured, to be sent to Fort George, Cheshire's, and Ticonderoga. I fear a deficiency of salted meat, of which a sufficient stock should be laid in, as it would be risking too much to depend upon the precarious supply of fresh beef, at a time when the fortresses may be invested by the enemy.

Forage is laying in for the cattle, which it will be necessary to employ in the spring, both at Tyonderoga and on the communication to it.

Directions are given for repairing the batteaus in Lake Champlain and Lake George, and for building one hundred and fifty adapted to the navigation of Hudson's and the Mohawk's rivers and Wood Creek. Should the enemy be able to force us from Ticonderoga, it will be possible for them, although we keep possession of Mount Independence, to get into Lake George, by drawing their batteaus over land from below Tyonderoga; for although the task would be arduous, yet it is feasible, and ought to be guarded against. I therefore propose to build five or six flat-bottomed vessels, of considerable force, on Lake George, and shall begin to prepare the necessary articles in the beginning of February, unless Congress should please to direct otherwise; and about the same time I propose to begin the necessary work of obstructing the navigation of Lake Champlain, between Tyonderoga and Mount Independence, which I hope to execute so effectually as not to leave a possibility for any kind of craft to pass, whilst we keep possession of the latter place, and which I think we can do against any force whatever, provided we have a sufficient garrison, properly supplied with cannon, ammunition and provisions.

A considerable quantity of cordage and oakum is wanted. If it cannot be supplied in this State, I shall send to the Eastern ones; and so, indeed, I must for many articles that will be wanted. I wish, therefore, a resolution of Congress directing every State to comply with my applications in whatever they can.

The Indians have sent me a friendly message, and I have great hopes that they will abide by the neutrality they have promised to observe. A report prevails that the enemy have requested the Mohawks to remove into the country beyond our settlements; but I have reason to believe that it is void of foundation. I soon expect a visit from a considerable number of chiefs and warriours. They are in great distress for blankets. Unfortunately we have none here. I have applied for some to the Massachusetts-Bay and New-Hampshire, and may probably receive some from thence.

The Legislature of the Massachusetts-Bay have ordered one fourth of the Militia of the County of Berkshire, and one eighth of that of Hampshire, to Tyonderoga, to continue three months in service. Part of one regiment is marched from the former. What the whole number will be from both, I cannot make a guess at. No troops are yet arrived here from Connecticut; nor can I learn that any are got to Tyonderoga from Hampshire. Neither was any part of Colonel Warner's there on the 26th; and Colonel Wayne advises me that he has no hopes of any troops remaining after the term of their inlistment expires, unless it be the Pennsylvanians, who, he believes, will not quit the post until regularly relieved. For three weeks, or perhaps a month to come, we have little to fear from our enemy, but as after that Lake Champlain will be passable, it is probable they will make an attempt, as I am well informed that they have two regiments at St. John's, three at Isle-aux-Noix, and a small body as an advanced post on Isle-la-Motte; and I conjecture that they would hardly keep so many troops at those places, if they did not meditate a winter's expedition. It is therefore of importance that the garrison should be strengthened, and have therefore repeated my former application for assistance to the Eastern States.

Those of Van Schaick's and Gansevoort's regiments that are raised, are under orders to march to Fort Edward, Fort George, Cheshire's, and Skenesborough; but I fear the garrisons of those places will have left them before the relief gets there, which is detained through want of blankets, which I am trying to collect from the inhabitants in this City and County.

The non-commissioned officers and privates of Colonel Nicholson's regiment are all engaged in other corps, to serve during the war or for three years, and the officers mentioned in the enclosed list are unprovided for. I beg the direction of Congress with respect to them.

Colonel Livingston has given me a list of some officers, copy of which I enclose for the approbation of Congress. Perhaps some of Nicholson's officers might be provided for in Livingston's.

Most of the men in Colonel Elmore's regiment would reengage for the war. Some have already done it; but I have inhibited the recruiting officers of other corps to inlist any more of the men, as they are still to serve to the middle of April, and Congress may perhaps order that regiment to be kept up, that there may not be so many officers unprovided for. I wish to know the pleasure of Congress on the subject the soonest possible.

We are greatly at a loss for iron rods to make nails out of. If I knew where to procure them, I should not trouble Congress.

If any cannon are to come from Pennsylvania, as I believe there must, for I have very little prospect of getting a supply elsewhere, I wish them to be sent whilst the snow continues on the ground. The Paymaster-General informs me that he has very little cash left. A speedy supply will be necessary, as such a variety of articles are to be purchased, and so much transportation to be paid for.

The Regimental Paymasters will stand in need of very explicit instructions for the rule of their conduct. I take the liberty again to mention the necessity of sending them very soon, lest the accounts of the new Army should get involved in that variety of confusion which has attended the old. If they do not arrive soon, I shall take the liberty to do it for those in this department.

Much as I wish to do myself the honour to pay my respects to Congress, yet so much is to be done here, and no other General Officer in the department, that it would not be prudent for me to quit it at this conjuncture.

Colonel Pellesier was so bent on going to Congress, and importuned me so much on the occasion, that I consented, on his promise to return before the expiration of January. I hope he will not be permitted to tarry beyond that time.

I perceive by the printed proceedings of Congress, that several resolutions have passed which immediately respected this department, but which I have never received. If they have been sent, I wish you to advise me by whom. They are those mentioned in the enclosed abstract.

January 1st, 1777.—Last evening I was informed that amongst the letters lately intercepted by the enemy, was one from Colonel Trumbull, the Commissary-General, in which it is insinuated that I had secreted his brother Colonel John Trumbull's commission, as Deputy Adjutant-General. If it be true that he has asserted such a thing, I shall expect from Congress that justice which is due to me. The commission was never sent, at least never received by me; and if it had been, is there the least probability that I should secrete it, after having recommended Colonel John Trumbull to the office, as an active, discreet, and sensible officer? That gentleman and his brother, the Paymaster-General, both know, and I dare say will do me the justice to avow, that I wished to have him employed in a department equally honourable and much more important, and that I would have recommended him to Congress if he had chose it.

I have ordered the Director of the Hospital to lay in a sufficient quantity of medicines and necessary stores for the Hospital. He will find it extremely difficult to procure them; I therefore wish, if possible, that some may be sent from Philadelphia.

Be pleased to accept the compliments of this season, and may every succeeding one bring with it an increase of happiness to America is my first wish.

As I do not choose to risk this letter by the common expresses, I have thought it necessary to send an officer, and Captain Bloomfield, a very deserving one of Colonel Dayton's regiment, is the bearer of this.

I am, sir, with great respect and esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon'ble John Hancock.

Boston, 14th December, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 3d instant I have received. In answer to which would acquaint you that the cannon here, which belong to the Continent, were lent to this State by the Congress; and the Council of this State, to whom I showed your letter, have determined that none of those cannon can be spared. All the nails that were in the stores here have been forwarded to the Quartermaster-General. The intrenching tools I shall forward to Albany as soon as an opportunity offers. Those will amount to three or four loads.

A large fleet of the enemy's ships have arrived at Rhode-Island, but what number of troops are on board we cannot at present learn.

I am, sir, with esteem, your obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD

Copy of a Letter from JOS. TRUMBULL to WILLIAM WILLIAMS.

Transmitted to Congress by General Schuyler.

Camp, near North-Castle, 18th November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I returned to camp last Saturday week, when I found the Army like a clan of wandering Arabs in these confounded mountains of woods, and every thing in hurry and confusion. In Connecticut, the Assembly now sitting; Seymour and Hillhouse governing the Lower House, and running every thing mad and distracted. The recommendation of officers not attended to, but the old mode of appointing by Counties adopted, and the worst, instead of the best, officers appointed. The good will not now accept offices which their inferiours in every respect have refused, so that I foresee the greatest difficulty in raising a new Army; and nothing under Heaven can save us but the enemy's going to the Southern Colonies, which may give us an opportunity to rectify our mistakes and put matters on the footing they ought to be.

I received a letter from Brother Jack, dated the 4th of November, in which he says he has not received his commission, and resents it highly, as he ought to do. It is scandalous treatment. I apprehend Schuyler has kept it. Mr. Hancock wrote me immediately on the appointment, that he had or would send it immediately. I suppose he did it. It was as much as an officer of spirit could bear to have it lie so long as it did before Congress, but worse now; and he is determined to resent it. I wish you to inform me as soon as possible whether Mr. H. sent it forward, to whom, and when, that his resentment may be properly placed. Such a conduct will ruin the Army and the cause—gentlemen are not to be treated in such manner.

I hear Jos. Read has sent his resignation some time ago; in the name of common sense, why is it not accepted? That man's want of abilities in his office has introduced the greatest disorders and want of discipline into this Army; it ought to originate from that office. Then he has done more to raise and keep up a jealousy between the New-England and other troops than all the men in the Army beside. Indeed, his stinking pride, as General George Clinton expresses it, has gone so far that I expect every day to hear he is called to account by some officer or other; indeed, he is universally hated and despised; and it is high time he was displaced. General Gates is expected down soon. Could not he be induced to take the office again? And if General Schuyler must command at the northward, let General Greene go there in Gates's place. I find there has been some motion to Augustine Brother Jonathan and the Paymaster at the southward's wages. I wish to know how it has succeeded. I have sent a petition to Congress to have my allowance settled. It is backed by General Washington. I wish to have it tried at once. I mean to be determined by the event.

It is said Mount Washington has surrendered. We don't yet learn particulars. I am glad a Southern officer commanded. The story is not told to his advantage here; be it as it may, we should not have heard the last of it from Reed and some others of his stamp, if a New-England man had commanded.

I shall execute the Congress orders as to provisions for another year, and for salt; but I meet much difficulty from the privateers, who bid prices of all kinds of provisions on me; and I fancy will sink to the Continent in that way more than the value of all the prizes they get, though they are many and great. The chests at Boston, Albany, and here, run low. I wish they may soon be replenished, as you know I cannot go on one foot without cash, especially when the privateers' men are flush of that article.

What account have you from France, or about their aid, &c., which may be communicated? I can't learn any thing that I can depend on about those matters.

All friends are well at home. Colonel Dyer is added to the number of Congressmen, in a manner peculiarly agreeable to him, but not so to some others.

I am, dear sir, your affectionate brother,

JOS. TRUMBULL.

I have not received a line from you since I left camp.

To Colonel William Williams.

The above is a true copy, taken from Hugh Gaine's New-York Gazette, dated December 9th, 1776; No. 1311.

By me,

ROBERT YATES.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THOMAS CUSHING.

Albany, December 30, 1776.

SIR: Last evening I was favoured with your letter of the 16th instant. Colonel Simmons, with part of a regiment from the County of Berkshire, marched from hence on Thursday last. I wish those from the County of Hampshire had been immediately ordered by the nearest route to Tyonderoga, instead of coming this way, as it would have much shortened the march.

Yesterday I was advised by letters from the commanding officer at Tyonderoga, that the troops now there will not remain a day longer than they are engaged for, except the Pennsylvania battalions, whom he believes will not quit their posts until regularly relieved. I cannot ascertain to what number a fourth part of the Berkshire and an eighth of the Hampshire Militia will amount to. I hope it will be something considerable, as we ought not by any means to have less than two thousand five hundred effectives at Tyonderoga, lest the enemy should make an attempt this winter and carry that important place. I have information that two of their regiments are at St. John's, three at Isle-au-Noix, an advance party at Isle-la-Motte, and the remainder of their troops in different quarters in Canada. Should the enemy leave us unmolested this winter, I shall hope that they will not be able to penetrate from the northward in spring or summer, provided troops, cannon, and ammunition, are furnished me.

By a letter from the Honourable General Ward, of the 16th instant, which I also received last night, I find that I am to expect no cannon from your State. There are none in this, nor can I procure any from Pennsylvania or Jersey. I am not yet advised what Connecticut can afford me; but I am confident it will be greatly short of our wants. I wish, therefore, the Legislature of your State would consider the matter and supply me with all the cannon you possibly can. I must also entreat, that as much powder, lead, and cartridge paper, may be sent as can be collected in your State; and as those articles are much easier and cheaper moved in winter than they can be at any other time, I shall hope that they may be forwarded without delay. The cannon, if any are furnished, might be carried directly to Tyonderoga, where the A. D. Q. M. General will pay the expense of transportation; the powder, lead, and cartridge paper, to this place.

The enclosed to the New-Hampshire State contains a like application. Permit me to beg the favour of you to forward it by express.

I am, sir, with great esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

Hon. Thos. Cushing, Esq., Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Massachusetts-Bay.

P. S. The Indians appear to continue friendly to us, and I have reason to believe they will adhere to the promises of neutrality which they have made. I soon expect a visit from them. They are in great want of clothing, blankets especially. If four or five hundred can be procured, I wish them to be sent the very soonest possible. I have been disappointed in procuring two tons of steel from New-Jersey, and it is an article so essentially necessary that it cannot be dispensed with. Pray be so good as to send me that quantity, or rather three tons, if it is to be had.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO MESHECH WEARE.

Albany, December 30, 1776.

SIR: I did myself the honour to address you in a letter of the 3d instant, entreating that troops might be sent from your State to relieve the garrison at Ticonderoga. Although I have not had the pleasure to hear from you on the subject, I shall yet hope that some are already marched. I did not dwell on the importance Tyconderoga is of to every one of the Northern States. Should it unfortunately fall into the enemy's hands, the consequences would be dreadful, if not altogether fatal to the liberties of our country.

The situation of affairs in Jersey and Pennsylvania leave me very little hope to receive a supply of military stores from thence. This State has none. All that Connecticut can spare will be greatly short of our wants. I have no encouragement from the Massachusetts-Bay, and I must therefore most earnestly entreat for a supply from your State. The number of cannon wanted is very great; powder, lead, cannon, shot, cartridge-paper, and every necessary for the artillery, is greatly deficient. I wish therefore to be furnished with all of every kind that can possibly be collected. And as the conveyance in winter of these articles to Ticonderoga is so much cheaper and easier than at any other season, I wish them to be sent immediately.

The enemy have two regiments at St. John's, three at Isle-au-Noix, and an advance party at Isle-la-Mothe. From this, and a variety of other circumstances, I have reason to apprehend that they meditate an attack, if they find our garrison weak.

I have received a friendly message from the Indians. They seem determined to adhere to their treaties with us. I expect in a few weeks to be visited by a considerable party of them, when I shall be under the necessity of making them a present. Blankets they always expect, and unfortunately I have not one to give them. Let me entreat you, if any are to be had in your State, to send me four or five hundred the soonest possible. I shall order immediate payment for them.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

The Hon'ble President of the State of New-Hampshire.

J. TRUMBULL, JUN., TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Albany, 30th December, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I have nothing of importance since I wrote you last per Mr. Babcock, unless it be some Indian intelligence from Mr. Kirkland, who tells me that they hear from Niagara, that the commander of that fort is lately dead; that Butler, on intelligence that the Virginians are building a fort on the Ohio, above Fort Pitt, had sent off a number of Indians there to make discoveries. He tells me also, that he is informed that Captain Tice and Joseph Brant (an Indian who was taken to England last year by Johnson) had lately passed from Hudson river across the country to Susquehannah, on their way to Niagara; that intelligence had gone from them to the Mohawks, ordering to quit the country and come to Niagara as soon as possible; that they had important despatches from General Howe to all the Indians, &c. Mr. Kirkland had sent off runners to know the certainty of this news.

Some Massachusetts Militia are now coming on to take post at the northward, till recruits can be sent up. I hope soon to be in Connecticut. Interim, I am your dutiful son,

J. TRUMBULL, Jun.

Governour Trumbull.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety of Connecticut, Middletown, December 30th, 1776—

Present: His Honour the Governour, his Honour the Deputy Governour, Jabez Huntington, William Williams, William Hillhouse, Thomas Seymour, Esquires.

Voted, To draw on the Pay-Table for £3,500, in favour of Captain John Deshon, to dispose of in the service of this State, and render his account.—(Order delivered Peter Christophers, December 31st, 1776.)

December 31*st*, 1776.—The Council of Safety ordered the Clerk to draw on the Treasurer for twenty pounds of Gunpowder, in favour of Doct. John Dickinson, for the use of proving muskets.—(An order was drawn December 31st, 1776, and delivered Doct. John Dickinson.)

CAPTAIN DELAPLACE TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Hartford, December 30th, 1776.

As I cannot obtain permission to wait on you, must convey to your Honour, and the honourable Assembly now convened at Middletown, this my request in writing, that leave may be granted me to go to New-York, in order to effect an exchange with some of your officers, now prisoners of war in that city. As this indulgence has been allowed Lieutenant McDermott, flatter myself with the same liberty. I must further add, that I was the first prisoner brought here, and can safely say, with a good conscience, that I have treated laws and people with the greatest respect.

Am, sir, your most obedient servant,

WM. DELAPLACE.

Governour Trumbull.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.
State of Massachusetts-Bay, Boston, December 30, 1776.

Sir: Though the progress made by the enemy's troops be alarming, yet as they have advanced into the country so far from their shipping, and must be greatly encumbered with their baggage, provisions, &c., which it will require a great number of men to guard, the people of New-York, the Jerseys, and Pennsylvania, have a very favourable opportunity of exerting themselves. It would be a great happiness if they could collect and join General Washington in sufficient numbers to enable him to attack and repulse the enemy, or at least to stop their progress and cut off their retreat, till a sufficient body of the new Army could relieve them. If the several United States are speedy in furnishing their respective quotas of the eighty-eight battalions required by Congress, there may be a body of troops in a short time collected sufficient for that purpose. The misfortunes we have experienced should not prevent, but animate our endeavours to effect this necessary measure; and with regard to the inhabitants of this State, we hope they will operate upon them in no other way, and we have no reason to think that this will not be the case. In consequence of General Washington's letter of the 6th of November, requesting us to send four thousand Militia, to serve till March, we ordered such a part of our effective men to be drafted as we supposed would make a body of six thousand, which were all intended to be sent to join General Washington, and were ordered by General Lincoln, the commanding officer, to rendezvous at Danbury, in Connecticut: but since that, about nine hundred of them, from the two western Counties, have been ordered to march to Ticonderoga, by way of Albany, pursuant to a letter from General Schuyler, dated December 3d, earnestly requesting a body of men to succeed those whose time of service was nearly expiring; and about three thousand of them, besides several regiments of Militia and a company of the Train, were ordered to march by way of Providence, at the urgent and repeated request of Governour Cooke, occasioned by a large body of the enemy landing and taking possession of New-Port and the whole Island, which will probably cause some further detention of them there; the rest had orders to march directly to the place of rendezvous. The frequent removes of the Southern Army has occasioned us to be uninformed what number of men belonging to this State have inlisted into the new Army; but we are taking the necessary measures for completing our quota of it; for which purpose it was found necessary to make an addition of twenty pounds to the Continental bounty, in lieu of the additional wages that were intended, said bounty to be given to each effective man inlisting to serve three years, or during the war, and payable in two equal notes, issued by our Treasurer, on interest, at six per cent., payable in four years from their dates. Since this was done, we received your letter and resolve of the 15th of November, but it was then too late to make any alteration; and to retract or lessen it would have prevented inlistments. This has been not the effect of choice, but necessity, and it gives us great regret that such a necessity existed.

With respect to the Continental bounty of twenty dollars to each man, the resolves of Congress of the 16th September mention that it should be paid by the Paymaster of the department within which the men should inlist. We have applied to the Paymaster here, Mr. Eben'r Hancock, who says he has neither orders nor money for that purpose, nor has General Ward any orders concerning it. We earnestly beg that money may immediately be sent to pay that bounty which we have ordered our Treasurer to advance to the Mustermasters, to be paid to such men as inlist and pass muster. The large sum advanced by this State for the Continent, per account already exhibited, we should be glad it might be agreeable to your honourable body to order to be reimbursed, having great occasion therefor, to answer purposes of general concernment to the United States.

Agreeable to your desire, and repeated requests from General Washington and General Lee to procure clothing for the Army, our Committees appointed for the purpose have procured what quantity they could, part of which they have sent forward, and the remainder has been and will be delivered to Mr. Abra'm Livingston, pursuant to a letter from your Secret Committee, to whom the account of it, agreeable to their request, will be sent. We think it would be needful it should be well escorted in its carriage through the States of New-York and the Jerseys; and Mr. Livingston, if he finds it necessary, will be authorized to apply for an escort to General Lincoln, who will have orders to furnish one. Perhaps you may think proper to order further escorts, in case of accidents.

We think it of great importance that the means of a quick and frequent communication between the several States and the Army, and each other, should be kept up; and it was hoped that the new regulation of the post-riders would have furnished them; but that regulation has had a contrary effect, and has produced great irregularity in the arrival of the mails. It would give great and general satisfaction if it could be made effectually to answer the end for which it was intended.

Many of the inhabitants of Nova-Scotia, perhaps most of them, are well-affected to the cause of the United States. A deputation from the town of Maugwille, up St. John's river, applied to us for protection some months past. The deputies, one of which was Captain Jona. Eddy, propose an expedition against Fort Cumberland, called by the French Beau Sejour, where he said the enemy had barracks sufficient for several thousand men, which, in case of failure in their attempt on New-York, &c., it was supposed they intended should answer for winter quarters for part of their Army. In case the fort could not be taken, he said they could at least destroy the barracks, and desired some assistance for that purpose; on which a quantity of ammunition and provisions were granted to them; the consequence of which has been, that they have invested the fort, with about three hundred men, including Acadians, taken a sloop near the fort, just arrived with provisions, &c., for the garrison, said to be worth £5,000, and have also taken prisoners about fifty of the enemy, among which are Captain Bacon, an Engineer, Captain Walker, Doctor Collins, and Parson Eggleston, all of whom, with about thirty of the St. John prisoners, together with the sloop, have arrived in this State. Captain Eddy sent us a letter by Mr. Josiah Throop, dated Cumberland, 12th November, informing of these particulars, and entreating for themselves, and for the inhabitants of Nova-Scotia, that they may be assisted with troops, military stores, &c., in order that they may be able to promote the general cause, and add another Colony to the United States. He refers for further intelligence to Mr. Throop, who, by his memorial to this Court, has accordingly given somewhat further, and in the said memorial prays that sundry things may be granted. Some of them we have thought proper to grant, viz: that coasting vessels, under certain restrictions, (not yet settled,) be permitted to clear out for Passamaquoddy, the river St. John's, and Cumberland, in Nova-Scotia, and that certificates from those places may secure such vessels on their way back from American cruisers; that a Colonel's commission be sent to Jonathan Eddy, to command the forces raised, or which may be raised, for the defence of the eastern frontiers of this State and the adjacent places, and the annoyance of the enemies of the United States; that a Captain's commission be given to Josiah Throop, under Colonel Eddy, and a Lieutenant's commission, under Captain Throop, to Mr. Chalmer, the said officers not to be entitled to pay until further orders; and that two hundred pounds gunpowder, six hundred pounds leaden ball, and five hundred flints, be delivered to Mr. Throop, he to be accountable to this Court for the same when called upon. The other articles prayed for, particularly that their Army now in Cumberland may be considered as part of the Continental Army, and taken into Continental pay, we thought were proper to be laid before Congress for their determination.

Upon the whole, it gives us great pleasure that there is such a spirit in the inhabitants of Nova-Scotia in favour of the American cause; and we submit it to the serious consideration of Congress, whether they ought not to be assisted, and whether it be not likely that such assistance, if speedily and sufficiently given, will in several ways operate to the benefit of the United States, and it may eventually add another to them. A copy of the several papers relative to this business are herewith sent by Captain Throop, who is a very intelligent man, and will be able to give you a further account of things.

We lately appointed a Committee to consider, in conjunction with Committees from the neighbouring States, of means for preventing the depreciation of the currency. Their commission has been since enlarged, and they are now sitting at Providence, in consequence of an application from the Assembly of Rhode-Island, made since the descent of the enemy upon that State. A copy of the two resolves relating to this matter is enclosed, for the information of Congress.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

FRANCIS SHAW TO JOHN AVERY.

30 December, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have now the pleasure of informing you of a grand victory gained by General Washington at Trenton, on the 26th instant. His Excellency, with about three thousand men, crossed the Delaware on Christmas evening, and through a very heavy storm of rain, snow, and hail, marched, and began his attack about eight o'clock in the morning of the 26th, and after a battle of thirty-five minutes routed the whole and took nine hundred and nineteen prisoners, exclusive of killed and wounded. I was at Head-Quarters, saw the prisoners, and have the account directly from the General. If you have not this before you receive this, I must beg you would draw it off in a proper manner, as I am but this instant arrived, and the express just setting off.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

FRANCIS SHAW.

MEETING OF TOWNS OF WORCESTER COUNTY, MASSACHUSETTS.

At a meeting of the Committees of Safety, &c., of the Towns of Hutchinson, Hardwick, New-Braintree, and Oakham, in the County of Worcester, December 30, 1776. Upon complaint that sundry persons in said town of Hutchinson had occasioned a town meeting to be called there, to consider of Lord Howe's declaration for restoring peace in the Colonies, &c., to the great grief and astonishment of the inhabitants in general:

Upon examination, it clearly appearing to the several Committees aforesaid, that John Caldwell, Esq., and Captain John Black, of Hutchinson aforesaid, were the principal movers in that affair, and that by their bold, daring, and audacious speeches, in publick town meeting, endeavouring to support it; all which, upon their examination, they justified and declared they were not ashamed of; said Committees think themselves bound in duty, according to their appointment, and the requirements of the General Court, to give the publick notice of at least some part of their declarations, viz: the said John Caldwell said we had as bad great men at helm as there were at England; that the Committee of Congress, in their situation, could not properly treat with Lord Howe, and supposed he was empowered to settle with us upon honourable terms, which terms were, as yet, secreted from the people at large; that if Great Britain should leave us to ourselves, we could not maintain independence; that he had rather be under the power of Britain than under the power of France or Spain, or any Papal power, strongly intimating we must be governed by one or the other, and that it was the expectation of the people. Said he never voted for independence, and was not going to fight for it. Did say he never had altered his mind from the first; if the King's Commissioners could be applied to, and we could not have redress, he was for abiding by the cause.

The said John Black said, the American Congress were guilty of palpable falsehood, and he could prove it; that they were guilty of perjury and deceit, that they called Heaven to witness in their declaration of war, read to the Army on Prospect Hill, that they did not aim at independence, when it was evident to him it was their aim and view from the beginning of the dispute. That our merchants and head men had been to blame all along, and he appeared to justify the conduct of King and Parliament as supporting their dignity. Said two-thirds of the people on the Continent were against. He told the assembly in town meeting, "You expect to maintain independence, but you will not one of you have it. You will see in six months you will be conquered; you will not treat with Lord Howe, who would grant honourable terms." He insisted obstinately against the advice of the people of his own town, and the several Committees present; that we had never heard his proposals of reconciliation, which he was willing and desirous to make. It appeared that he gave several of his own town's people notice that there was one more declaration coming out soon from the Howes, with a limited time of pardon, which was the last offer we should ever have, and this some time before it was published. He owned, upon examination, that he was informed of it near two months before the publication; said he sacredly promised his informer to save his character and secrete his name, and positively refused the Committee to give his informer's name, or even to tell so much as what part of the world he belonged to.

Upon the whole, the several Committees aforesaid are unanimously and clearly of opinion, that the said Caldwell and Black justify each other in many of their assertions, and have, with design and artifice, done all in their power to violate the Resolve and Declaration of Independence of the most honourable Congress, and to prevent the means of our common defence, and ought to be held up to publick view to deter others from such evil examples. And we trust they will, by authority, be disabled from holding any publick office.

We trust the very extraordinary conduct of these persons, when the publick consider how the petitioners of the number of seven after all their pains taken, got but two to vote with them out of betwixt one and two hundred voters, will appear to the honour of the town where the meeting was; and spirit the publick to follow their noble resolution in the important and just cause we are engaged in.

Per order. JAMES WOODS, Chairman.

ARTHUR LEE TO THE SECRET COMMITTEE.

Paris, 31st December, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I had the honour of receiving your favour of the 23d of October, announcing to me my appointment as one of the Commissioners from the Congress of the United States of America.

I cannot express how much I am obliged to that most respectable body for giving me an opportunity of showing how much I prefer the service of my country and her present cause, to every other pursuit and situation in life.

I had the happiness of joining Dr. Franklin and Mr. Deane the day after the arrival of the former at this place. We have employed every moment in preparing the way for fulfilling the purpose of our mission. It is impossible to say yet in what degree we shall be able to accomplish our instructions and our wishes. The politicks of Europe are in a state of trembling hesitation. It is in consequence of this that I find the promises which were made me by the French agent in London, and which I stated to you by Mr. Storey and others, have not been entirely fulfilled. The changing the mode of conveying what they promised was settled with Mr. Deane, whom Mons. Hortalez found here upon his return, and with whom all the arrangements were afterwards made. I hope you will have received some of the supplies long before this reaches you. Infinitely short as they are of what was promised in quantity, quality, and time, I trust they will be of very material service in the operations of the next campaign. It is that, to use the words of our arch enemy, to which we must look, and no exertions in preparing for it can be too great, because the events of it must be very decisive.

I have the honour to be, &c., ARTHUR LEE.

SOUTH-CAROLINA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

In the Council of Safety, Charles-Town, South-Carolina, 31 December, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The bearer, Captain Robert Cochran, being sent by us to procure seamen in your Colony for the defence of this, we take the liberty of requesting that you will afford him every assistance in your power which he may want in this business. From your zeal in the common cause of America, we doubt not that he will meet with your support and countenance. Be assured that we shall think ourselves happy in rendering any service to our brethren in the Massachusetts-Bay, and testify upon every occasion the esteem and regard which we have for your honourable Board.

By order of the Council of Safety.

HENRY LAURENS, President.

COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Baltimore, December 31, 1776.

Sir: We, a Committee of Congress authorized and directed to employ some suitable person to make application to your honourable Board for certain ordnance and other stores which have been represented by General Schuyler as immediately necessary for the use of the Northern Army—we accordingly send forward Colonel Stuart, who will lay before the Board a list of such stores as are wanted, which we hope may be procured on just and equitable terms, and transported with all possible despatch to General Schuyler.

We need not urge the great importance of having our Army in that quarter well supplied with every necessary article, there being not the least room to doubt of General Carleton's intention as early as possible to push his forces into the Eastern States, or of his success in such attempt unless seasonably prevented. It is, therefore, our most earnest request, that you would afford Colonel Stuart your advice, assistance, and influence, in the prosecution of this business, and furnish him with such moneys as he may have need of for the purpose, in which case your draft on the President of the Congress will be duly honoured.

We have the honour to be, with very great esteem, your most obedient, humble servants,

Samuel Adams, Benja. Harrison,
Rich'd Henry Lee, Thos. Heyward, Jun.
Wm. Whipple,

The Hon. the President of the Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

THOMAS NELSON, JUN., TO GENERAL GATES.

Baltimore, December 31, 1776.

Sir: Being one of a Committee appointed by Congress to prepare a plan for establishing a Board of War and Ordnance, and not having a thorough knowledge of the duties of these Boards, I have taken the liberty to request the favour of you, when your health will permit, to furnish me with such a plan as you shall think best adapted to answer the designs of Congress. My not having the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with you will, I hope, be a sufficient apology for my addressing you by letter.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

Thos. Nelson, Jun.

To Major-General Gates.

---

WILLIAM ELLERY TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Baltimore, December 31st, 1776.

Sir: I received your letter of the 30th of November, and laid it before Congress, and took particular notice of the very weak condition of our State. Congress are sensible of its situation; but as they have by a late resolve, which the President will by this express transmit to you, with a circular letter in which the reasons for their doings are contained, delegated to and invested General Washington with the whole military power for a limited time, application will probably be made to him in every instance which respects the military department. With regard to the other parts of your letter, which were ordered to be laid before Congress, as they required no particular observation, none were made upon them either by Congress or me.

I was extremely glad to receive so much particular information into the affairs of our State, and hope you will continue to make me acquainted with such doings of the General Assembly, from time to time, as may be thought proper to be communicated. I should be glad to know whether we have any Powder Mills in the State? Whether they are going, and supplied with saltpetre to keep them in motion? At present, indeed, if any should have been erected in the State of Rhode-Island, they may be stopped by the enemy having entered our State; but I hope so large a force will soon be (if it should not be already) collected as to give security to the town of Providence, and prevent them from making any incursions into our State, to confine them to Rhode-Island, if not expel them from thence, in which cases all mechanical business and manufactures may proceed.

In my last, of the 24th of this instant, notwithstanding the gloomy appearance of our publick affairs, I still expressed hopes that General Washington might be reinforced by the division under General Sullivan, and the Militia from the State of Pennsylvania, and thus reinforced be enabled to meet and drive the enemy from the Jersey. General Sullivan with his division, and some of the troops from Ticonderoga, whose time of inlistment had expired, under General Gates, have joined General Washington, and also some of the Pennsylvania Militia. This, and the glorious success of an enterprise well-planned by our General, and as well executed on the morning of the 26th, have elevated my hopes, and give good reason to expect that our cruel foes may be drove from Jersey. The President, I suppose, will send you an account of that enterprise; but least he should omit it, and as we have been for some time unsuccessful, and this noble exploit may exhilarate the spirits of my countrymen under their present situation, I can't forbear enclosing you a handbill of the particulars, with some additions on the reverse made from General Washington's letter of the 27th. I heartily congratulate you on this noble, this unexpected event—an event which, though by no means decisive, yet by the spirit it will give to the troops in actual service, to the Militia in the neighbouring States, to our Army, and to all the United States, is of the greatest importance. I hope and don't doubt but that it will have a fine effect upon the troops which may be collected to support our State, and urge them on to some such enterprise, if they should have an opportunity to execute it. Among other things that fell into our hands by the victory at Trenton, were four standards, one of which is now in the room where the Congress is held, and directly before me. It is an Hessian silken standard. The battalions which were surprised and subdued were the regiments of Landspatch, Kniphausen, and Rohl. I would describe it, if I were acquainted with heraldry, and if it were of importance enough to engage your attention. In the centre of a green field of about four by five feet, is a decorated gilded circle, which encloses a lion rampant, with a dagger in his right paw, and this motto in the upper part of it, "Nescit Pericula." The crest is a crown with a globe and cross upon it. In the corners are gilded decorated circles, with crowns and globes and crosses on their tops, and in their middle F. L. in cyphers. A broad blaze extends from the corners to the piece in the centre, and three small blazes are placed in the field: one in the middle of the side next the staff, one in the opposite side, and one in the midst of the lower side or bottom. How well the motto suits the conduct of the troops where it was once waved I shall leave, and you, sir, with this sincere wish, that the troops in our State may acquire like trophies, and that this successful, happy enterprise, may prove an omen of future decisive victory over our barbarous foes.

I continue to be, with the greatest esteem and consideration, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM ELLERY.

P. S. Enclosed you have a newspaper which contains the first number of Crisis: an animated useful performance, and which ought, in my opinion, be reprinted every where in America.

The express not going out so soon as was expected, gives me an opportunity to send you a printed copy of General Washington's letter, and the return of the prisoners, &c. What I have called a standard, may be only one of the colours mentioned in the return. There is a report that a body of our troops, under General Heath, had taken possession of Hackensack and Fort Lee, and captured one hundred and thirty prisoners, a number of Tories, &c., &c. I wish it may prove true. There indeed appears to be good ground to credit it. I was just now told by a gentleman who had conversed with the Aid-de-Camp who brought General Washington's letter, that his Excellency's horse was wounded under him, and that we had taken more prisoners than were mentioned in the return, and more arms.

W. E.

Hon'ble Nicholas Cooke, Esq.

MEMORIAL OF LIEUTENANT-COLONEL ANTILL.

[Read December 31, 1776: Referred to the Board of War.]

To the Honourable Continental Congress:

The Memorial of EDWARD ANTILL, Lieutenant-Colonel to the Regiment commanded by MOSES HAZEN, Esq., humbly showeth:

That after the resolve of the honourable Congress of the 23d of October last, relative to the said regiment being recruited to its full complement upon its original establishment, the said Moses Hazen divided the duty between him and your memorialist, and left instructions to fill up eight companies in the Southern district, comprehending the States of New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia. That your memorialist has since received further instructions from the said Colonel Hazen to issue recruiting orders to four or five companies more, and upon the whole had issued orders to ten Captains, all of whom have been strongly recommended, either by one or more of the honourable Members of Congress, or a General Officer under whom they had respectively served with reputation; that your memorialist has particularly recommended it to his several Captains in the different parts of the country in which they recruit, to look out for and conditionally bespeak such articles as would be proper and necessary for the clothing of their companies; that he has received information from them that many articles can be procured at a moderate rate. Your memorialist begs leave further to observe, that the companies from Virginia, Maryland, and the Delaware States, will pass through Christiana-Bridge town, where he humbly proposes they may be mustered by Colonel Samuel Patterson, who must be authorized for that purpose, and be further permitted to deliver to the respective companies such arms, accoutrements, and other military stores as they may have occasion for, in order to complete them for service. Your memorialist further observes, that a Paymaster has been recommended, who has offered two sufficient sureties for the faithful performance of his trust; your memorialist therefore prays the honourable Congress would point out the mode in which the security is to be given, and the sum for which the same is to be taken; and that they will further permit your memorialist to procure the clothing and necessaries for that part of the said regiment under his care, and be authorized to draw bills for the same upon such persons as the honourable Congress shall be pleased to appoint; and further indulge your memorialist in immediately receiving out of some of the Continental stores at , Wilmington, or New-Port, some few pieces of strong linen for the making and fitting trowsers, leggins, &c., for the men.

All which, if granted your memorialist, he humbly conceives will be for the benefit of the service, and speedy fitting the said regiment for duty.

And your memorialist shall ever pray.

PETITION OF ABRAHAM WINENT.

Baltimore, December 31st, 1776.

To the honourable the Continental Congress:

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: I beg leave to inform you that I was taken out of my bed in the night, from my house in Staten-Island, on the 19th November, and have been kept close prisoner at different places ever since, and am utterly ignorant what is or can be alleged against me for the cause of it, as from the situation of the place where I lived, it was entirely impossible for the inhabitants to take an active part on any side, being disarmed, and allowed to remain neuter by General Washington, and also by General Howe afterwards. I beg leave to inform your Honours, that I have suffered greatly in health, and in several other respects, since I was confined, being brought from my family, and not permitted to take with me a supply of common necessaries, or any clothes; I would therefore humbly beg leave to be heard, either before your Honours or any person whom you may appoint, and that your Honours would be pleased to discharge me from this close confinement, and allow me to return to my family and home; which is the earnest petition of, and will greatly oblige, honourable gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

ABRAHAM WINENT.

PETITION OF PEIRCE HACKETT, AND OTHERS.

To the honourable the gentlemen of the Continental Congress:

The humble Petition of the underneath persons most humbly sheweth:

That your Honours' petitioners are indented servants to one John Hart, of Baltimore town, and each of your Honours' petitioners not having above one year and a half to serve, are willing to fight and serve under the honourable Congress in defence of the United States of America. Your Honours' petitioners being servants, are willing to allow our master to receive the bounty money for each of us, together with a reasonable part of our monthly pay, to the amount of the value of our time. The master of your Honours' petitioners has at sundry times beat, abused, and used ill your petitioners, for offering their service to fight for the country; we therefore, your Honours' most dutiful petitioners and servants, most humbly crave that you, the gentlemen of the honourable Congress, will take our distressed situation into your wise consideration, so far as to gain us liberty to join in some company, as our hearts are free to fight in the cause of liberty; for life, without liberty, is worse than death.

Gentlemen of the honourable the Continental Congress, we remain your Honours' most dutiful, most faithful, and humble servants till death,

Peirce Hackett,
John Casey,
James Ryan,
Marma Duke Will'm McDonnell.

---

PETITION OF WILLIAM CLOWSE.

To the honourable Congress of the United States:

The Petition of William Clowse most humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner is greatly distressed in his family, his wife having for these four months and upwards been lunatick, and having acted in the most violent manner, almost to madness; that your petitioner hath been obliged to employ sundry people constantly to attend her, she seldom having any intervals; that his said wife hath a son by a former husband, who hath turned the age appointed by Convention; that as all the Militia are departing hence, whereby your petitioner can have no person to assist him in the mad fits of his said wife, except her said son is allowed to stay behind, and no hospital for such being nigher than Philadelphia, your petitioner most humbly prays the said son of his said wife may be excused from going with the Militia at this time, as he hath no other to help and assist, and when his said wife is in fits, may set fire to his house, or murder deponent and small children; and your petitioner will pray, &c.,

William Clowse.

PETITION OF JOHN CASEY.

To the honourable and worthy John Hancock:

The humble petition of John Casey, who has been unhappily trapanned to inlist in Captain Team's company, when very much in liquor, and am but a poor, unhealthy man, having a wife and small children; therefore, honoured sir, I hope you will consider the unhappy state of my poor, distressed family, whereas they had no other dependence more than what I earned by the loom, as I am unfit for any other business.

Worthy sir, it is plainly to be seen that I am no impostor; and if your Honour should think me fit for service, I am very willing, if there is any provision made for my poor family. Kind sir, I am willing to return the clothes and bounty, and will agree to serve any person that pays the same, and allow him half my earnings, and the other part for my family, until all is paid. Worthy sir, I hope you will consider my distress, and for your tender mercy I shall be on duty bound to pray.

John Casey.

Baltimore, December 31, 1776.

On Saturday last arrived in town, from Philadelphia, the Hon. Horatio Gates, Esq., Major-General in the Continental Army, accompanied by Colonel Donald Campbell and Lieutenant-Colonel Stuart.

To the melancholy picture already exhibited of the brutal behaviour of the Britons, (who vainly boast of being "ever preeminent in mercy,") aided by Hessian and Waldeck mercenaries, in New-York and New-Jersey, it gives us pain to add, that they have not only outraged the feelings of humanity to many people who were so unhappy as to fall into their hands, particularly the fair sex, but have degraded themselves beyond the power of language to express, by wantonly destroying the curious water-works at New-York, an elegant publick library at Trenton, and the grand orrery made by the celebrated Rittenhouse, which was placed in the College at Princeton, a piece of mechanism which the most untutored savage, staying the hand of violence, would have beheld with wonder, reverence, and delight! Thus are our cruel enemies warring against liberty, virtue, and the arts and sciences. "How are the mighty fallen!"

One of the Hessian standards, taken in General Washington's late glorious enterprise at Trenton, was brought to town by the brave and worthy Colonel Baylor, and presented to the honourable President of the Congress.

CAPTAIN COOK TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, December 31st, 1776.

Honoured Gentlemen: I wrote you on Tuesday last, and since that time the greatest part of the people I brought here is inlisted in the land service, for the sake of the twenty dollars bounty, and gone to the camp. Those who were sailors have entered in merchantmen, wages being extravagantly high. Since our arrival here, have been helping to fit out the Delaware two days past. Mr. Morris desired we should repair on board one of the row-galleys, and follow that part of the Army that's gone into the Jerseys. We made the attempt, but the ice prevented us from proceeding, upon which we were obliged to return. I have used every persuasive argument in my power to keep them together, but they complain of the want of clothes, and of their time being expired. I have not over twelve men with officers that is now willing to go to camp. I informed Mr. Morris, a few days ago, of my people's entering and going off, as there was no immediate call at Philadelphia. I wanted permission to return to the ship, with what men I had left. He did not approve of it, but signified what did not return to advertise. I shall, at my return, give you a list of those who are gone, and those who return with me.

I confess, had I known we were to have had a winter's campaign, I would have provided clothes for them. All that I expected was, to have done what was in my power for the present occasion, and to have returned to the ship in a short time. Agreeable to your instructions, I wait the pleasure of the Congress or Marine Board to return, or your orders for that purpose.

Yesterday there was nine hundred and fifty Hessians come to this town, prisoners, exclusive of commissioned officers; and it is reported, since these being taken, there is about three hundred men, with a Hessian Brigadier-General, made prisoners.

I am, honoured gentlemen, your humble servant,

Geo. Cook.

The honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, December 31st, 1776.

Sir: We have the honour to enclose herein sundry resolves of Congress just received from Baltimore by express. We have barely time to read them over, and finding them so important we would not delay the express one moment. We find by these resolves your Excellency's hands will be strengthened with very ample powers, and a new reformation of the Army seems to have its origin therein. Happy it is for this country that the General of their forces can safely be entrusted with the most unlimited power, and neither personal security, liberty, or property, be in the least degree endangered thereby. We shall lose no time in executing the matters assigned us by these resolves; and are most truly, your Excellency's obedient servants,

Robt. Morris,
Geo. Clymer,
Geo. Walton.

His Excellency George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief, &c., &c.

COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS FOR TRANSACTING CONTINENTAL BUSINESS TO THOMAS NELSON.

Philadelphia, December 31, 1776.

Sir: You will find here an account of Mr. Robert Jewell, keeper of the Continental State Prison in this city, balance due him £252 6*s.* 4½*d.*; also his account for the salary of himself and assistants, £229 10*s.* We thought it best these accounts should go through the usual forms, and you'll be good enough to lay them before the Treasury Board, who will either pass them as they stand, or with such alterations as they may judge proper. Mr. Jewell is an honest, worthy man, indefatigable in a diligent execution of his duty.

We also enclose you an account of John Biddle, for supporting prisoners at Reading, for settlement whereof the Council of Safety referred him to us; and as we have no rule to go by, he agreed to wait your returns on this head.

When these accounts are passed, if sent back to us, we will pay the parties agreeable to such directions as you may give; in the mean time we have advanced Mr. Jewell one thousand dollars in part of his demand; and remain, sir, your obedient, humble servants.

CARPENTER WHARTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, December 31st, 1776.

SIR: I transmit you enclosed a copy of the instructions I have received from his Excellency General Washington for the laying in large magazines of provision in this State, at such places as per the enclosed orders; and as a very considerable sum of money is wanted for that immediate purpose, I request you will please to order the Treasurer to pay on my account to Mr. Joseph Pennell, Assistant Commissary, seventy thousand dollars, for the sole purpose of procuring necessary provisions to form the magazines.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

CARPENTER WHARTON.

The Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

---

To Mr. Commissary WHARTON:

SIR: Lay in provision for twenty thousand men, at the following places and in the following quantities: At York, four months; at Lancaster, two ditto; at Mill-Town, ten days.

Besides the provisions at these places, which are to be considered as magazines, you should have some deposited on the roads leading from Lancaster to Winchester, in Virginia, and from the head of the Bay to Alexandria, in the same State, for the accommodation of the troops in their march from the Southern Colonies.

You shall also so far look round you as to know that there are in the vicinity of Philadelphia, and in the city itself, provision enough to serve ten thousand men at least six weeks; but there will be no occasion as yet for large purchases or large deposites in this quarter.

Given at Head-Quarters, Bucks County, this 21st December, 1776.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COMMITTEE AT LANCASTER.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, December 31, 1776.

SIR: The Hessian prisoners taken by General Washington on the morning of the 26th instant are ordered to Lancaster. They are to march from Philadelphia on the 2d of January. They seem perfectly ignorant of the nature of our present contest, and greatly dissatisfied with the service. General Washington has warmly recommended to have them well informed of the reasons of the war, and good principles infused into them, and we think it a matter of the greatest consequence. It will be very necessary to prevent our weak and over-zealous friends insulting or putting them in mind of their past behaviour. It is our interest to improve the present opportunity to make them our friends, and sow the seeds of dissension between them and the British troops. The Germans, by treating them as brethren and friends, may do the most essential service to our cause.

The Council are of opinion, that it might be proper to appoint persons of discretion for these purposes, to visit them occasionally, and that, for some time at least, no other persons should be allowed intercourse with them. A caution to the inhabitants how to conduct themselves on their arrival may not be improper. Little need be said to you on this subject: your own good sense will point out the most proper measures. The Council thought it necessary to give you this early information, that the barracks may be put into a condition to receive them immediately on their arrival.

By order of the Council.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

THOS. WHARTON, Jun., Pres't.

P. S. This moment were brought into Council the colours belonging to the Hessian regiments, eight in number.

On Monday last seven of the Light-Horse belonging to this city performed an action truly gallant and worthy of freemen. They were sent to reconnoitre, and, if possible, to take a prisoner for intelligence. At a small distance from Princeton they fell in with ten of the enemy's Light-Horsemen and a Commissary, who were out on a party to wagons; seven of whom they took with their Commissary, and brought them safe to General Washington at Trenton. They are now on their way to this city.

To William Atlee, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Inspection, &c., at Lancaster.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COMMITTEE AT LANCASTER.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, December 31, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your friendly and humane exertions to provide wagons to remove the inhabitants of this city and their effects, agreeable to the request of this Council, deserves our most grateful acknowledgments, and we are impressed with a due sense thereof. But as our arms, by the blessing of God, have been attended with an unexpected success, and opens a more happy prospect to the friends of America, which makes it unnecessary to remove any more stores or effects at this time but what can be removed by the wagons which will unavoidably leave, therefore we shall have no present occasion for any more from your County. You will please to return our thanks to those wagoners who are upon their way down, dismiss them from our service, and pay them what you think reasonable for the time they had been from home. Money shall be sent you for that purpose. We shall depend upon your justice and economy in this matter.

With the compliments of the season, and congratulations for the late victory, we conclude.

Your most humble servants.

By order of the Council:

THOS. WHARTON, Jun., Pres't.

To William Atlee, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Inspection of Lancaster.

---

Philadelphia, Tuesday, December 31, 1776.

By the last advices from the Jerseys, we learn the enemy are every where flying before our Army, who frequently take small parties of them. Since the affair at Trenton, it is said, we have taken four hundred, amongst whom are several officers.

Yesterday morning upwards of nine hundred Hessians, who were taken at Trenton, were brought to this city. The wretched condition of these unhappy men, most of whom, if not all, were dragged from their wives and families by a despotick and avaricious Prince, must sensibly affect every generous mind with the dreadful effects of arbitrary power.

Last Monday seven of the Light-Horse belonging to this city took nine Light-Horsemen from the enemy, near Prince-Town, without firing a gun.

Last Thursday afternoon Colonel Rohl died at Trenton, of the wounds he received that morning.

BENJAMIN RUSH TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

Near Bristol, December 21, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Wherever I go I bear in my mind the small share of the weight of our dear country's happiness which the State of Pennsylvania hath committed to my care. I wish sometimes to throw my mite into the councils of the Congress, but as this is impossible for the present, I beg leave to suggest such things as have occurred to me, in my passage through Philadelphia to this place, and submit it to your good sense to make any use of them you may think proper. I need not inform you of the general disposition of the people, in and near Philadelphia, to refuse Continental money, upon the late prospect of General Howe's getting possession of the city. General Putnam threatening to confine such people as refused it, and declaring the debt for which the money was offered to be void, produced only a temporary remedy against the evil. People who had goods refused to sell them, and men who had money out at interest either refused to give up bonds, or kept out of the way when Continental money was offered for them. The Legislatures of America look up to Congress for a remedy equal to the danger of the disease. Suppose you recommend to every State to make a law, not only to forfeit the debt for which our money is offered, but to fine the person who refuses it severely: this will be more effectual than imprisonment, which, from becoming so common from Tory practices, has now lost its infamy. The punishment in this case strikes directly at that principle in human nature, which is the source of the contempt into which our money has fallen—I mean avarice, and a want of publick spirit. Pray don't let this matter be neglected; our salvation hangs upon it. I tremble every time I think of the danger of the further progress of the refusal of our money.

Connected with the above subject is the state of the Loan Office; if possible, let the resolutions for the last emission of five millions of dollars be cancelled. I hope that it will be the last resolution of that kind that will appear on our journals. If it is not, the whole Continent must complain of our injustice, in allowing only four per cent. for the money now deposited in the Loan Office, unless we can give positive assurance that we shall pay it in hard money.

I have learnt from many people, and among others from two New-England officers, that the four Eastern States will find great difficulty in raising their quota of men, owing to that excessive rage for privateering, which now prevails among them. Many of the Continental troops now in our service pant for the expiration of their inlistments, in order that they may partake of the spoils of the West-Indies. At a moderate computation, there are now not less than ten thousand men belonging to New-England, on board privateers. New-England and the Continent cannot spare them. They have a right at this juncture to their services and to their blood. We must have an Army; the fate of America must be decided by an Army. It must consist of seventy or eighty thousand men, and they must all be fit for the field before the first day of May next. Since the captivity of General Lee, a distrust has crept in among the troops, of the abilities of some of our General Officers high in command. They expect nothing now from Heaven-taught and book-taught Generals. I hope in our next promotions we shall disregard seniority. Stevens must be made a Major-General; he has genius as well as knowledge. Mercer must not be neglected; he has the confidence of the troops.

Yours, BENJAMIN RUSH.

Richard Henry Lee, Esq., Member of Congress.

P. S. Congress must take up the affairs of our money wholly. It is a national concern; Legislatures are too distant, too languid, and, in many States, too incompletely formed for that purpose.

COLONEL CADWALADER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Crosswix, 31st December, 1776.

SIR: A very intelligent young gentleman is returned just now from Prince-Town. He left this yesterday morning, and got in about twelve or one o'clock. He would have returned last night, but General Lesley, who commands, and Colonel Abercrombie, would not suffer him to go off. He made his escape this morning early, and informs that, from the best information he could get, there were about five thousand men, consisting of Hessians and British troops—about the same number of each. I have made a rough draft of the road from this place, the situation of the cannon and works begun, and those intended, this morning. He thinks there are not so many as they report. He conversed with some of the officers, and lodged last night with them (Americans.) They inquired what were our numbers; he mentioned about sixteen thousand, from the best accounts. They did not believe we had more than five or six thousand; that many were forced into the service, and that they were deserting in great numbers every day. No sentries on the back or east side of the town. They parade every morning an hour before day, and some nights lie on their arms. An attack has been expected for several nights past. The men much fatigued, and, till last night, in want of provisions, when a very considerable number of wagons arrived with provisions from Brunswick. All their baggage sent to Brunswick, where there are but few men. This confirms the account I sent you last night. About fifty Light-Horse at Prince-Town, one half quartered at Scudder's Mill, the other on the west of the town. He inquired if any troops were on the road. They say there are none on this side Brunswick. Some Hessians arrived yesterday ('tis said from Brunswick.) I suppose they were those landed at South-Amboy, as I cannot hear any thing of them in this neighbourhood.

A party of our Light-Horse brought in this morning to Cranberry, about thirty cattle, left by the Hessians, in general poor.

I received your letter last night by express. Our spy was near the party of Chasseurs when they were taken, and says an Assistant Quartermaster-General or Commissary was with them. The enemy had heard it. Major Griffin is just setting off with a party of two hundred from Cumberland.

I am, sir, with great respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN CADWALADER.

Major Nicholas, of Marines, informs me that Colonel Elisha Lawrence (late Sheriff of Monmouth) is now collecting men at Monmouth Court-House. He has got together about seventy men. He has put twenty men into prison for refusing to bear arms. The person who brings the intelligence flew. Major Nicholas is desirous of going after Lawrence's party. I think it is not an object at this time, and have refused the application till I have your orders.

Yours, &c., &c., J. C.

His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO ROBERT MORRIS.

Trenton, December 31st, 1776.

SIR: Our affairs are at present in a most delicate, though I hope a fortunate situation. But the great and radical evil, which pervades our whole system, and, like an axe at the tree of our safety, interest, and liberty, here again shows its baleful influence. To-morrow the Continental troops are all at liberty. I wish to push our success to keep up the panick, and in order to get their assistance, have promised them a bounty of ten dollars, if they will continue for one month. But here again a new difficulty presents itself: We have not money to pay the bounty, and we have exhausted our credit by such frequent promises, that it has not the weight we could wish. If it be possible, sir, to give us assistance, do it. Borrow money where it can be done. We are doing it upon our private credit. Every man of interest, every lover of his country, must strain his credit upon such an occasion. No time, my dear sir, is to be lost.

I am, most obediently and sincerely, dear sir, your very humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

The bearer will escort the money.

GOVERNOUR TRYON TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

New-York, 31st December, 1776.

MY LORD: Last Sunday evening Mr. Wallace and Mr. Jauncey, two of his Majesty's Council of this Province, with several other inhabitants thereof, came to town from Connecticut, having been discharged by Governour Trumbull from their confinement upon the express obligation of not taking up arms against America, and to return to their captivity if required. By these gentlemen I understand the temper of the warmest patriots in Connecticut is much softened, and that they wish for peace; they also tell me, from the intelligence they had opportunities to collect, they are positive a majority of the inhabitants of Connecticut river are firm friends to Government. This report I can give the more credit to, from the number of Connecticut men that inlist in the Provincial corps now raising.

The Rebels carrying off the Hessian brigade under Colonel Rall, at Trenton, has given me more real chagrin than any other circumstance this war. The moment was critical, and I believe the Rebel chiefs were conscious if some stroke was not struck that would give life to their sinking cause, they should not raise another Army. Unlucky as was this loss, I have received great comfort by the assurances General Heister and General Kniphausen have given me, (who are most sincerely and deeply mortified at the event,) that the Rebels will not, with all their arts, be able to seduce the Hessian prisoners from their allegiance to their Prince and duty to his Majesty. I trust this tarnish to the campaign, will in due season be wiped away by some brilliant enterprise of the King's forces, who entertain the keenest sense of the insult.

I am, with all possible respect, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient, and very humble servant,

WM. TRYON.

GENERAL HEATH TO MAJOR SMITH.

Peek's Kill, December 31st, 1776.

SIR: I have just received information that a number of persons are going to join the enemy this or to-morrow night, and that they are to rendezvous near the house of one Joseph Bright. I desire the exertion of your utmost endeavours to seize them. Captain Sacket, the bearer of this, will aid and assist you. You will post parties where it is most likely for them to pass, which most probably will be in the by-roads.

I am, sir, your humble servant, W. HEATH.

Major Smith.

COLONEL WILLETT TO COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENT.

Fishkill, December 31, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As the appointment of Ensigns in our battalion is not completed, I beg leave to recommend Christopher Hutton, a young man late of the city of New-York, who served during the last campaign in Colonel Malcomb's battalion, a Sergeant in Captain Brasher's company, with great credit, as I have been informed by sundry officers of said battalion. At a time when there are so large a number looking out for appointments, I should not mention any person, was I not very well acquainted with this young man, and did I not personally know him to be of great merit for a youth of his opportunities, and that he has such virtue as is too seldom to be found in our days. His military talents, I have reason to believe from good accounts, are such as promises him to be an ornament to the Army.

I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

MARINUS WILLETT.

RESOLVES OF THE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY OF NEW-YORK.

In Committee of Safety for the State of New-York, }
Fishkill, December 31st, 1776. }

Your Committee appointed to examine Captain Ford, Sergeant Hathway, Sergeant Trip, and Corporals Sears and Gray, belonging to Captain Ford's company of artificers, who were sent by order of General Heath to the Convention, on accusation of plundering the house of Talman Pugsley of sundry effects, report, that they have examined the said prisoners and divers witnesses, and find that Captain Phineas Ford plundered the house of Talman Pougsley, (and by order of the said Captain Ford:) that the plunder was afterwards divided by his order, of which he received his share and sent it to Stamford, in Connecticut, as appears by the notes of the examinations of the witnesses hereunto annexed; that the said Captain Ford has been guilty of the several facts alleged against him; but that the said two Sergeants and Corporals, having acted in some measure by order of their Captain, be discharged.

Ordered, That Sergeant Hathway, Sergeant Tripp, Corporal Sears, and Corporal Gray, of Captain Ford's company, be discharged from the custody of the guard.

In Committee of Safety for the State of New-York, }
Fishkill, January 1st, 1777. }

Ordered, That Captain Stewart, of Colonel Dubois's regiment, send a Corporal with a small guard to convey Captain Phineas Ford to Poughkeepsie Gaol, and safely deliver him to the Keeper of said Gaol.

---

By the Committee of Safety of the State of New-York, }
Fishkill, January the 1st, 1777. }

To the Keeper of the Common Gaol of DUTCHESS County:

Whereas it appears to the Committee of Safety, that Captain Phineas Ford is charged on oath with having feloniously plundered the goods and chattels of Talmon Pougsley, John Martin, and sundry other subjects of this State, in the County of Westchester, you are therefore hereby commanded to receive into your custody the body of the said Phineas Ford, and him safely keep in the Gaol aforesaid until he shall be thence delivered by due course of law.

By order of the Committee of Safety:

ABM. TEN BROECK, President.

MEMORIAL FROM DANIEL TUCKER.

To his Excellency Major-General PHILIP SCHUYLER, Esq., commanding the Troops of the UNITED STATES, Northern Department, &c., &c., &c.:

Your Excellency's memorialist begs leave to lay before you his grievances. My former services you are not unacquainted with. I being an inhabitant of Canada, living at St. John's, on the lands of Jno. Christie, when your Army came into Canada, was not only a very great sufferer in having my hay fields and household furniture destroyed, but was made prisoner by Major Preston, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment of British troops, and kept in confinement in the fort of St. John's eight weeks, till the happy surrender to General Montgomery. His former knowledge of me induced him to appoint me Assistant Quartermaster-General for the department of Montreal. The unfortunate necessity of retreating out of Canada, was ordered to proceed with the Army, obliged to leave all I was possessed of and retreat with my family to Ticonderoga, where General Gates had all his Staff Officers. Was then ordered to settle my accounts with the Commissioners for that purpose; have ever since waited impatiently to be called upon for service, but seeing no appearance of it my friends advised me to make this application. Must, therefore, beg your Excellency to provide for me, either staff or military, which will be acknowledged by your most obedient and very humble servant,

DAN'L TUCKER.

MAJOR MALMEDY TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

31st December, 1776.

Sir: You have done me the honour to give me the inspection in the distribution of the artillery. Permit me to propose my observations. I think it may be necessary that all the cannon be collected in a proper place, that's called a park of artillery: there the number may be known; the commanding officer may inspect them, their proof, and their carriages, and may discover at one view every thing that may be wanting, as they contain many necessaries. My advice is, that you desire the commanding officers of the artillery from Boston and Rhode-Island immediately this day seek some proper place near the back parts of this town, where a road may be open, or is made easy for the transporting the cannon. There should be there a house to place the guard. I should ask the liberty of those gentlemen to view the ground when it is chosen. There may be transported there, if you please, the pieces of artillery, and there on the wharves that belong to the shipping. Each proprietor may have his cannon marked. The commanding officer will give him a receipt for them. There they may be found whenever they are wanted. It is indispensably necessary, to prevent what may occasion confusion in the most pressing moments, and avoid the loss of those pieces. I presume the same precaution has been used respecting the sails of the shipping. You are sensible, sir, how valuable and scarce sail duck is in America.

I am, with respect, your most humble and most obedient servant,

Malmedy.

PASS FOR FELIX POWEL.

Guy Carleton, Captain-General and Commander-in-Chief of his Majesty's Province of Quebeck, &c., &c., &c., General and Commander-in-Chief of his Majesty's Forces in said Province and the frontiers thereof, &c., &c., &c.

To all concerned:

Permit the bearer hereof, Felix Powel, to pass from hence to Onion River, to his place of abode, and there to remain; it being intended that all persons remaining as peaceable subjects, in their proper places of residence, should be suffered to continue there without molestation or hindrance, they behaving as becometh.

Given under my hand, at Crown-Point, this 31st day of December, 1776.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO RHODE-ISLAND COMMITTEE.

Boston, December 31, 1776.

Gentlemen: From the present situation of our affairs to the southward we are left entirely at a loss what will be the object of, or whether the reinforcements lately sent from this State will meet with any general directions for their operations. Things are so circumstanced that we can't suppose they can either join General Washington or receive any orders from him; and our intelligence is so imperfect that we are not able to learn whether there are any Continental Generals left on this side New-York to command them. Under these circumstances, we have thought proper to forward to General Lincoln a letter, copy of which is here enclosed, with discretionary orders, grounded on intelligence we think we may rely on. You will perceive by the letter the substance of the intelligence received, and that which we suppose the design of the expedition to Rhode-Island was only a feint to keep back the reinforcements from these States. We conceive it possible to turn the tables upon them in our turn, and by attacking New-York or its environs, oblige them at least to recall some part of their forces for its defence. You will please to communicate this plan to the gentlemen assembled with you from the other States, that if it be approved of, they may adopt it with regard to their Militia. Whether a sufficient number of the British troops have returned from Rhode-Island to New-York, or any other circumstance has taken place to render this attempt either impracticable or too hazardous, you may be better able to judge than we are, but certainly no exertions should be wanting to retrieve the shattered situation of our affairs, and wipe off the disgrace of suffering twelve thousand troops to traverse the whole extent of one of the United States without interruption.

To the Hon'ble Thos. Cushing, Tristram Dalton, and Azor Orne, Esqs., Committee at Providence.

MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY TO GENERAL LINCOLN.

Boston, December 31st, 1776.

Sir: As the troops belonging to this State under your command are on their way to rendezvous at Danbury, in Connecticut, you will, perhaps, be at a loss how to direct your further motion; and as we have lately been informed that New-York is at present in a very defenceless state, by reason of such a large body of the British Army proceeding to the Delaware, and it has been suggested to us that an advantageous attack might be made on that city, whereby many of our suffering fellow-countrymen might be liberated from a wretched captivity, at least an attempt of that sort might make diversion in the rapid progress of General Howe's Army to Philadelphia, you will, sir, think it proper to turn your mind on this subject, and coöperate with Generals Spencer and Worcester, who are probably on this side the North River, in a matter of that importance; and as we have the greatest assurance of your disposition to exert yourself in the defence of your country, shall leave it to your good discernment to conduct as the exigency of the case may require.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO GENERAL LINCOLN.

Boston, December 31, 1776.

Sir: The Secret Committee of Congress, by their letter of the , having desired that the clothing purchased by this State for the Continental Army might be delivered to Mr. Abra. Livingston, if Mr. Livingston should think it necessary that it should be escorted through the States of New-York and the Jerseys, to prevent its falling into the hands of the enemy, you will please to furnish a sufficient escort for that purpose.

In the name and by order of the honourable the Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

John Avery, Dp'y Sec'y.

General Lincoln.

Boston, December 31, 1776.

Sir: Enclosed is a copy of the Council's letter to General Lincoln, which will inform you what they have ordered relative to an escort for the clothing intended for the Continental Army. If you judge an escort necessary, you will apply to him for one.

By order of the honourable the Council of Massachusetts State. From your most humble servant,

John Avery, Dp'y Sec'y.

Mr. Abra. Livingston.

P. S. Dec. 31, 1776.—Since the foregoing, Mr. Throop has received a letter from Machias, giving an account that a body of the enemy had relieved Fort Cumberland, dispersed those that had besieged it, and had burnt and destroyed the houses and property of the neighbouring inhabitants; the further particulars of which you will be informed of by a copy of the said letter enclosed.

PETITION OF PATIENCE CAPEN.

To the honourable the Council and honourable House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled:

The Petition of PATIENCE CAPEN, of BOSTON, humbly shews:

That her husband, Hopestill Capen, being charged as inimical to his country, on the sixth day of August last, was convened before the Court of Inquiry, and by them committed close prisoner in the common gaol in Boston, where he still remains. That although your petitioner's said husband signed certain obnoxious papers, in which he declares he acted from the principles of his religion and the dictates of conscience, by "submitting to the powers that be," yet he never had in his heart the least intention of taking up arms against his country, but, on the contrary, exerted himself, and was actually the means of securing and saving the property and interest to a very considerable value of several of the inhabitants of Boston, who removed out of town, and left their interest and property exposed to the ravage and plunder of our enemies. That by means of the long confinement of her said husband in the gaol, she and her children have suffered great distress.

Your humble petitioner would therefore implore your Honours so far to compassionate the melancholy and distressed situation and circumstances of her said husband, herself, and children, as to order him to be released from his confinement, that so your petitioner and her children may have the comfort and benefit of his assisting in obtaining a support for them.

And as in duty bound, she will pray, &c.,

PATIENCE CAPEN.

In Council, October 22, 1776.

Read and sent down: JOHN AVERY, Dp'y Sec'y.

In the House of Representatives, November 25, 1776.

Resolved, That the prayer of the within Petition be granted, and that he, the said Hopestill Capen, be liberated from the gaol in the town of Boston, said Hopestill recognizing before some Justice of the Peace for the County of Suffolk, with one or more sureties, in the sum of one hundred pounds, for his personal appearance before the Justices of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Suffolk at their next session, to answer such matters and things as may be exhibited against him in behalf of this State, and in the mean time to be of good behaviour towards all the good people of this State.

We, the subscribers, inhabitants of Boston, do hereby certify, that Mr. Hopestill Capen is well known to us, and we have esteemed him to be an honest and peaceable citizen; some of us in particular, have experienced his kind and faithful services in securing and saving our interest and property when we were out of the town; and we all join with the petitioner that he may be released from gaol and restored to his family.

The following was written with an expectation that I should have the liberty to lay the same before the Court of Inquiry, before whom I was impeached as an enemy to my country, and cast into prison in Boston, 6th August, 1776; but it has been said by some I was not rightly understood, and if opportunity be given me to open my simple meaning to the Court, and I am restored to my just right of liberty, cause of complaint will end; and if not, this will serve to inform all whom it may concern, the principles I acted upon; and if I am to be confined in prison for that I cannot in conscience do, it will be happy for me if I am indeed taught to suffer with patience.

To the Court of Inquiry.

MAY IT PLEASE THE COURT: Upon a deliberate review of what passed in my examination before the Court, I am greatly surprised that after the sober reasons I thought I had given the Court, in answer to the accusation brought against me, of aiding and abetting those called enemies to the Colonies, that I was so hastily ordered to close jail; and though I earnestly requested that I might be admitted to bail, it was utterly refused, though I could easily have got reputable inhabitants, men of property, who were not accused of being enemies to the Colonies, but hearty friends, that would have been bound in any sum for my peaceable behaviour during the time the Court should order; but lest the Court might have misunderstood me in my answers to them, I therefore think it most proper to commit my answers in writing, in hopes the Court will take the same into consideration, and liberate me from my present situation, which would be a very unhappy one if I was not conscious to myself that my present commitment arises, not from my having been guilty of the breaches of any law of my Maker or my country. And I am assured from the highest authority, Where there is no law there is no transgression; even from that Authority who spake all things into being, and who alone can give true peace to any conscience. And as this is a matter of conscience only with me, by which nothing but God's revealed word in the Scriptures are any sure guide, and as I understand them, I am bound in conscience to conduct. However, some do say the voice of the People is the voice of God; in this I must dissent from them, let it offend who it will, because we are assured in the Scriptures, that the voice of great multitudes, with their boldest assertions, have in the end proved to be altogether false, and no other than the delusions of the grand Apostate, the God of this world; while the sayings of those who were few in number, and were looked on by the great and wise men of this world to be foolish, poor, ignorant, base, and some of them were called petulant fellows—a set that was every where spoken against, turning the world upside down, &c.; but in the end was found to be, that they were taught by the God of Heaven, who speaketh in the Scriptures, of whom it is testified in 40th chapter Isaiah, 15th, and onward: Behold the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance. All nations are before Him as nothing, and they are counted to Him less than nothing and vanity. It is He that sitteth upon the circle of the Heavens, and the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers, &c. And for this reason I am warranted to hear the God who speaketh in Scriptures, before the voice of the people, however foolish I may appear to the great and wise men of this enlightened age of the world; being assured that by the Scriptures I shall be judged on the other side of the grave, and by them I am commanded not to fear them that can kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do; but to fear Him who is able to cast both soul and body into hell. Yea, I say unto you, fear Him, is the command of the God who speaks in the Scriptures. But as to the charge of my being an enemy to my country, no accusation can be more unjust; for I think every person acquainted with me can testify to the strong attachment and love I have to my country, and should choose to live in it if I could without being persecuted for that which in my conscience I cannot do. But as to the base, unkind, diabolical interpretations of some, that I only wait to see which will be the strongest side, and then join that, the simplicity of the Scriptures, which my conscience is bound to attend to, forbids my acting in any such crafty, deceitful way. For I do not think, if I was to take up arms against the King, whom I twice solemnly swore to be faithful to, (I mean when I took commissions in the Militia under former Governours.) and thereby perjure myself, and after that be taken by the King's Army, that I should have more to fear, if so much, as I now have to fear, in dissenting from some of my countrymen. But I soberly testify that I am not seeking to carry any thing in favour of my own opinion, or any thing or party whatever; but that I fear what will take place on the other side of the grave. But if I am left to my own natural choice, I shall fully join in any thing to shun the cross, which ever was and ever will be connected with the simple attention to the Scriptures, without hearing to the private interpretations of the best skilled in making themselves popular by their interpretations, even those that come the nearest to the grand Deceiver of mankind, in their bold assertions that God hath not said it.

But had I not been checked by the command of God in the Scriptures to the disciples of Christ, Be subject to the higher powers, for there is no power but of God; the powers that be are ordained of God, and he that resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God and shall receive to himself judgment, &c., (and many other passages of Scripture similar to this are binding on my conscience,) I should have been one of the foremost in opposing the measures of the British Parliament. But I do not mean by this to bring an accusation against my own countrymen, nor have I a stone to cast at any one; neither do I say that my countrymen are obliged, nor could be by any human power or authority, to take the same view of such passages of Scripture, as my conscience obliges me to; neither do I think myself in any ways bound in conscience to become an informer against my country, nor any individuals in it, but to act a contrary part, and to be subject to all the laws that are made that are not contrary to the laws of my Maker. And it never was known that any of those that was really governed by the plain, simple Scriptures, that they were bad members of society. They are no busybodies in other men's matters, nor will they be stirring up the people, nor be dangerous persons to go at large. And no States have any just reason to fear any hurt from those few, poor, foolish, low-spirited mortals, for they are so foolish as never to expect any thing great will be their lot in this world, whatever revolutions may take place; but they are assured, whatever may be the lot of others by revolutions, they are to be the undermost of all, and to be counted the filth and offscouring of all things in this world; and their only hope is to be at the time when the grand revolution will take place, when He who was crucified in weakness, who has testified that He will come again in the clouds of Heaven, and every eye shall see Him, &c.

But concerning the present state of matters; whenever it shall appear to my conscience that a change of Government has taken place, and is so established that the power is of God, I shall know myself to be as tenaciously bound to adhere to God's law, respecting being subject to that power, and to do what I can for its support with cheerfulness; and how near such a change is I cannot tell, or if it will ever be, time alone will bring forth. But if the Court wants to know if I will sign such a declaration for them as signed for the King, I answer, I will with cheerfulness, when it shall appear to my conscience that the power is of God. In this I mean to give my simple meaning without evasion; and so I did before, not expecting the frown of the Court for dealing in the simplicity of my conscience, and by that cast into prison. But by some it is said that I chose to go to prison, which is utterly false; but this I say: it is much better to be in prison, if enlargement is not to be obtained on no other conditions than making shipwreck of a good conscience. But I hope the Court will see that no good can come in the end from putting me in prison, and thereby keep me from supporting myself and family, and the discharging my just debts, which, in my view, is wicked and unreasonable; and all that know the true state of this matter, will give a true verdict, however I may be dealt with, for I know I am in the power of the Court. But the Scriptures countenance me in speaking with plainness; but surely a prison never made any one that was taught to fear the God who speaketh in the Scriptures, to depart from that which he could not with a good conscience; but, like the true gold, lose nothing by being tried in the fire. But I have the greatest reason to fear that in the end I shall prove reprobate silver; but I know not on what principle of equity any court under Heaven can keep me in prison. But if my understanding the Scriptures in a different view from any of my countrymen, make any of my countrymen enemies to me, I am forbidden by the Scriptures to be an enemy to any one of them, but am commanded to pray for them that hate, despitefully use, and persecute me, and pray for my country, and seek its peace and good, which I am bound in conscience to do.

I am, with due submission, gentlemen, your humble servant,

HOPESTILL CAPEN.

Boston Gaol, August 29, 1776.

Boston Prison, 30th December, 1776.

SIR: It is now one hundred and forty-seven days since you, with John Hill, Joseph Gardner, and Samuel Pemberton, Esqrs., accused and judged me unfit to go at large, for no other cause whatever than my plainly and simply pleading conscience in obeying the plain Scripture commands; and for that only, you, with the other three of my accusers, committed me to close prison in a felon's room, there to be kept until delivered by a due course of law. Can any one with truth say this is not unjust, and against the law of the God of Heaven, who speaketh in the Scriptures? Is there any law that forbids any man's obeying the plain commands of the great Lawgiver, who is the Maker and Judge of all men? If any such law there be, them that made it, and all that obey it, and attempt to execute it on any man against his conscience, will act wisely the whole of the second Psalm, of which I mention the third and fourth verses only: "Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us. He that sitteth in the Heavens shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision," &c. Pray what do you mean by a due course of law? Do you mean that I shall be tortured, by being kept in prison, until that I will, contrary to a plain Scripture command, and the verdict of my conscience, knowingly break the commands of my Maker? If I have the fear of God before my eyes, I shall not dare to do it; neither to do any thing that will import that I have done wrong in obeying the Scriptures. If I should do any such thing for the sake of obtaining my present enlargement, and say that what you have done is right, and if all the inhabitants of the Globe was to join with me, they would not make it right. Prov. xi., 21: "Though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not be unpunished;" and I have far more to fear from Him who hath "power to cast both soul and body" into the prison of hell, than I have to fear from your power.

But I shall be very glad of my just liberty; and I beg that you will not persecute me any longer for that I cannot in conscience do. Can you, on a cool reflection, take any pleasure in such tyranny, while you profess to be the supporters of liberty? What liberty is dear as the liberty of conscience? And I again beg of you to release me from such cruel oppression.

I am, with due respect, HOPESTILL CAPEN.

P. S. Surely injustice continued will not atone for past wrongs; and I most heartily entreat you not to keep me away any longer from my just and lawful liberty.

Mr. Jos. Greenleaf.

Boston, December 31, 1776.

SIR: I think it my duty to lay before the honourable House three papers, one directed to the High Sheriff, one to the Keeper of the Gaol, Mr. Otis, and the other to myself; all of them signed by Hopestill Capen. I must beg the protection of the Court from the insults of Mr. Capen, who stands committed for signing an association to join the enemies of his country whenever called upon, and other crimes. Mr. Capen insults the State, by denying their jurisdiction. He disowns me as a Magistrate, because appointed by the present Administration, while he owns the jurisdiction of the other members of the Court of Inquiry, because appointed by the King's Governour, and (as he apprehends) derive their authority from thence.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

J. GREENLEAF.

To the Hon. James Warren, Esq., Speaker of the honourable House of Representatives, Massachusetts State.

---

HENRY STEVENSON TO HUGH ORR.

Taunton, December 31, 1776.

SIR: As there was no pig-iron to be purchased at Philadelphia, I was advised by the honourable Delegates to proceed as far as Baltimore, and had a letter of credit from them to Messrs. Samuel and Rob't Purviance. I purchased two hundred tons from Charles Ridgely, Esq.'s, works, which pig-iron is the most approved of any in that State, at ten pounds per ton, Maryland currency, and drew an order on the honourable Delegates for the amount, leaving the pig-iron in the care of Messrs. Purviances, to be shipped, as opportunity offered, to any of the ports in the State of Massachusetts-Bay or the State of Rhode-Island, giving the preference to such vessels as might be bound to Newport, Providence, or Dartmouth; the quantity to be shipped on board any one vessel not to exceed twenty-five or thirty tons, consigned to you, on the proper account and risk of this State, to whom I desired they would direct their letters, and forward to you by the Boston post. I doubt whether they will be able to ship any, there being no vessel intending for New-England at that time; and it was the opinion of E. Gerry, Esq., that it would be best to send armed vessels from this State to receive it.

Your humble servant, HENRY STEVENSON.

Flour from 14*s.* to 15*s.*, Maryland currency; Loaf Sugar 5*s.*; Bar Iron £45.

To Hugh Orr, Esq., Bridgewater.

WILLIAM PYNCHON, JUN., TO RICHARD DEVENS.

SIR: Pursuant to a letter received from Sam'l Phillips Savage, Esq., wherein was enclosed the orders of the General Court to me, to transmit two hundred barrels of flour to you, which orders I am endeavouring to comply with; and by Mr. Asa Whitemore I send to you five barrels, which I have agreed with him to transport to you for nine pounds per ton; which sum I hope you, upon receipt of the same, will pay to him, as I have not a sufficiency of money belonging to the Province in my hands to defray the same. Shall endeavour, as fast as possible, to complete the number which the Board of War have ordered to be remitted to you.

I am, sir, with respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

WM. PYNCHON, Jun.

N. B. The casks are branded with T. Edw'ds & Stockbridge, and No. 27. 16. 182:: 164: 144.

To Richard Devens, Esq., Boston.

PROCEEDINGS OF NAVY BOARD OF SOUTH-CAROLINA.

Navy Board, Friday, 1st November, 1776.

The Board met according to adjournment.

Present: Edward Blake, Esquire, First Commissioner, Thomas Corbett, Geo. Abbott Hall, Roger Smith, Esqs.

Read the Minutes of last meeting.

Agreed that application be made to the President for eight hundred bushels of Salt, to be delivered to the Commissioners of the Navy for salting Provisions for the use of the Navy.

Agreed that the First Commissioner write to James Black, Stone & Russell, Paul Pritchard, and Clement Lempriere, to know on what terms they will undertake to build the Row-Galleys, by what time they will have them finished, and what quantity of iron will be requisite for each Galley.

Adjourned to-morrow evening, six o'clock.

Navy Board, Saturday, 2 November, 1776.

The Board met according to adjournment.

Present: Edward Blake, Esquire, First Commissioner, Geo. Abbott Hall, Thomas Corbett, Roger Smith, Esqs.

Read the Minutes of last meeting.

A Letter was wrote to Clement Lempriere, Esq.:

"South-Carolina, November 1, 1776.

"Sir: The Commissioners of the Navy having been informed that you have engaged with his Excellency the President to build a row-galley for this State, they desire that you will as soon as possible acquaint them by letter on what terms you are to build the said galley, the particular dimension, when she is to be finished, and what quantity of iron will be wanted to complete her.

"I am, sir, your most humble servant,

"Edward Blake, First Commissioner."

Copies of the above Letter were sent to Paul Pritchard, James Black, and Stone & Russel.

Received the following Order from the President:

"The Commissioners for buying Salt for the publick to dispose of eight hundred bushels thereof to the Commissioners of the Navy.

"J. Rutledge.

"2 November, 1776."

A Letter was received from his Excellency the President:

"Gentlemen: I desire that you will be pleased to ship a thousand pounds sterling worth of indigo on board the Defence, and order Captain Pickering to proceed to Cape François, there to dispose of, and with the proceeds to procure for our service as many good seamen as the vessel can bring, arms, sail-duck, and such other articles as you think useful for the State; and if Mr. Provaux, whom he may probably meet there, has obtained any heavy cannon for us, to bring two pieces of it if he can conveniently. You will also order him to sweep to the southward both going and coming, wind permitting.

"Be pleased to have the verbal contracts which I made with Lempriere, Black & Pritchard, for building row-galleys, reduced into writing, and executed, and lay in spars, yards, oakum, iron, and such other articles as you think necessary for the vessels belonging to this State and for those row-galleys.

"I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

"J. Rutledge.

"Charles-Town, October 31, 1776.

"The Commissioners of the Navy."

The following Letter, containing Orders for Captain Pickering, was reported to the Board by Mr. Hall. The same being read, was agreed to:

"Navy Board, Charlestown, 2 November, 1776.

"Captain Thomas Pickering:

"Your commission as Captain of the brigantine-of-war Defence will be delivered to you with this, together with commissions and warrants for your Lieutenants and other officers, which you will have read to your ship's company, that they may know who to obey in their different stations; then deliver them to each officer respectively, before you proceed to sea.

"You will also receive from the Clerk of this Board the following papers of rules and discipline and good government to be observed on board the vessels of war belonging to State of South-Carolina, which you will cause to be frequently read to your ship's company: Instructions for the Captain or Commander of any of the vessels belonging to the State; instructions for the Lieutenants; instructions for the Master; instructions for the Purser; instructions for the Carpenter; directions for the Gunner and Armourer; directions for the Boatswain and Sailmaker: which you will deliver to the different officers, after making your clerk enter them in a book for that purpose.

"The Defence having her guns, ammunition, stores, and provisions on board, and being every way equipped for a cruise, you are hereby directed to embrace the first favourable opportunity of proceeding to sea; and after you are over the bar, steer along the coast until you arrive off St. Augustine, keeping a good look-out for a sloop commanded by one Osborne, which has been fitted out from thence, and is said to be cruising upon this coast, which you are to use every possible means to take. After you have been off St. Augustine, you are to proceed to Cape François, in Hispaniola, where there is the greatest reason to think that you may procure seamen, which is in the most particular manner recommended to you, and that you use every endeavour to ship as many as your vessel can conveniently bring; for which purpose there is put on board the Defence sixteen casks of indigo, amounting to £7,032 10*s.*, currency, which, upon your arrival, you will put into the hands of Mr. Duraseau, or the most capital merchant there, to sell for cash, that you may be enabled to pay the bounty to the seamen you may ship, and purchase such provisions and necessaries as you may want; after which you are to procure a quantity of stores necessary for the Navy; that is, such as cannot be procured here, for instance, canvas, twine, quadrants, paint, oil, compasses, sand-glasses, slops for seamen, six and four pound shot and grape shot. The remainder of the money to be invested in good muskets with bayonets, which you are carefully to examine, as some, which are not proof, have been sent out to the French West-Indies. You will bring with you proper accounts of the sale of indigo and vouchers for the moneys laid out. If you should meet Mr. Provaux at Cape François, and he has purchased any heavy cannon for the use of this State, you are to take two of them in the Defence's hold, and shot for them, if it can be done without any detriment or disadvantage to the vessel.

"In case of your death the command is to devolve to your First Lieutenant, and should he fall, the Second Lieutenant succeeds, and so in rotation.

"You have liberty to cruise for three months from the time of your sailing, during which you are to sink, burn, take, or destroy, any ship or vessel belonging to the King of Great Britain, or the subjects of Great Britain, Ireland, the British West-India Islands, East and West-Florida, Halifax, Quebec, or Newfoundland; observing, that any prizes which you may take, a careful good officer is to be put on board as prize-master, together with a sufficient number of men to navigate them to Charlestown, or any convenient inlet in the State of South-Carolina, where all your prizes are to be sent. Should it happen you are fortunate enough to take a prize or prizes early in your cruise, near the Islands, it is recommended to you to send her forward, and go into any French or Dutch port that may be most convenient, and supply your vessel with more men, continuing your cruise till the time limited, unless you think it necessary to convoy any prize you may take to the coast, in which case it is left to your own discretion, so that you don't exceed the limit of your cruise, allowing for usual passage from your cruising ground, which is left to yourself to choose, and to return by the way of St. Augustine, and scour the coast from thence to this port. You are to treat any prisoners you may take with the greatest humanity and tenderness, and upon no consideration suffer the honour of the American arms to be stained by any act of cruelty or inhumanity. If any seamen that you take are inclined to enter into the service, give them the bounty, and allow them the same wages as your other men receive from the time they sign the attestation.

"You are to take every opportunity that may offer to advise the Commissioners of the Navy where you are, and of every transaction that may happen worth communicating to them. Your letters are to be directed to Edward Blake, Esq., First Commissioner of the Navy Board, Charlestown, South-Carolina."

Adjourned to meet Monday evening, six o'clock.

Navy Board, Monday, 4th November, 1776.

The Board met according to adjournment.

Present: Edward Blake, Esquire, First Commissioner, George Smith, Josiah Smith, Geo. Abbott Hall, Thomas Corbett, Esqs.

Read the Minutes of the last Board.

The Board agreed to take from Mr. Robert Gibbes fifty barrels of Beef, well cured, at £14 per barrel, and to be delivered in good tight barrels, in Charlestown, allowing him one bushel of salt for each barrel.

The following Letter was wrote to Captain Pickering:

"Navy Board, Charlestown, South-Carolina, 4 November, 1776.

"Captain Thomas Pickering:

"The Commissioners of the Navy having received intelligence that a ship and sloop, belonging to the subjects of Great Britain, are loading at St. Mary's river, which is guarded by two small vessels from St. Augustine, you are without delay to proceed off the port of Sunbury, in Georgia, where, if no pilot-boat should be off, and the weather will permit, send your boat on shore with an officer to the Committee there, to get a pilot acquainted with St. Mary's river, and immediately proceed to the said river, where you will endeavour to take or destroy the cruisers, and bring off the vessels loading, provided they belong to the subjects of Great Britain, Ireland, &c.; in doing which it is apprehended you will meet with no difficulty."

The following Letter was wrote to the Committee of Sunbury:

"To the Committee of SUNBURY:

"GENTLEMEN: Having received intelligence that two vessels are loading at St. Mary's, covered by two small armed vessels, the Commissioners of the Navy have given directions to Captain Pickering, of the vessel of war Defence, to call off your port and require your assistance to obtain a pilot for St. Mary's river, which they will be glad that you will procure for him, as speedily as possible, and render him any other service which he may require; after which he has direction to proceed to St. Mary's river, in quest of the cruisers and vessels loading.

"By order of the Navy Board.

"EDWARD BLAKE, First Commissioner."

Ordered, That the Pilot-Boat Hibernia be this day discharged from the publick service.

Adjourned to to-morrow evening, six o'clock.

Navy Board, Tuesday, 5 November, 1776.

The Board met according to adjournment.

Present: Edward Blake, First Commissioner, George Smith, Josiah Smith, George Abbot Hall, Thomas Corbett, Esq'rs.

Read the Minutes of the last meeting.

It having appeared to the Board that the present publick Boat-Keeper, Alexander Horn, has not done the duty required of him, in having the Boats repaired and removed to the place appointed for them within the flood-gate, he is ordered to attend the Board at their next meeting, to answer for his neglect.

Ordered, That the First Commissioner do draw the three following Orders on the Commissioners of the Treasury, for sixteen casks of Indico, shipped on board the Brigantine of War Defence, viz.:

32. No. 3. One Order, in favour of Thomas Corbett, for amount of four casks of Indico, - - - £1,790 17 6
32. No. 4. One do., in favour of Edward and John Blake, for amount of five casks of Indico, - - - - - - - - - - £2,438 17 6
32. No. 5. One do., in favour of William Parker, for amount of seven casks of Indico, - - - - - - - - - - £2,802 15 0

£7,032 10 0

Adjourned to next Thursday evening, six o'clock.

Navy Board, Thursday, 7th November, 1776.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Edward Blake, Esquire, First Commissioner, Thomas Corbett, George Abbott Hall, Josiah Smith, Esq'rs.

Read the Minutes of last meeting.

Alexander Horn having attended the Board, was reprimanded, and engaged that all the publick Boats under his care should be in good order in ten days.

Resolved, That the Guns and Stores be removed from on board the Pilot-Boat the Hibernia, and that Captain Edward Darrell do cause the same to be removed.

The following Letter was received from Mr. Thomas Wade, directed to Edward Blake, Charlestown:

"Georgetown, 29 October, 1776.

"SIR: As by the advertisements signed by your name, I understand you are one of the Commissioners to contract for pork and beef for the publick and Navy of the Province, and as I have for sale a quantity of that article, should gladly supply you with any quantity of pork, under four or five hundred barrels; but if you engage to do it, you must supply me with half a bushel of salt to secure each barrel; and any engagement that may be made by the bearer, Mr. John Packrow, of Georgetown, I will abide by and comply with; and your letter of the price you and he may agree on will oblige your humble servant,

"THOMAS WADE."

The following Letter was received from his Excellency the President:

"November 7, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: I have received intelligence that two armed vessels from St. Augustine infest the southern part of Georgia, and will probably come on this coast. A detachment from the Second Regiment is therefore ordered on board of the brigantine Comet. You will be pleased to give Captain Allen orders to proceed with them in her, with the utmost despatch, on a cruise for a fortnight, scouring the coast from this port to St. Augustine; and in so doing, acting in conjunction with the Defence, if they should meet.

"Your most obedient servant, "J. RUTLEDGE.

"The Commissioners of the Navy of South-Carolina."

The following Instructions were sent to Captain Allen:

"Navy Board, Charlestown, 7 November, 1776.

"Captain EDWARD ALLEN:

"The Comet, brigantine of war, whereof you are commissioned as Captain, being now ready for sea, you will receive a commission for your Second Lieutenant, and warrants for the other officers, which are to be read to your ship's company, that each officer may be properly obeyed. You will also receive rules of discipline and good government to be observed in the Navy of this State; instructions for the Captain, Lieutenants, the Master, the Purser, and the Carpenter; also directions for the Gunner and Armourer, Boatswain and Sailmaker; which you are to have entered in a book for that purpose, and then delivered to each officer respectively.

"You are to embrace the very first opportunity to proceed to sea; and as your vessel is not completely manned, a detachment of a Lieutenant, Sergeant, two Corporals, and twenty-eight privates, of the Second Regiment, are under orders to go on board your vessel, who you are to send boats for early to-morrow morning; and by all means during your cruise, keep up the strictest harmony, both by yourself, officers and men, with the officers and men of the land service, that the general good may not suffer by private animosity or quarrels, and they are to be allowed in every respect the same rations as your seamen receive.

"Immediately as you get over the bar, proceed with the greatest despatch to the southward, and endeavour to fall in near , where, if the weather will permit, and no boat should be off, send your own boat on shore to inquire for Captain Pickering, of the Defence, who you will by all means endeavour to join, and show him the orders now given to you, which are, that, under his command, you are to act in conjunction, and endeavour to fall in with, and take or destroy two small armed vessels belonging to the King or subjects of Great Britain, which are said to be cruising on the southward part of the coast; also any merchantmen that you may fall in with belonging to Great Britain, Ireland, the British West Indies, East and West Florida, Halifax, Quebec, or Newfoundland. Your cruise is to be continued for a fortnight or three weeks, between St. Augustine and this port, during which should you be fortunate enough to take any prizes, you are to man and send them on to this port or any convenient inlet in this State; and to use your prisoners with the greatest humanity and tenderness, that no reflection may be cast on the honour of the American arms through your means.

"If any opportunity should offer, advise the Commissioners of the Navy any transactions worth communicating, directed to Edward Blake, Esq., First Commissioner of the Navy.

"Upon your return you are to send your boat on shore at Sullivan's Island, that the officer there may examine whether you have the small-pox or any infectious distemper on board, in which case your vessel must perform quarantine.

"By order of the Board.

"EDWARD BLAKE, First Commissioner."

In consequence of Captain Thomas Wade's Letter, Mr. John Packrow agreed to supply the Board with Pork at £18 per barrel, which was refused.

Adjourned to next Monday evening, six o'clock.

Navy Board, Monday, 11 November, 1776.

The Board met according to adjournment.

Present: Edward Blake, Esquire, First Commissioner, George Abbot Hall, George Smith, Josiah Smith, Esqs.

Read the Minutes of last meeting.

Received a Note from Mr. Charles Burkmeyer to contract for thirty barrels of Beef, at £16 per barrel. Rejected.

Agreed to furnish Mr. William Hest with two hundred bushels of Salt, to enable him to procure Hemp from the back country for the use of the Navy.

Received a Letter from Captain Thomas Pickering:

"Off Sunbury, Thursday noon.

"SIR: We left Charlestown Bar yesterday, about ten o'clock, and having a fine breeze, stood along shore all night, and this morning fell in with a sloop. After giving chase all day, we came up with her about two o'clock. She proved to be a French sloop, from the Cape, bound for Charlestown, Mr. Aberdie Master. He is the gentleman who delivers you this. I received several articles from him before we parted. As he complained of being a stranger to the place and people, I have taken the liberty to give him these few lines to you. Any services you can render him will infinitely oblige me. The wind at present is small, and off the land. Am much afraid we shall be puzzled to make Sunbury; however, shall do my endeavours to discharge the trust reposed in me. The people upon deck call out 'A sail!' and as we are preparing to give chase, I must conclude.

"I remain, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

"THOMAS PICKERING.

"Mr. Blake."

Adjourned to next Thursday evening, six o'clock.

Navy Board, Thursday, 14th November, 1776.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Edward Blake, Esquire, First Commissioner, Thomas Corbett, Josiah Smith, Geo. Abbott Hall, Esqs.

Read the Minutes of the last meeting.

Received a Letter from Zechariah Nettles, offering to contract for one hundred and sixty barrels of Pork, at £15 per barrel; which was agreed to.

A Letter was also received from Jacob Willaman, offering to supply two hundred barrels Beef, and the same quantity of Pork. Rejected.

The Pilot-Boat Hibernia, being out of repair, and at the request of the proprietors, discharged the service.

The Board are of opinion that there is an absolute necessity for two Pilot-Boats to attend the Bar, as they find that one Boat is not adequate to the service, being frequently obliged to be cleaned:

Therefore Resolved, That application be made to the President, acquainting him of the necessity of having two Boats constantly to attend the Bar and Harbour of Charlestown, and that he will be pleased to give directions for the purchasing, building, or hiring another Boat for that purpose.

Agreed, That the First Commissioner do wait on the President, to inform him of the above Resolution.

Mr. Alexander Horn having represented to this Board that the multiplicity of business he is engaged in prevents his paying due attention to the publick Boats committed to his care; he therefore requests the Board will accept his resignation.

The Board accordingly accepted the resignation of Mr. Horn.

Resolved, That Mr. McCully Righton be appointed publick Boat-keeper.

The following Letter was wrote to Mr. Alexander Horn:

"SIR: You are desired by the Commissioners of the Navy to deliver to Mr. McCully Righton all the boats belonging to the publick of South-Carolina in your charge, together with the oars, rudders, &c., and as soon as possible bring in your account to the Commissioners.

"EDWARD BLAKE.

"November 25, 1776."

The following Letter was wrote to Mr. McCully Righton:

"Sir: The Commissioners of the Navy have appointed you Boat-keeper, in the room of Mr. Alexander Horn, and desire that you will have all the publick boats put in good repair, and provided with good oars, rudders, and tillers, as soon as possible. Also, to have the flood-gate cleared of stones, &c., and all the boats removed and kept within the flood-gate.

"Edward Blake, First Commissioner.

"November 25, 1776."

Resolved, That Mr. Righton be allowed thirty shillings per day as Boat-keeper.

The following Letter was wrote to Clement Lempriere, Esquire:

"Sir: The Board of Commissioners accept your proposal for the building of a row-galley, viz: to pay you three pounds ten shillings sterling per ton; the measurement to be the length multiplied by the breadth and half breadth; and request you finish the same with all possible despatch.

MINUTES OF THE COMMITTEE APPOINTED BY NEW-YORK CONVENTION, FOR INQUIRING INTO, DETECTING AND DEFEATING ALL CONSPIRACIES, &c.

Wednesday, 11th December, 1776.

The Committee met at Connor's Tavern.

Present: Mr. De Witt, Gou. Morris, Mr. Jay.

Mr. Duer being absent, Mr. Jay was chosen Chairman of this Committee.

Mr. Jay communicated to the Committee a Letter from Colonel Huntington to this Committee, informing them that he had sent several Prisoners, whose names and crimes were specified in a paper enclosed; which is as follows:

Wm. and Jon'n Underhill, confined by General Sullivan, for not signing the Association, and swearing allegiance to his Britannick Majesty.

John Beger and John Acker, General Lee, on suspicion of corresponding with the enemy.

Ms. Valentine, - - - Gen. Lee; an active Tory.

Pebody Stanmore, - -

Jacob Jewel, - - - - Gen. Lee; an active Tory.

Samuel Miller, John Prior, James McCord, Elisha Merrit, } Gen. Lee; } suspected of aiding the enemy.

A Letter was received of the 11th instant, from Joh's Hardenbergh, Jr., in favour of Jos. Montgomery, one of the Prisoners.

Petrus Rosen, the Officer of the Guard, informs the Committee that Pebody Stanmore and John Davis, two of the Prisoners, are very sick.

Ordered, That Doct. Graham be requested to examine them, and report their condition to the Committee.

Gou. Morris informs the Committee that he had permitted Ms. Valentine and Underhill to go at large on their parole, to appear every day; and that the others are in the Guard-House, except some who had escaped.

Charles Haight, Jr., of North-Castle, being examined on oath, saith that he was sent here by the Committee of Bedford. That about two months ago he was enticed by Caleb Fowler, Jun., to go with him to Long-Island, the said Fowler telling him that if he staid, he would be taken up. That they went together to Byram; that they communicated their design to Stephen Lyon, son of John Lyon, at that place. That the said Lyon's negroes carried them over to Musqueto Cove, from whence he again came over to Mamaroneck, at the time the enemy were there. That Fowler went to the enemy on Long-Island. That on their way to Byram, they staid a night at Jonathan Miller's, in King Street, and the next night at James Brundige's, who both entertained them, and knew where they were going. That Stephen Lyon looked out for a canoe for them. That he saw Rogers's Rangers at Mamaroneck; that William Underhill, Jr., of Cortlund Manor, was a Captain among them, and had brought several men with him, as he understood among them; and that Underhill told him he was going home. That he also saw among them Samuel Kip, of North-Castle, who told the examinant that he was a Lieutenant, and was going home also.

CHARLES HAIGHT.

Sworn 11 December, 1776. JOHN JAY.

Ordered, That Captain Townsend forthwith apprehend and bring before this Committee Stephen Lyon, Jona. Miller, James Brundige, William Underhill, Jr., and Samuel Kip.

Whereas the said Charles Haight, Jr., has offered to assist Captain Townsend in apprehending the said persons:

Ordered, That he be the bearer of a Letter for that purpose to Captain Townsend, and return with him to this Committee.

The Rev. Dr. Graham reports that he has examined John Davis and Pebody Stanmore, agreeable to the order of this Court; that the former is ill of a pox, and may with safety remain where he is. That the latter has a fever, and ought to be removed.

Ordered, That the Rev. Dr. Graham be requested to see John Davis removed to the Hospital, and attend them both.

Connor's Tavern, at Fish-Kill, 13 December, 1776.

The Committee met: Present, Mr. Jay, Chairman, Mr. De Witt, Mr. Duer, Gou. Morris.

Mr. Jay informs the Committee that he last evening released Anthony Alair, one of the prisoners, from the custody of the Guard, on his brother Peter Alair's becoming surety for his appearance.

Mr. Duer communicated to the Committee a Letter from Egbert Benson, Esq., of the 11th instant, enclosing Papers containing information against and concerning sundry persons.

Also, a Letter from Maurice Pleas, respecting Charles Vincent, who had escaped from Exeter, of the 9th instant, 1776.

Also, a Letter from Colonel Ms. Thomas, of the 11th December, enclosing a Letter from General Wadsworth to General Spencer, relative to a number of Tories he had apprehended by order of General Lee.

The Prisoners referred to by General Wadsworth are: Caleb Archer, Isaac Lawrence, Paul Graham, Joshua Odell, Samuel Dean, Benjamin Booth, Elbert Arson, Thomas Ellis, Amos Le Forgue, John Dickson, Peter Dobbs, Henry Fowler, Isaac Tomkins, Edward Odell, Henry Le Forgue, John Shute, James Tomkins, John McCord, Edward Drake, John Vermilyea, Anthony Alair, Isaac Arsen, William Paterson, Benjamin Vermilyea.

General Morris informs the Committee that Israel Honeywell and John Youngs, two of the Committee of West-Chester County, told him all the above-named persons were notoriously disaffected to the American cause, and, in their opinion, ought to be removed to one of the neighbouring States.

Mr. Duer also communicated to the Committee a Certificate of John Baker, a Sergeant in the Fourth Regiment, certifying certain matters against Wm. Underhill; at the foot of which Certificate is another of Colonel Nixon, of the character of Baker.

A Letter from Isaac Everit, Chairman of the Committee of Fredericksburgh, of the 10th December, 1776, respecting Stephen Booth, sent prisoner to the Committee, was read.

Mr. Duer also communicated to the Committee a Letter from Leonard Gansevoort, Esq., of 21st November last, respecting Henry Cuyler, Major Edmunston, and Lieutenant Hugh Frazier, three half-pay Officers, and disaffected to the American cause.

Mr. Duer informed the Committee that the Mayor of Albany, who had been committed to the custody of Lieutenant Schoonmaker, had escaped, and that he had put the Lieutenant under arrest.

Whereas Henry Cuyler, Major Edmunston, and Lieutenant Hugh Frazier, are Officers on half-pay in the service of the King of Great Britain; and whereas this Committee are well informed that the said gentlemen are notoriously disaffected to the American cause:

Resolved, That they be forthwith removed to the town of Boston, and remain there at their own expense, on the parole directed for Prisoners of War; and that the Committee of Albany be requested to execute this Resolution.

Mr. Duer again attending the Committee, and having completed the business for which he left it, Mr. Jay resigned the Chair, and Mr. Duer was again unanimously appointed Chairman to the Committee.

P. M.—Present: William Duer, Esq., Chairman, General Morris.

Connor's Tavern, Fish-Kill, December 15th, 1776.

Present: William Duer, Chairman.

Captain Silas Purdy brought in Humphrey Merril, Elisha Purdy, and Lodwick Millar, three Tories from the Precinct of New-Marlborough, who had been privy to a treasonable conspiracy, formed by James Robinson, Jacob Russell, and others, against the liberties of the United States.

Ordered, That Captain Purdy deliver these persons to the Officer of the Guard, who is hereby ordered to keep them in safe custody till further orders from the Committee.

Henry Brandt and John Niles were discharged on taking the oath of allegiance to the State.

Colonel Drake applied for leave to take Isaac Tomkins, his wife's brother, to his own home, and promised to return him on Wednesday next.

Ordered, That the Officer of the Guard deliver Isaac Tomkins to Colonel Drake.

Connor's Tavern, Fish-Kill, December 16, 1776.

Present: Mr. Duer, Chairman, Mr. Jay, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel De Witt.

A Letter from Joshua Draper, one of the Committee of Spencer, in the State of Massachusetts-Bay, in favour of Ralph Phillips, one of the persons who was sent by this Committee to that place, was laid before the Convention, and referred to this Committee.

The Rev. Mr. Rysdorp appeared before the Convention, and informed them that the said Ralph Phillips was a person of good moral character, and very useful to the community. With respect to his political character he does not pretend to determine.

A Letter from Lawrence Fonda, Chairman of the Committee of Claverack, enclosing several Affidavits against divers disaffected persons, was read, and is in the words following: (Pro ut.)

Ordered, That the Committee of Claverack be requested to remove George Clapper, Frederick Clapper, Petrus Clapper, and Jacob Anderson, who are charged with treasonable practices against this State, to the Jail at Poughkeepsie; and that they inform the Jail Keeper of said Jail which of the said persons are able to maintain themselves, and that if any of them should be unable, that in such case the Keeper of the said Jail afford them reasonable subsistence at the expense of this Committee.

Ordered, That the Keeper of the said Jail receive the above-mentioned persons, and them safely keep till further orders from this Committee, the Convention, or future Legislature of this State.

Resolved, That the Committee of Claverack District be informed that it is the intention of this Committee to apply to the Convention of this State to enact an ordinance for establishing a general Oath of Allegiance, to be administered to all the subjects of this State; a copy of which will be transmitted to them as soon as possible.

Ordered, That the expense of the Express from the Committee of Claverack, amounting to , be paid by this Committee, and that the Chairman be requested to advance the same.

A Letter from Peter Corne, dated December 6th, begging an enlargement of his parole; likewise a Certificate of General Parsons. The Letters being read, are in the words following: (Pro ut.)

Resolved, That Mr. Peter Corne be permitted to remain under his former restrictions to his house and farm at Peek's Kills, on his parole of honour, so long as General Parsons shall lodge at his house; and that General Parsons be requested to take his parole in the same manner as the former one.

Mr. Hansard informs that there are three girls near this place, who have come lately from New-York; the name of one is Henning, who has a brother sick in the Barracks; that he has understood that she and her mother either lived with General Howe or the Hessian General.

Connor's Tavern, December 17, 1776.

Present: Mr. Duer, Chairman, Colonel De Witt, Mr. Gansevoort, Colonel Cortlandt.

The Examination of Enoch Crosby was read, and is in the words following, viz:

Resolved, That Walter Dubois, Alexander Milliner, William Brown, and James Harden, near Shawgenet, in Ulster County, be forthwith apprehended and brought before this Committee.

Resolved, That Captain Clark be requested to execute this Resolution, and that the Chairman be requested to desire his attendance on this Committee.

Resolved, That Uriah Townsend, Adonai Manuel, Jacob Seedsman, and James Cohuan, be discharged on their taking the Oath of Allegiance.

The above-mentioned persons attending, the Chairman, by order of the Committee, gave them permission of either joining the enemy or of taking the Oath of Allegiance. They all declared their determination to fight for their country, and voluntarily took the Oath of Allegiance.

A Letter from the Committee of Tryon County, signed Isaac Paris, Chairman, dated November 28th, 1776, was taken up and considered, and is in the words following:

Resolved, That Mr. Harper, one of the Members for Tryon County, be requested to attend this Committee.

Mr. Harper attending, informed the Committee that he was present when the above persons were examined before the Committee of Tryon County; that Hough and Ramsay were particularly dangerous and desperate fellows; and that the whole of them are so notoriously disaffected, that they ought, in his opinion, to be prevented from going at large.

Resolved, That Francis Prince, George Ramsey, William C. Bownig, John Gibson, Melon Knight, and Henry Hoff, be forthwith conveyed to Poughkeepsie, there to be confined in Jail till further orders from this Committee or future Legislature of this State.

Resolved, That William Gilroberts, who has been sent to this place by the Committee of West-Chester, and who stands charged with Horse stealing, be forthwith sent to Poughkeepsie, there to be confined in Jail till further orders from this Committee, the Convention, or future Legislature of this State, unless sooner discharged by due course of law.

The Chairman laid before the Committee a charge against a Charles Haight, who had been sent to this place by the Committee of Bedford, in West-Chester County; which being read, is in the words following:

December 18, 1776.

Present: William Duer, Chairman, General Morris, Colonel De Witt, Captain Platt.

General Clinton informs the Committee that a quantity of Butter was deposited at Fort Montgomery, which had been taken from a certain Brian Connor, who had intended to carry it to the enemy, and had been sent a prisoner to Fort Constitution, and begged to know what should be done with it.

Josias Berkely appeared before the Committee, and informed them that he had left Long-Island last Monday se'nnight, at the request of Mr. Baltus Van Kleeck, of New-York; that he had sent him to Mr. Joshua Carman, his son-in-law, to inquire after his children; that, by what he could learn, there was only fourteen of the enemy's Light-Horse upon Long-Island, and that it was said that Captain Woolley had inlisted one hundred men in the service of the enemy; that he had not taken the oath of allegiance; that he was never asked to take it; that he understood several persons in the Island had not taken the oath of allegiance; that the Continental money does not pass amongst them, but only gold, silver, New-York bills of the old emission, and the money struck by the Corporation for erecting water-works; that he had come immediately to Mr. Carman's, who had carried him to two members of the Committee of Rumbout Precinct, who had examined him.

Captain Platt says, that Baltus Van Kleeck, with whom the examinant lives, is an equivocal character; that all the connections are equivocal; that at an election for a Committee in Dutchess County, where the question was, whether there should be a Committee or not, the examinant was of that party which voted against the Committee.

John Sligell, late of the city of New-York, Tanner and Currier, saith, that his father's family and his own moved from the Bowery Lane, near New-York, shortly before the enemy landed in the city, to New-Rochelle; that after the enemy came to New-Rochelle they were turned out of doors by a Hessian officer, and again went to New-York; that after the enemy left New-Rochelle the examinant went there to see for his family; that he found them gone; that he waited a day and a half for an opportunity of sending to New-York for his clothes; that his wife came there by water with design of inquiring for him; that they concluded she should return and endeavour to send out his clothes, and come out as soon as possible; that she accordingly went on board Peter Schenck's boat, at New-Rochelle; that Schenck persuaded him to go along, promising to see him safe back; that he went with them, landed near the ship-yards at New-York, and went to his father's house, staid there a night, got his clothes, and sailed with the said Schenck the next day, and landed at the City Island, from whence he came by land to this place, and is going to Pennsylvania to see his uncles and aunts; that it was agreed between him and his wife, that she, with her child, should leave New-York the first opportunity and come to New-Rochelle; that she should send word to her cousin, John Harbeck, who lives with a currier here, and that on his return from Pennsylvania he should go down to New-Rochelle and fetch her, and that Harbeck should fetch her in case examinant should not return at the time expected; that women are permitted to go out and into New-York without interruption; that he served as a Corporal in Captain Leonard's Company, in Locker's Regiment, in General Scott's Brigade.

JOHN SLIGELL.

Resolved, That John Sligell be put on his parole not to cross the river without the permission of this Committee, and to appear before this Committee every Saturday evening, at five o'clock, till further orders.

A Letter from Colonel Luddington, dated December 17th, 1776, was read, in which he informs, that a certain Akins is come from the enemy's Army, and has brought a number of protections to the neighbours. Likewise a Letter from Alexander Kidd, Mathew Paterson, Roswell Wilcox, John Young, giving the same information.

The Letters being read, the Committee came to the following Resolutions:

Resolved, That Colonel Luddington and Mr. Mathew Paterson be requested and authorized to cause David Atkins, and all other persons whom they have good reason to suppose have received protections from the enemy, forthwith to be apprehended, disarmed, and brought before this Committee, and that they diligently search their houses and persons for papers, and that they transmit to this Committee all such as are of a suspicious purport; and further, that a Lieutenant and twenty-five men be sent to the above gentlemen, in order to assist them in carrying this Resolution into execution.

Resolved, That Colonel Brinckerhoff be requested to detach from his regiment of Militia twenty-four men, of known attachment to the cause of America, commanded by an active and intelligent Lieutenant, and that the said officer parade his men at two o'clock to-morrow afternoon, at the house of Colonel Abraham Brinckerhoff, there to receive further orders from this Committee.

Ordered, That a copy of this Resolution be immediately sent to Colonel Brinckerhoff.

Ordered, That the Chairman lay before the Convention the above Letters.

Jeremiah Scribner delivered the Committee a Letter from the Committee of Fredericksburg, transmitting a charge against a certain Jeremiah Bayley, whom they had sent under guard.

Ordered, That Jeremiah Scribner deliver the above-mentioned Jeremiah Bailey to the Officer of the Guard, who is directed to keep him in safe custody till further orders.

Connor's Tavern, Fish-Kill, December 18th, 1776.

Present: Mr. Duer, Chairman, General Morris, Colonel De Witt, Mr. Zeph. Platt, Captain Sacket.

Mr. Joseph Hoff, of the Nine Partners, appeared before the Committee, and informed that Thomas Tobias, Richard Peters, John Howard, Dr. Christian Tobias, and Willert Duck, all of the Nine Partners, and very active Tories, had for some time absconded; that John Howard, Richard Peters, and Thomas Tobias, had returned, and that since their return a number of young men who lived in their neighbourhood were missing, and, as they suppose, went off with some of the above persons.

Captain Caleb Haight attending, gave the same information, and says, further, that they are eight men belonging to his Company, who had absconded. Their names are Willbert Duck, Silas Duck, 3d, (son of Silas Duck,) Samuel Horcey, John Smith, Thomas Tobias, Israel Hallock, Amos Hallock, Isaac Hoff, in Charlotte Precinct; that some of these persons are men of estate, and have considerable forage; that there is near twenty men out of Captain Smith's company who have absconded; that Thomas Tobias was home on Monday last.

Resolved, That Captain Haight, Mr. Isaac Hoff, and Captain Samuel Smith, be requested to furnish with a list of such persons who have absconded from the Nine Partners, distinguishing such as have property.

The Chairman being appointed on another Committee, which required his indispensable attendance, Mr. Gansevoort was unanimously chosen Chairman.

Mr. Duer informed the Committee that he had delivered Abraham Cuyler, Esq., Mayor of Albany, to Lieutenant Schoonmaker, of Captain Belknap's company, and that he had suffered him to escape; that he had put Lieutenant Schoonmaker under an arrest, till the pleasure of this Committee should be known.

Resolved, That the Committee approve of Mr. Duer's conduct, [and that the Chairman report the conduct of Lieutenant Schoonmaker to the Convention of this State.]

A Petition of Thomas Menzies, Esq., dated December 17, 1776, to the Convention of the State of New-York, and by them referred to this Committee, being read and considered, the Committee came to the following Resolution:

Resolved, That Thomas Menzies, Esq., be permitted to return to his place of residence, and that he give his parole of honour to remain within six miles thereof till the further order of this Committee or the Legislative authority of this State.

Ordered, That Colonel De Witt prepare a draught of a parole to be signed by Mr. Menzies.

P. M.—Present: Mr. Gansevoort, Chairman, Mr. Platt, Mr. Sackett.

Resolved, That Mr. Gilbert Southerd be requested to furnish the Guard in this place with Firewood, and that this Committee will pay him therefor.

December 20, 1776.

Present: Mr. Gansevoort, Chairman, General Morris, Mr. Duer, Mr. Platt, Mr. Sackett.

Mr. Duer informed the Committee that he was lately in Orange County; that while he was there, Mr. Tustun, the Chairman, took him aside, and told him that Dr. Gale was one of the most subtle and dangerous Tories that was in Orange County; that he was a relation of his, and that, therefore he would not wish to have it known that this information came from him.

Whereas it appears to this Committee that Lieutenant Schoonmaker was induced to be less careful of Abraham C. Cuyler, Esq, late Mayor of Albany, than he would otherwise have been, by the indulgences heretofore given him by this Committee, and the assurances given him by Mr. Henry Glen, Assistant Quartermaster-General, of the honour of the said Abraham C. Cuyler, Esq., and an expectation that Mr. Glen would keep a watchful eye over him; and it appearing also to the Committee that Lieutenant Schoonmaker is a very young man, well-affected to the American cause, and not much acquainted with military discipline, and promising to be more vigilant in the execution of his duty for the future:

Ordered, That he be reprimanded by the Chairman, discharged, and return to his duty.

Mr. Menzies appeared before the Committee, and having subscribed his Parole, was dismissed.

John Haines appeared before the Committee, and being examined, says that, &c. (Pro ut.)

P. M.—Present: Mr. Gansevoort, Chairman, Mr. Duer, Mr. Jay, Mr. Sackett, Mr. Platt.

Colonel Henry B. Livingston informed the Committee that he had apprehended, at the request of John Sloss Hobart, one of the Members of the Convention of the State of New-York, and brought under guard to this place, Mr. Malcolm Morison and David Aitkins, two persons who had received protections from General Howe.

Ordered, That Malcolm Morison appear before this Committee.

Resolved, That Melancton Smyth be, and he is hereby, appointed to take the command of the Companies of Rangers, and such other troops as may from time to time be put under his command by this Committee, stationed at this place, with the rank and pay of Major, until further provision be made for him by the Convention of the State of New-York or this Committee.

Ordered, That the Chairman write to Major Smith, and request him forthwith to repair to this place, and transmit him copy of the above Resolution.

Lieutenant Jacob Lawrence appeared before the Committee, and produced an Order from Captain Roos to bring on Joseph Pinnie to the Convention of this State.

Ordered, That Captain Myrick take the said Pinnie into custody.

Malcolm Morison appearing, and being examined, saith, that last Tuesday week, one David Akins, one of his neighbours, gave him a paper, which he put in his pocket, and the next day or that evening read; and that it was a protection from General Howe; that he never informed the Committee of his district thereof, being diverted therefrom by private business. That he never asked the said Aikins where he got it, or what induced him to give this paper to the said examinant; and that on the said paper's being demanded of him by Sloss Hobart, Esq., a Member of the Convention of this State, the night before last, he gave it to him, and that the paper now shown to him is the same; that the evening or the next day after he had received the said paper, he communicated the same to one Alex. Ridd, who had formerly been of the District Committee; also to one John Young, a Saddler there, but to no other persons whatever. MALCOLM MORRISON.

Ordered, That the said Malcolm Morrison be committed to the custody of the Guard, and by them confined in irons.

David Aikins, of Fredericksborough Precinct, Blacksmith, being sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith, that on or about the 29th day of November last he set out from home, with a pass from Colonel Luddington, to go to Horse-Neck, to buy rum. That on his arrival there he was disappointed in getting the rum, and from thence he set out for West-Chester County, in quest of Barnes Hatfield, for whom he was bound in a considerable sum of money; that he went to the White-Plains, and not finding him there, he went to Isaac Williams's, near Bronx river, who had married his cousin; that he lodged there, and was taken out of bed there by a party of Rogers's Rangers; that they carried him to a fort near one Volentine's, and the next day they sent him to a Major, whose name he has forgot, in the neighbourhood of Kingsbridge; that the Major asked him how he would clear himself from the Rebel pass that was found on him; that he said he had come down on a particular errand from Captain Alexander Grant's wife to him, and that if the Major would send him to Captain Grant or Captain Alexander Campbell, who were his old neighbours, he could prove his character. That thereupon the Major sent him under guard to Captain Campbell's quarters, at a white house of Mr. Frederick Van Cortlandt; that on his arrival there he told Captain Campbell that he was a prisoner, and that it was in his power to discharge him; that Captain Campbell said he would discharge him if he would carry some papers and errands to certain persons in his neighbourhood, and be secret about it, saying further, that he had a day or two before sent some papers, as this deponent understood, to Malcolm Morrison, by one Widow Henderson, who he believes used to live at Horse-Neck, and he has heard is a relation to the Hendersons at Robinson's Lower Stores. That he promised to be the bearer of the said errands and papers; and that Captain Campbell thereupon gave him two printed papers, which he did not read, and protections, from General Howe, for Malcolm Morrison, John Kain, Alexander Shedd, Mathew Paterson, Charles Collins, and one for himself; that the said Captain Campbell entered into free conversation with him, in the course of which he understood from the said Captain Campbell that Malcolm Morrison had engaged to raise a company of men for the enemy's service, and that he, the said Campbell, wished he would be speedy about it. That the said Captain Campbell further told him, that when he left Fredericksburgh, he delivered his writings to Alexander Kidd; and this deponent further saith, that Captain Campbell gave him a pass to return home, and said he would be at deponent's house in about six weeks' time; and that as he was going away, he met Allen Cameron, who had formerly resided in Fredericksburgh, and with whom he had been acquainted; that he entered into conversation with the said Cameron, and that Cameron, among other things, told him that he had given a bill of sale of his estate to Malcolm Morison to save his property. And this deponent further saith, that Barney Kain, a brother of John Kain, is a Lieutenant to the said Campbell, and that this deponent also understood from the said Captain Campbell that Malcolm Morrison, after he had raised his company, was to be under Governour Brown. That this deponent made the best of his way home. That on his arrival there he delivered the protection aforesaid directed to Malcolm Morrison to him; that the said Morrison read the same and appeared much pleased, and gave this deponent two dollars for his trouble and care in delivering the same. That the Sunday after this deponent came home, he saw John Kain, and told him he had a protection for him, and asked him if he would receive it; that the said John Kain appeared shy about it, and in the evening of the same day called at this deponent's house for it, and the deponent accordingly gave it to him; that the said Kain asked this deponent where he got the said protection, and this deponent told him he had got it from Captain Campbell. This deponent further saith, that he never delivered the other protections to the persons for whom they was intended as aforesaid, nor has he spoken to either of them about it, except to Mathew Paterson, who refused to accept it. That one Hetty Street, a sister of , and who lives with the wife of Leonard Wilmot, who has lately gone to the enemy from Fredericksburgh, told him that Malcolm Morison had sent a little girl to their house to show them the protection he had received. And this deponent further saith, that some time after, the said John Kain came to his house and told him that Malcolm Morison had divulged the affair of the protection, and that the said John Kain would fall out with this deponent and vilify him, but that he must not mind that. This deponent also saith, that he gave the said John Kain one of the printed papers above-mentioned, and asked him what he should do with the other, and that the said John Kain advised him to burn them both, which he accordingly did. And further this deponent saith not.

DAVID AKIN, Jr.

Sworn in the presence of the Committee by me,
LEONARD GANSEVOORT, Chairman.

Ordered, That the said David Akins be discharged on his taking an oath of allegiance to this State.

Ordered, That Colonel Luddinton be requested to apprehend and bring before this Committee John Kain, of Pawling's Precinct, who stands charged with having received a protection from General Howe.

Ordered, That Charles Collins be immediately committed to the Guard-House.

December 21, 1776.

Present: Leonard Gansevoort, Chairman, Zephaniah Platt, John Jay, William Duer, Esqrs.

Ordered, That Cushman, the Blacksmith near Colonel Brinkerhoff's, leaving all other business, do forthwith make, and send to this Committee, six pairs of Manacles and Handcuffs.

Ordered, That George Drawyer, leaving all other business, do forthwith make, and send to this Committee, six pair of Manacles and Handcuffs.

Resolved, That Captain Clark be forthwith requested to attend this Committee.

A Letter from John Schenck, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Poughkeepsie District, was read. (Pro ut.)

Resolved, That the Committee of Poughkeepsie District be requested to send Joseph Odel and Michael Smith to this Committee, under a guard of two men, at their own expense, for the purpose of taking the oath of allegiance to the State of New-York, and being discharged, unless cause should appear for their further detention.

Ordered, That copy of the above Resolution be sent to the Committee of Poughkeepsie District.

Ordered, That William Duer, Esq., pay John Hains six Dollars, for secret services performed for this Committee.

Ordered, That William Duer, Esq., pay Caleb Trip two Dollars, for riding express to Major Melancton Smith.

Whereas this Committee have been credibly informed, and have good reason to believe, that David Van Schaack and Peter Van Schaack, Esqrs., Messrs. John Stevenson, Cornelius Glen, of the City and County of Albany, have long maintained an equivocal neutrality in the present struggles, and are, in general, supposed unfriendly to the American cause, and, from their influence, are enabled to do it essential injury:

Resolved, That the Committee of the City and County of Albany be requested to summon the said persons to appear before them, to ask them whether they respectively consider themselves as subjects of the State of New-York or of the King of Great Britain. If they answer that they consider themselves subjects of the State of New-York, then to tender to them the oath of allegiance, and on their taking and subscribing the same, to discharge them; but if they should answer that they consider themselves as subjects of the King of Great Britain, or refuse to take the oath aforesaid, then to remove them, under the care of some discreet officer, to the town of Boston, at their own expense, and there to remain, on their parole of honour, till the further orders of this Committee, or the Convention, or future Legislature of this State; and that copy of their parole be sent to the Selectmen of the said town of Boston.

Resolved, That a copy of the Oath of Allegiance and the Parole aforesaid be sent to the Committee of the City and County of Albany.

Ordered, That the Chairman write to the said Committee, and enclose the above.

Ordered, That Dirck Gardinier and Matthew Goes, Jun., be discharged on taking and subscribing the oath of allegiance to this State.

December 22d, 1776.

Present: Leonard Gansevoort, Esq., Chairman, Zephaniah Platt, William Duer, John Ten Broeck.

Captain Hill appeared before the Committee, and informed them that he had brought, under guard, to this place, John Kain, who was delivered to him by Colonel Henry Ludinton; that he had also a person under guard of the name of Jesse Holmes, whom he had apprehended on the road for not having a pass.

Ordered, That John Kain appear before the Committee.

John Kain appearing, and being examined, saith, that this day a fortnight ago, he saw David Akins, who told him that he had something to communicate to him, and desired him to call at his house; which he did towards evening of the same day. When he arrived at the house, Akins delivered him a protection from General Howe; that he inquired of the said Akins where he had got the said protection; that he answered, it was no matter; that when he returned home he showed the protection to his wife and daughter, who were much dissatisfied at his having a protection, and that his wife had burnt it. He farther says that this protection was never solicited by him, and supposes it was sent him by a brother, who he thinks is with the enemy; and declares he is friendly to the measures America is pursuing; that he has never shown the protection to any one else, and confesses that he has been remiss in not showing it to some member of the Committee of Dutchess County; and further says that he and Akins have been upon very bad terms for a long time.

JOHN KANE.

Ordered, That Colonel Ludinton appear before the Committee.

Colonel Henry Ludinton appearing before the Committee, and being sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith, that on Saturday morning, about two o'clock, he received the orders from this Committee for the apprehension of John Kane; that he called upon Captain Hill and three others, who he took with him, and repaired to the house of the said John Kain. When he arrived there, he found John Kain in his shop, and immediately informed him that he was under a necessity of making him a prisoner. That Kain said he was surprised that he was ordered to be taken, and requested to see the orders which the deponent had for it. The deponent further says, that upon Kain's reading the orders, he declared that as God was his judge he had no such protection, and knew nothing about any such thing. The deponent further says, that Kain run out very much against David Akins; that upon this deponent telling Akins to-day that Kain had vilified his character so much, Akins replied that he was not surprised at it, for that it was agreed upon between him and Kain. The deponent further says that Kain and Akins had some conversation together to-day at his house; and further, that he met the said David Akins and John Kain on the road together, near the Long Bridge, some time the week before last, and that they appeared very busy in conversation; that Kain was leading his horse, and Akins was afoot; that as soon as he (the deponent) came up, they broke off. And the deponent further says, that among the firm Whigs, the character of Kain has been suspicious, and that he is in general reputed an artful, subtle man.

HENRY LUDINTON.

Sworn in the presence of the Committee by me,
LEONARD GANSEVOORT, Chairman.

Ordered, That Mr. Mathew Patterson appear before this Committee.

Mathew Patterson appearing before this Committee, and being examined under oath, saith, that on last Tuesday se'nnight, Malcolm Morison, Roswell Wilcox, and David Akins, were at his house; that Morrison showed him a protection which he had received from the enemy, and asked the examinant what he thought of it; that the examinant answered, that he did not know what to think of it; that, many people passing and repassing in the house, nothing more in particular passed; that in the evening David Akins called this examinant out of his house, telling him he had something to communicate to him if he would call at Akins's house; that the examinant asked what it was, and told if it was any thing to his benefit he would be glad of it, upon which Akins said it was a protection from Great Britain; that the examinant answered that he was once known in Great Britain, but that he chose to be governed by those who were his representatives; that the protection was never applied for by him, and that it was a matter which he could not see through; that Akins replied, if they had not been applied for they would not have been got. The examinant further says, that told Akins that did not choose to have any thing to do with such things; and further said, that there was a man in the room (meaning Colonel Ludinton) who, if he knew what Akins said, would immediately send him to Congress, but did not think it expedient to mention it to Colonel Ludinton then. And this examinant further says, that he was told by Malcolm Morrison that John Kane and several others had received protections; and likewise that he, on or about Monday or Tuesday last, saw John Kane, and that the said John Kane asked him what bluster there was about protections; that the examinant told him he supposed he knew as much about the matter as he did; that on this the said John Kane called God to witness that he never had seen any such protection, and that he knew nothing about it; that on this he, the examinant, observed that he was very glad of it. And further this deponent saith not.

MATHEW PATERSON.

Sworn in the presence of the Committee by me,
LEONARD GANSEVOORT, Chairman.

Ordered, That John Kain be committed to the Guard, and be put in irons.

Ordered, That Jesse Holmes be committed to the Guard-House, in the room with the Guard.

Ordered, That Josiah Bartley be committed to the custody of the Guard.

Captain Butler appeared before the Committee, and informed them that he had brought under guard Daniel Reeves to this place.

Ordered, That the said Daniel Reeves be committed to the custody of the Guard, and confined in irons.

Ordered, That Nathaniel Sackett, Esq., pay Cushman thirty-six shillings, for six pair of Manacles or Handcuffs, made for this Committee.

Ordered, That Nathaniel Sackett, Esq., pay George Drawyer thirty-six shillings, for the like services.

Captain Silas Purdy informed the Committee that he had retaken one David Penbrooke, who had lately escaped from the Guard-House in this place.

Ordered, That he be committed to the custody of the Guard, and be confined in irons.

Captain Platt informed the Committee that he has received intelligence that a certain Jacob Striker, who is lately come from the enemy, Peter Harris, who lately escaped from the Guard-House, James Gouslin, who had returned from transportation, were lurking in Beekman's Precinct.

Resolved, That Mr. Martin Cromwell be requested forthwith to apprehend the said persons; and that for that purpose he call upon such of the Militia as he thinks necessary.

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be forthwith transmitted to Mr. Martin Cromwell.

December 23, 1776.

Present: Leonard Gansevoort, Esq., Chairman, John Jay, Zephaniah Platt, Nathaniel Sacket, Esqs.

Mathew Paterson, John Youngs, and Roswell Wilcox, appeared before the Committee, and requested the enlargement of Malcolm Morrison, unless the charges against him were such as rendered it inconsistent with the safety of the State.

Ordered, That the said gentlemen be informed of the several charges and evidence against the said Morrison.

Resolved, That the enlargement of the said Malcolm Morrison would be highly inexpedient and improper, and would greatly impeach the impartiality of this Committee.

Roswell Wilcox, of Fredericksburgh, in Dutchess County, being sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith, that on last Tuesday week he was at the house of Mr. Mathew Paterson, in company with Malcolm Morrison, John Youngs, and divers others; that this deponent sat next to the said Malcolm Morrison, by the fireside; that the said Morrison asked him, in a whisper, whether, if the regular Army was to come into those parts, he shouldn't want a protection; to which the deponent answered, indeed he should; on which the said Morrison replied, that he could get one for him; that this reply gave the deponent a good deal of thought; that afterwards, when this deponent was going out of the house in order to go home, the said Morrison followed him, saying he wanted to speak to him, and that they went together into Mat. Paterson's back room; that the said Morrison then pulled a printed paper out of his pocket and read it to the deponent; that the said printed paper was styled a protection, and purported to be an order from the Commander-in-Chief of the enemy's Army to all his officers, soldiers, and others, not to molest or injure the said Morrison in his person or property, and that the said paper bore date at White-Plains in the month of November; that this deponent was much shocked at hearing the said paper read, and asked the said Morrison where he had got it; upon which he answered, that he had got, and could get one for this deponent; that this deponent remonstrated to him on the danger of having such protection, observing that they would compel those having them to fight for the enemy, which he would rather die than do; upon which the said Morrison said, so would I, adding that the meaning of the said protection was only to save his property from plunder; that this deponent then looked upon the said Morrison to be in liquor, and told him he would speak to him about it the next day; that he accordingly saw the said Morrison the next day, and told him that the protection he had shown was a bad thing, and of bad consequence, and had given him, the deponent, much uneasiness, and said it would be better for him to reveal it to this Committee; and that the said Morrison said, What! have I shown it to you? and proceeded to say he wished he had never seen it, and that he had understood that Aikens and Patterson had had some difference about the plagued thing; that he did not know what he should do; that this deponent expected to have had some further conversation with him upon the subject, but said Morrison's going from home and continuing out so long that he and some of his neighbours communicated it to this Committee. And this deponent further saith, that David Aikens, of Fredericksburgh, is generally reputed to be very disaffected to the American cause, and that he has told this deponent that he had signed the Association because there were so many people travelling that he did not conceive himself safe; and that his moral character is very suspicious and questionable. And further this deponent saith not.

ROSWELL WILCOX.

Sworn in the presence of the Committee by me,
LEONARD GANSEVOORT, Chairman.

Leonard Gansevoort, Chairman.

Ordered, That Nathaniel Sacket, Esq., be appointed Treasurer to this Committee and Auditor of all the Accounts offered to this Committee for payment.

Mr. Duer informed the Committee that Colonel Henry Ludinton had told him that he had discovered that Jesse Holmes, who was committed to the Guard-House for travelling without a pass, and not being able to give a good account of himself, is a brother-in-law to John Miller, who has inlisted a company in the service of the enemy, and that the said Jesse Holmes is a dangerous person.

Mr. William McNeil and Mr. David Lyons appeared before the Committee, and informed them that they had apprehended, disarmed, and secured, a certain soldier, who was offering a Horse for sale, which, from his account, they had reason to think was stolen—being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God depose and say: (Pro ut.)

Ordered, That the Prisoner attend the Committee.

The Prisoner appearing, the above Affidavit was read to him; and being examined, he saith, that his name is Zebediah Heath; that he is a private soldier in Captain Thomas Cogshall's company, in Colonel Baldwin's regiment, from the Massachusetts-Bay. That he belongs to the town of Sandown, in New-Hampshire. That the Horse taken from him and mentioned in the Affidavit of Messrs. McNeil and Lyons, he took as a Continental Horse below the lines, from a man he did not know.

Divers other questions being asked him, and he behaving in an insolent manner, and appearing to be in liquor,

Ordered, That he be committed to the Guard-House, and that his further examination be postponed till to-morrow.

The Committee proceeded to take into consideration the Examination of John Hains, and thereupon came to the following Resolutions, viz:

Resolved, That Enoch Crosby, assuming the name of , do forthwith repair to Mount Ephraim, and use his utmost art to discover the designs, places of resort, and route of certain disaffected persons in that quarter, who have formed a design of joining the enemy; and that for that purpose the said Enoch be made acquainted with all the information received by this Committee concerning this plot; and that he be furnished with such papers as will enable him to pass there without interruption, and with such others as will enable him to pass as an emissary of the enemy amongst persons disaffected to the American cause.

Resolved, That Enoch Crosby be furnished with a Horse, and the sum of thirty Dollars, in order to enable him to execute the above Resolution.

Resolved, That Mr. Nathaniel Sackett be requested to give such instructions to Enoch Crosby as he shall think best calculated to defeat the designs of the persons above mentioned.

Resolved, That the Treasurer pay Enoch Crosby thirty Dollars for secret services.

Ordered, That the Treasurer pay Hugh Connor three Pounds ten Shillings, for a Saddle and Bridle, for the use of this Committee.

Resolved, That a Letter be written to Thaddeus Burr, Esq., of Fairfield, in the State of Connecticut, enclosing copy of the Examination of John Hains, concealing his name, and requesting him to concert and execute such plan for apprehending and securing the persons therein mentioned.

Resolved, That Nathaniel Sacket, Esq., be requested to furnish Enoch Crosby with such clothing as he may stand in need of.

Connor's Tavern, at Fish-Kills, 26 December, 1776.

In the afternoon the Committee met: Present, Mr. Gansevoort, Chairman, Mr. Duer, Mr. John Jay, Mr. Sacket, Mr. Ten Broeck.

Ordered, That Major Purdy be brought before this Committee and enlarged on his parole not to depart this town without leave, to appear daily before the Committee, and to confine himself within miles of the Stone Church, in said town.

Captain Belknap informs the Committee that in the night of the 19th December instant, the following persons had effected their escape from the Guard-House, viz: John Ferguson, Teunis Ferguson, John Gibson, George Ramsay, John Vermilyea, Willard Night, Henry Hoff, William Been, Francis Prine, Benjamin Vermilyea, Peter Harris, John Boyea, Jona. Underhill, Stephen Williams, Jas. Tomkins, Samuel Dean.

Mr. Duer informs the Committee that Wm. Miller, Deputy Chairman of the Committee of West-Chester County, informed him that the several Prisoners sent by General Spencer to this Committee were apprehended in this manner: That General Lee, on the complaint of divers inhabitants of that County, had applied to the County Committee for the names of such persons as they deemed dangerous and proper to secure; that the Committee accordingly gave him such list. That on General Lee's marching, he left the list with General Spencer, who in pursuance of it, apprehended the persons named in it, and sent them to the Committee.

Mr. Gansevoort informs the Committee that he has lately been and still continues much indisposed, and therefore begs leave to decline the Chair.

Resolved, That Mr. Jay be Chairman to this Committee.

Fish-Kills, Connor's Tavern, December 30, 1776.

The Committee met: Present, John Jay, Chairman, Nath. Sacket, Zephaniah Platt, John Ten Broeck, William Duer.

Mr. Gansevoort informed the Committee that Captain Belknap reported to him that Christopher Patrie, one of the prisoners in the Guard-House, was dead, and that he had given directions for his decent burial.

Resolved, That the Committee do approve thereof.

Mr. Jay communicated to the Committee a Letter from

Ebenezer Cary and James V. Derbergh, of 27th December, which was delivered to him by Martin Cornell, together with a certain John Maloyd, who they had sent to be examined respecting intimations he had given in his cups, of John Kane's inlisting men in the enemy's service; and also one Jacobus Striker, who had been with the enemy, and had lately come from Long-Island to New-York, and that he had committed them to the custody of the Guard.

Mr. Sacket delivered to the Committee the Examination of Martin Cornell, which he had taken respecting Sam'l Striker and John Maloyd.

An Order of the Committee of Safety referring a Petition and certain Papers of Major Colden to this Committee, and directing this Committee to report thereon as soon as possible, was read.

A Petition of Ch's Cullen was read; also Petitions from Caleb Archer, John Dickson, and Sam'l Wood.

A Certificate of John Smith and several others, of the character of Nath'l Concklin, a prisoner in Woorster Gaol, and praying his release, was read.

Peter Noxon, of Beekman's Precinct, in Dutchess County, being sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God says, that on or about last Wednesday se'nnight, John Maloyd came to this deponent's house, in Beekmun's Precinct; that he got a little in liquor, and taking a pot of cider to his lips, said, Here is a health to Captain Kane and his Company. Upon which this deponent's wife said, What! is John Kane raising a company? Upon which the said Mcloyd seemed to be a little embarrassed, and said he meant a Kane in some other country. That this deponent looks upon the said John Meloyd to be disaffected to the American cause. And further this deponent saith not.

PETER NOXON.

Sworn in presence of the Committee, by me,

JOHN JAY.

Mr. Francis Wilsie, of Beeckman's Precinct, informs the Committee that Philip Vincents and Henry Cornell told him that Philip Vincent's mother was up this morning, between one and two o'clock, and saw a company of about fifteen men travelling towards the mountains, and that some of the neighbours in sleighs had pursued them.

Mr. Sacket informs the Committee that he had permitted John Simkins to go at large, he being very sick, and his father engaging to return him to the Committee on his recovery.

Mr. Gansevoort informs the Committee that Colonel Livingston had informed him that Isaac Winn had escaped from the Guard.

Ordered, That Captain Myrick, with five men, immediately march and use his utmost diligence to apprehend the persons mentioned in Francis Wilsie's information, and that he have power to impress a Sleigh and Horses to transport himself and men to Don. Wright's.

Ordered, That Captain Myrick request the assistance of Colonel Luddington, Captain Clarke, and Lieutenant Martin Cornell, in execution of the above order; and when done, to request of each of them forthwith to repair to this Committee.

Captain Platt informs the Committee that Arch'd Little, Esq., told him that one James Carscaden had been committed to the Guard for travelling with a forged Pass to James Conway; which Pass, together with another paper signed by William Wilkins, whose name is also to the other, he delivered to the Court.

Captain Platt also communicated to the Court an Order of Nathan Pearce, Chairman of the Committee of Pawling's Precinct, to apprehend and bring here Thomas Beamus, for damning the Congress; and which order and prisoner were brought here on Saturday last, together with a paper found on him, signed by Henry O'Hara, and purporting to be a certificate of his inlistment, &c.

Arch'd Little, Esq., a Member of the Convention, being sworn, saith, that on Tuesday last he saw Mr. James Carscadden at John Brewster's, at Blooming Grove; that he told this deponent he had come from the Militia of Ulster County, and had marched with Captain Watkins to Clarke's Town; that the circumstances of his family were such that he had obtained leave of his Captain to return; that he denied having ever been summoned to appear before the Committee; that this deponent insisted he had, and that he had made his escape; that he persisted in denying it, saying it was his brother; that deponent asked if he had a pass; he said he had, and showed it to deponent; that the said pass was for James Conway, and signed by William Wilkins; that deponent observed to him that the pass was for James Conway, and not for him; that he replied it was a mistake in the Chairman; that James Price, one of the Militia lately marched out, who was returning on furlough, accidentally came in; that the deponent having heard that he was acquainted with James Carscaden, called him into the room, and sent Carscaden out; that he told this deponent he was well acquainted with him—that they had lived under the same roof; that Carscaden had not gone with the Militia under Captain Watkins, but that he had been from home a considerable time; that he was of equivocal character, and had been confined in Goshen Gaol, from whence he was brought before the County Committee, at Nathaniel Owen's, where he escaped from the Guard, and had been from home ever since, till his apprehension; that this deponent then sent Price out of the room, and called in Carscaden again; that he then confessed all that Price had told this deponent; that deponent examined him further about the manner in which he had got the pass aforesaid; that he said it had been given him by a boy in the English Neighbourhood, on which deponent observed that he then must have been with the enemy, as they were possessed of that place; that he said he was mistaken; that he got it at Ramapogh; that this deponent has been informed by Colonel Allison that a Guard, sent by General George Clinton to Clooster Dock, spied a canoe coming to that place, and took it, and that one other Carscaden, he thinks George, and one Waugh, were on board; that the man who had brought them over said he intended to have returned to fetch over Richard Bull and James Carscaden; and further this deponent saith not.

ARCH'D LITTLE.

Sworn in Committee, by JOHN JAY.

An Order of Convention was read, putting Captain V. Gaasbeck's company of Rangers under the direction of this Committee.

David Clarke, a Corporal in Captain Belknap's Company, being sworn, saith, that he was yesterday at the Lower Barracks, in which John Kain is confined; that Kain asked him what prisoners were in the Upper Barracks; the deponent said they had one Striker there; that Kain asked if they had no others; that deponent said they had another; that Kain was very anxious to know who it was; deponent said it was a man that had worked for him, (the said Kain,) on which Kain said, Maloyd! The deponent replied that it was. That Kain appeared very solicitous to know whether he had said any thing about him; to which deponent answered that he had not heard Maloyd mention his name. And further saith not.

DAVID CLARK.

Sworn in Committee, by JOHN JAY, Chairman.

Mr. Duer informs the Committee that Captain John Johnson, of the Regiment late of Colonel McDougall, told him that the wife of Verdun Ellsworth, and sister of Sam'l Gale, had lately been once or twice to New-York, and that she resides at Goshen.

Ordered, That Mr. Sacket pay one hundred Dollars to Captain Myrick, on account.

Mr. Sacket reports that there is due to Gilbert Barns, for burying Christopher Patrie, one of the prisoners, the sum of two Pounds eleven Shillings.

Ordered, That the same be paid.

Resolved, That Mr. Sacket, taking with him Captain Van Gaasbeck's Company, do forthwith endeavour to apprehend the persons mentioned in John Hains's last Examination.

Resolved, That Captain Van Gaasbeck march his Company to the house and neighbourhood of James , obey such orders as he shall receive from Nathaniel Sacket, Esq., till the further orders of this Committee.

Resolved, That Commissary Wickoff do, with the utmost expedition, furnish Captain Van Gaasbeck with six days' Provisions, ready dressed, for his Company.

Resolved, That Samuel Gale and William Tredwell be discharged on taking the Oath of Allegiance to this State.

Mr. Duer communicated to the Committee a Letter from Hendrick Wickoff, the Commissary, informing him that the removal of the Prisoners to the Lower Barracks places them at so great a distance from him, that for this and other reasons he cannot transport their Provisions to them.

Resolved, That when Mr. Wickoff accepted the office of Commissary, he accepted all the trouble attending the same; and therefore, so long as he chooses to keep the said office, the Committee expect he will perform all the duties of it.

Resolved, That Gilbert Ogden, one of the prisoners, be enlarged on his parole, to appear daily before the Committee, and to remain within three miles of the Stone Church, in this town, till further order.

Mr. Sacket informs the Committee that Nicholas Brower, of Wappen's Creek, told him that a number of his neighbours had absconded; that they rendezvous at one John Covert's, between Fish-Kill and Wappen, at or near a place called Ketcham's Town; that he recommends the sending for one V. Zichler, a Miller, at the Bridge over Wappen's Creek, who had said that one hundred and fifty men had gone to the enemy; and also a man who lives with V. Zickler, whose name he did not know, and also young Dan. Polhemus.

Fish-Kills, Connor's Tavern, 31st December, 1776.

The Committee met. Present: John Jay, Chairman, William Duer, Zephaniah Platt.

A Letter of the 30th instant, from Colonel Huntington, was read, informing that by order of General Heath he had sent to the Committee six Prisoners, viz: Henry Fowler, Zophar Beeck, Henry Laback, John Rikeman, Aaron Lawrence, and Abraham Williams, being persons unfriendly to the United States, particularly John Rikeman, who was apprehended for seizing and holding a Continental soldier till the enemy came and took him.

Ordered, That the said Prisoners be committed to the Guard, and that John Rikeman be put in irons.

Captain Richard Mence and Ensign Joseph Baldwin appeared before the Committee, and inform that they brought with them five Prisoners, to wit: Josiah Smith, John Brown, Richard Lawrence, John Grant, Jonathan, a Mulatto, who says he belongs to Benjamin Lister, at Long-Island.

Messrs. Richard Menee and Joseph Baldwin being sworn, say, that yesterday morning they were informed by Philip Vincent and Henry Cornell, that Philip Vincent's mother had heard the dog bark in the night, and got up; that she saw fifteen or twenty men travelling towards the mountains; that there being reason to believe that the said persons were going to join the enemy, these deponents and several others of the neighbourhood pursued them; that these deponents went together, and overtook two, as they believe, of the said persons, and apprehended them in the mountains, viz: William Willson and another, whose name they have forgot; that they examined them for papers, and took from James Willson two papers containing the route they were to go; that Willson told him he had got one of the said papers, marked (Wooden,) from Henry Wooden, at his house; and further, that he was going to New-York, to see his brother. That they delivered the said two prisoners to Captain Myrick; that Henry Wodden confessed to these deponents that he had given Willson the said paper, and appeared very uneasy about it, and begged them to destroy it.

Capt. Rich'd Menee,
Joseph Balding.

Sworn in Committee, by John Jay, Chairman.

Captain Menee and Ensign Balding further inform the Committee, that they have good intelligence of a number of persons who are going to the enemy, that will rendezvous at Joseph Bright's, near Croton River.

Resolved, That they go to General Heath, and concert with him a plan for apprehending them; and that a Letter on the subject be written to General Heath.

Ordered, That William Besley and Cornelius Besley, against whom nothing appears, and whom there is reason to believe entirely innocent, be discharged.

Ordered, That Daniel Smith and Isaac Smith apprehend, and bring before this Committee, Henry Wooden.

Ordered, That nineteen Cartridges be given them.

Petition of Peter Dobbs, Amos Le Forge, Henry Le Forge, Ebenezer Odell, and Josha. Odell.

Ordered, That Thomas Volentine be permitted to return home, on his parole to return to this Committee in a month, to remove his family.

Josiah Smith, one of the Prisoners brought this day by Captain Mana and Ensign Balding, being examined, saith, that he is the son of Josiah Smith, deceased; that he lives in Charlotte Precinct, with Isaac Beagle; that yesterday noon a mulatto fellow, Jonathan, who had worked some time with James Doughty, and who is now a prisoner here, came to him, and told him there was a chance to get clear of drafting, and go to the Island, and told him to go to Thomas Tobias, and he would see the man there; that this deponent thereupon went to William Doughty's, and there saw Frederick Tobias, who also told him the same that the negro or mulatto had; and further said that one Grant was then at Thomas Tobias's, who would take him safe to Long-Island, and advised him to go. That then examinant returned home, and told his master, Isaac Beagle, what had passed, and that he intended to go to Long-Island; that Isaac Beagle dissuaded him from going, saying that this examinant would certainly be taken up; that this deponent then went to Thomas Tobias's, and saw the said Grant, whose Christian name is John; that Frederick Tobias told the said Grant that this examinant would go with him; and that Grant told this examinant to go along towards Poghkeepsie, and he would overtake examinant, which examinant did; that Joseph Haight, of Nine-Partners, was to be there, but he was gone before examinant came near to Poghkeepsie; that examinant went on the way to Poghkeepsie as far as the said Joseph Haight's, and from thence to the mountains, where he was apprehended; that the other prisoners with whom he was taken were the only persons that came off with him; that he understood from the mulatto that the said Joseph Haight was to be their Captain; and that this examinant intended to have returned home again in a fortnight; that the examinant has understood from the said Grant that Isaac Viel, of Beekman's Precinct, was coming with a company of men down this night, in order to go over to Long-Island; and that the horse he rode belongs to Richard Lawrence, one of the prisoners.

Josias Smith.

Ordered, That sixteen Shillings be paid to Peter Van Bremen, for carrying Captain Myrick and five men to Dan. Wright's, in a sleigh.

Captain Isaac Concklin and Lieutenant Josiah Burton, of Charlotte Precinct, being sworn, severally depose, that John Grant, one of the prisoners brought here this day, is generally reputed to be a bad man, and very disaffected to the American cause, and that he this day said, in the hearing of these deponents, that he never would be a friend to the American cause, or words to that purpose. And further say not.

Isaac Concklin,
Josiah Burton.

Sworn in Committee, by

John Jay.

Samuel Gale and William Tredwell appearing, took the Oath of Allegiance, and were discharged.

Captain Myrick reports, that in pursuance of the order of yesterday, he went to Daniel Wright's, where he was informed that so many men had pursued the company of Tories he had been directed to apprehend that he did not proceed; that Lieutenant Alger came to Wright's while he was there, and delivered to him one John Reed, whom he said he had taken at or near David Akins's, in the mountains, and who had informed him that a company of Tories were coming down that night; whereupon he joined his men to those of Lieutenant Alger, and kept guard at John Halstead's; that when they arrived at Halstead, they found two men there, Timothy Pettit and Jacob Jackson; that the latter was by the fireside, and the former on the stoop; that it was then between ten and eleven at night, and their horses were under the shed by the door; that this deponent asked Jackson which way he was from; he said, from the northward; he asked him which way he was going; that he hesitated, and then answered that he was going to the northward again; and that then Pettit came in, and he asked him which way he was going; he said, to Bedford; that he asked him whether they were both going one way; he replied, Yes. On this he suspected them both, and asked Jackson for his pass; that Jackson said Pettit had it; that on examining their papers, he suspected them to be forged, and therefore brought them both to this Committee. That Joseph Baldwin and Captain Manee delivered to him two prisoners they had taken, viz: James Tuttle and William Wilson, whom he hath also brought with him.

Account of Cash disbursed in pursuance of orders contained in the Book of Minutes of the Proceedings of the Committee for Inquiring into, Detecting, and Defeating all Conspiracies, &c.

Reference to Orders.

Cash paid Peter Van Bremen, 16*s.*; 31st December, 1776.

John Reid, one of the prisoners mentioned in Captain Myrick's Report, this day being examined and sworn, saith, that he is a labourer, sometimes working at one business and sometimes at another, and has no settled place of abode. That last Friday was a week, when this deponent was at work at John De Graaf's, at Nine Partners, and one William Busbey, a man about thirty years of age, who he believes has been part of the last summer at Spencer Town, came there; that deponent asked what news? He said not much; that deponent then asked him which way he was going; he said to New-York, and would be glad of deponent's company; to which deponent answered, No; that he said, Thomas Tobias was going. Thomas Tobias was to be a Lieutenant, and the Doctor, his brother, a Captain. That deponent then finding the scheme that Busbey was on, thought it would be best to come into his measures, that by discovering his designs he might the better defeat them. That deponent then told Busbey he would go with him. That they then went together to John Smith's, in the Nine Partners, aforesaid, when there found Thomas Tobias, and several others unknown to this deponent. That there Busbey told Thomas Tobias that he would go to Spencer Town and bring him thirty men well armed; on which Thomas Tobias took his shoes off, and gave them, with a bill of 55*s.* 4*d.* to Busbey, to go to Spencer Town for that purpose. That Busbey went off. That last Sunday, Thomas Tobias told deponent that two of Busbey's men had come down with side arms, to John De Graave's, and that Busbey was not far behind with a number more. That last Sunday night, Thomas Tobias came to John Smith's, aforesaid, and there collected all the men that were going with him, concluding that it would not do for him to stay for Busbey, as the men were growing difficult. He further said he had agreed with Isaac Vail.

A Letter from Colonel Pollard, with a Prisoner, Anthony Kennedy, who had a Lieutenant's warrant from Governour Brown, and had lately come from , and referred by Convention to this Committee, was read:

Anthony Kennedy appearing, was admitted to his parole for three days.

John Reid was also enlarged on his parole.

Committee adjourned.

A Letter of the 19th October, from G. Mason, Chairman of the Committee of Fairfax County, in Virginia, enclosing a Resolution of the Council of Virginia, was read and referred to the Board of War.

Whereas it is manifest, that unless effectual measures are immediately taking for reinlisting the Army, the safety of the States may be greatly endangered:

Resolved, That the President be desired to write to the Commander-in-Chief and inform him that if, upon receipt of this resolution, Commissioners from the respective States, for the purpose of appointing Officers, shall not have arrived, he is then, after consulting and advising with such of his Generals as he can conveniently call together, immediately to grant warrants to such of the Officers from the respective States, who have not Commissioners present authorized as aforesaid, as he shall think deserving of Commissions:

That the Officers so to be appointed proceed with the utmost expedition, to recruit their Regiments to their full complement:

That Commissions be sent to General Washington as soon as possible, to be given to such Officers as he shall appoint by warrants, in consequence of the foregoing Resolution:

That the Commander-in-Chief be desired to take such steps as he shall think most proper for continuing the Militia now in camp.

That, for this purpose, he write to such of the States as now have Militia in the Government of New-York, requesting their assistance in this business; and that he be farther desired to apply to the neighbouring States for such additional aid as he may require.

That a Letter to the same import be written to General Schuyler.

The Committee, to whom the Letter from Thomas Cushing was referred, brought in a Report, which was read.

It being represented that some of the Marines in the Barracks are sick:

Resolved, That Dr. Rush be desired to take them under his care, and see that they be properly provided for.

Resolved, That Mr. Hooper be added to the Committee to whom Mr. Buche's Letter was referred, and that the said Committee be directed to meet on that business this evening at this place.

Resolved, That the Wagonmaster-General be directed to take charge of the Horses belonging to the Continent, and prepare them for service, as soon as possible.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Tuesday, November 5, 1776.

Benjamin Harrison, Esq., a Delegate from Virginia, attended and produced the Credentials of his appointment, which were read as follows:

"Virginia, Set: In the House of Delegates, Thursday, October 10, 1776.

"The House, according to the order of the day, proceeded by ballot to the appointment of a Delegate to represent this State in General Congress, in the room of Thomas Jefferson, Esq.; and the Members having prepared tickets for the person to be appointed, and put the same into a box, a Committee was appointed to examine the same, who reported that they had met a Committee from the Senate in the conference room, and had, jointly with them, examined the ballot boxes, and that the numbers appeared as follows: For Benjamin Harrison, Esq., 69—Meriwether Smith, Esq., 5.

"Resolved, therefore, That the said Benjamin Harrison be appointed a Delegate to represent this State in General Congress.

"Resolved, unanimously, That the thanks of this House are justly due to the said Benjamin Harrison, for the diligence, ability, and integrity, with which he executed the important trust reposed in him as one of the Delegates from this country in the General Congress.

"A copy: John Tazewell,

"Clerk of the House of Delegates."

Resolved, That Mr. Harrison be added to the Board of War, and that he be continued in all those Standing Committees of which he was a member when he left Congress.

A Letter, of the 31st October, from R. H. Harrison, was read.

The Board of Treasury brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration; Whereupon,

Resolved, That all Accounts for services done, or articles supplied the Northern Army, be presented to the Commissioners for settling Accounts, and so much thereof as is approved by them, and confirmed by the General, be paid by his Warrants on the Paymaster, after the Commissioners have certified thereon, that the Accounts and Vouchers are returned to them by the persons receiving such Warrants.

That all Warrants of the General on the Paymaster for services to be performed, or articles to be supplied, be sent by the Paymaster to the office, and entered in the books of the Commissioners; after which, the said Commissioners shall, as soon as they shall judge expedient, call to account the persons receiving such advances; and having settled the said Accounts, they shall be filed in their office.

That where any balance appears to be due to the United States, from persons whose Accounts are adjusted as aforesaid, they shall be received by the Commissioners, and delivered to the Paymaster, whose receipts therefor shall be transmitted to the Treasury.

That the Commissioners be empowered to administer oaths or affirmations to persons examined by them in the execution of their office.

That the Generals' and Paymasters' Accounts be sent to the Treasury Office by the Commissioners, together with the Pay-Rolls and Accounts discharged by the same, upon their adjusting the Accounts of the Northern Army to the end of the present campaign.

Resolved, That the Commissioners appointed to settle the Accounts of the Army near New-York, be directed to govern their conduct agreeable to the foregoing Resolutions.

Resolved, That the following Instructions be given to the Commissioners of the Northern Army:

1. That, in adjusting the accounts of persons whose particular circumstances may have rendered them unable to procure vouchers, or that, on the retreat of the Army, have lost the same, the Commissioners endeavour to obtain the best information from the General Officers, or other persons in that Department, and use a discretionary power in administering oaths or affirmations for this purpose.

2. That there not having been a Mustermaster in the Northern Army during the last and present campaign, the Commissioners are particularly to attend to the pay-rolls that shall be produced as vouchers by the Paymaster, and should any frauds appear, to report them to the General, that the same may be thoroughly investigated.

3. That in other instances, the Commissioners do not interfere with the muster or pay-rolls, unless, in particular cases, it shall be judged expedient by the General and themselves.

4. That the Commissioners do not concern themselves in disputes about back-rations or allowances for vegetables said to be due to some officers and soldiers, but leave them with the Commissary, whose business it is to regulate such disputes.

5. That where any person has done the duty of a Deputy or Assistant Commissary, by desire of a General Officer, or the Commissary or Deputy Commissary Generals, he be allowed for his services, although he has not received a commission for that purpose.

6. That demands for defending the frontiers of any of the States, if on account of troops not raised by order of Congress, be not considered by the Commissioners.

7. That the Commissioners certify to the General the accounts to be paid in specie, that if the military chest is supplied, the General may issue his warrants accordingly.

8. That the Commissioners send to the State of New-Jersey, and to the States eastward thereof, for their accounts against the Northern Army, if such accounts are not forwarded agreeable to a circular letter from the Treasury Board to the said States.

Resolved, That the President write to Governour Livingston, and request him to send two Companies of Militia to guard the Salt-Works near Tom's River, and one Company to be stationed at or near Shrewsbury, to intercept and put a stop to the intelligence said to be carried on between the Tories and Lord Howe's Fleet; that the Companies consist of fifty men each.

That there should be paid to Doctor Rush 625 Dollars for five months' advance pay to Brigadier-General Thompson, who is to be accountable.

Ordered, That the said Accounts be paid.

The Committee of Treasury, to whom that part of the Petition and Memorial of John Brown, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Regiment commanded by Colonel Elmore, praying that his extraordinary services in Canada, last year, may be considered, was referred, brought in a Report,* which was read:

Ordered, To lie on the table.

* Report on so much of Lieutenant-Colonel JOHN BROWN'S Petition and Memorial as prays that his extraordinary services in CANADA last year may be considered.

[Read in Congress, November 12, 1776: Ordered to lie on the table.]

The Committee to whom that part of the Petition and Memorial of John Brown, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Regiment commanded by Colonel Elmore, praying that his extraordinary services in Canada last year may be considered, was referred, have examined the matter thereof, and report, That, according to the narrative of Colonel Brown, contained in his letter to Major-General Schuyler, he performed many valuable services in Canada; that he was instrumental in procuring useful intelligence of the number and strength of the British forces and armed vessels there, and of the inclinations and designs of the inhabitants and savages; that he cut off the communication between St. John's and the circumjacent country, surprised La Prairei, took Chamble, captivated prisoners, and seized stores and other things, and that during the whole campaign he was almost continually in some active employment by night as well as by day, suffering much fatigue and hardship, and frequently exposed to dangers. That these allegations are in some measure supported partly by letters to Congress from the late Brigadier-General Montgomery, dated the 19th and 24th of September, 6th and 20th of October, 3d of November, and 5th of December, 1775, with the articles of capitulation at Chamble, when it was surrendered, and partly by a certificate signed by Colonels James Livingston and Timothy Bedel, Major Robert Cochran and Captains Gershom Motte and William Satterlee. That on the eighth day of November, 1775, the Congress in their instructions to the gentlemen appointed to repair to Ticonderoga, authorized them, among other things, to "assure Major Brown and Major Livingston that Congress had a just sense of their important services, and would take the first proper opportunity to reward them."

But it appears to the Committee, that if Colonel Brown be rewarded by promotion in military rank, which is supposed to have been designed by that assurance, his eyesight is so impaired by the cold weather last winter, that he will not be able to perform the duty of his office, unless it be in some stationary post. It is therefore, upon the whole matter, submitted to Congress to determine whether any further provision ought to be made for him, or in what other manner, he having been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel from that of Major.

A Letter to Willing & Morris, from Samuel Smith, Master of the Hancock & Adams, (who, on his passage to Philadelphia, was taken by the Gamecock privateer, of Rhode-Island, commanded by Timothy Pierce, and carried into Bedford, in Massachusetts-Bay,) dated Bedford Port, November 1, was laid before Congress and read:

Ordered, That it be referred to the Secret Committee, and that they report the cargo on board the Hancock & Adams, and how it ought to be disposed of.

The Board of War, to whom a request from the State of Virginia was referred, brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That the demands of the Continent for Cannon are at present of so pressing a nature that none can be spared for the particular use of any State; but, as soon as a sufficient quantity of Ordnance is supplied to the United States, the request of the State of Virginia, to be permitted to purchase Cannon at Hughes's Works, shall be complied with.

That Monsieur Romand de Lisle be appointed a Major of Artillery in the service of the United States, and sent to General Washington, to be employed as he shall think proper.

A Petition from James M'Connaughy was read:

Ordered, That it be referred to the Board of War.

A Memorial from Azariah Dunham was read:

Ordered, That it be referred to the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania.

A Letter of the 9th, from General Washington, enclosing one of the 31st of October from General Gates, at Ticonderoga, was read.

Congress resumed the consideration of the Report of the Committee on the Letter of Timothy Danielson: Whereupon,

Resolved, As the opinion of Congress, That if the Soldiers to be raised by the State of Massachusetts-Bay, be inlisted on the terms offered to them, which are more advantageous than what are offered to other Soldiers serving in the same Army, it would much retard, if not totally impede, the inlistment of the latter, and produce discontent and murmur, unless Congress should equally increase the pay of these, which, it is the opinion of Congress, would universally be reprobated as an immoderate expense, and complained of as a grievous burden by those who must bear it; and, therefore, that the Committee from the State of Massachusetts-Bay be desired not to inlist their men on the additional pay offered by the Assembly of that State.

Upon reconsidering the Resolution of the 16th of September last, for raising eighty-eight Battalions to serve during the present war with Great Britain, Congress being of opinion, that the readiness of the inhabitants of these States to enter into the service for limited times, in defence of their invaluable privileges, on all former occasions, gives good ground to hope the same zeal for the publick good will appear in future, when necessity calls for their assistance, and, lest the uncertain length of time which forces raised during the continuance of the present war may be compelled to serve, may prevent men from inlisting who would otherwise readily manifest their attachment to the common cause, by engaging for a limited time: Therefore,

Resolved, That all Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers who do not incline to engage their service during the continuance of the present war, and shall inlist to serve three years, unless sooner discharged by Congress, shall be entitled to, and receive all such bounty and pay as are allowed to those who inlist during the continuance of the present war, except the 100 acres of land; which land is to be granted to those only who inlist without such limitation of time. And each recruiting officer is required to provide two distinct inlisting rolls, one for such to sign as inlist during the continuance of the war, and the other for such as inlist for three years, if their service shall be so long required.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

The Lottery being intended to raise a sum of money on loan, bearing an annual interest of four per cent., which, with the sums arising from the deductions, is to be applied for carrying on the present most just and necessary war, in defence of the lives, liberties and property of the inhabitants of these United States:

Resolved, That the fortunate adventurers in the 1st class who draw more than 20 dollars, and so in the 2d and 3d classes, who draw more than 30 or 40 dollars, shall, at their option, receive a Treasury bank note for the prize or prizes drawn, payable at the end of five years, and an annual interest on the same, at the rate of four per cent. or the preemption of such billets in the next succeeding class, as shall not be renewed within the time hereinafter limited. Every adventurer in the 1st class shall have a right to go through the subsequent classes, but shall not be obliged to do it. The drawers of 20, 30 and 40 dollars in the 1st, 2d and 3d classes, who do not apply for their money within six weeks after the drawing ends, shall be deemed adventurers in the next succeeding class, and have their billets renewed without any further trouble. If any others shall neglect or decline taking out and paying the price of their billets, for a subsequent class, within six weeks after the drawing ends, their billets shall be sold to the fortunate adventurers in the preceding class, or to such as shall apply for the same. The fortunate adventurers in the last class, who draw 50 dollars, shall, upon application to the Commissioners of the Loan Offices in the respective States, where the drawers reside, receive their money, without any deduction, and all who draw above that sum, shall receive in like manner, without deduction, for the sums drawn, bank Treasury notes payable at the end of five years after the drawing, at the Loan Office of the State in which the drawers reside. The interest to commence from the last day of drawing, and to be paid annually at the said respective Loan Offices.

That, for carrying into execution the said Lottery, there shall be seven Managers, who shall give bond, and be on oath, for the faithful discharge of their duty:

That the money, as fast as received by the Managers for billets, be lodged in the Continental Treasury:

That the drawing of the first class begin at Philadelphia, on the 1st of March, 1777, or sooner, if sooner full.

Resolved, That the further consideration of the Report, be postponed till to-morrow.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Tuesday, November 19, 1776.

The Convention of Maryland having appointed new Delegates, two of them attending, produced the credentials of their appointment, which were read, as follows:

"Maryland: In Convention, November 10, 1776.

"Resolved, That the Honourable Matthew Tilghman, Esq., and Thomas Johnson, Jun., William Paca, Thomas Stone, Samuel Chase, Benjamin Rumsey, and Charles Carrol, Bar., Esquires, or any three or more of them, be Delegates to represent this State in Congress, until the first day of March next, or until the General Assembly shall make further order therein; and that the said Delegates, or any three or more of them, be authorized and empowered to concur with the other United States, or a majority of them, in forming a Confederation, and in making foreign alliances; provided that such Confederation, when formed, be not binding upon this State without the assent of the General Assembly; and the said Delegates, or any three or more of them, are also authorized and empowered to concur in any measure which may be resolved on by Congress, for carrying on the war with Great Britain, and securing the liberties of the United States, reserving always to this State the sole and exclusive right of regulating the internal police thereof. And the said Delegates, or any three or more of them, are hereby authorized and empowered, notwithstanding any measure heretofore taken, to concur with the Congress, or a majority of them, in accommodating our unhappy difference with Great Britain, on such terms as the Congress, or a majority of them, shall think proper.

"Extract from the Minutes: G. Duval."

Resolved, That the Board of Treasury be directed, in settling Brigadier-General Armstrong's Accounts, to allow his charge for travelling expenses to and from South-Carolina, amounting to 400 Dollars.

A Letter, of the 16th, from General Washington, and one of the 17th, from Clemt. Biddle, were read.

The Board of War brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That 100 three-pounders, 50 six-pounders, 50 twelve-pounders, 13 eighteen-pounders, and 13 twenty-four-pounders, all of brass, be immediately provided as Field Artillery, for the use of the Armies of the United States:

That the Secret Committee be directed to take the most effectual measures for procuring the said brass Artillery; that the said Committee confer with the Committee for procuring Cannon, and consult with them how many they can provide:

That this matter be kept as secret as the nature of the business will admit.

Resolved, That 400 Dollars be advanced to the Delegates of North-Carolina, for the use of that State, which is to be accountable.

Congress resumed the consideration of the Report on the Lottery: Whereupon,

Resolved, That each of the Managers shall receive for his trouble one-tenth per centum on all the money he shall receive on the sale of the tickets:

That the tickets or billets be sold for ready money:

That each of the Managers give bond to the President, for the use of the United States, in the penalty of 20,000 Dollars, for the faithful discharge of their trust.

Resolved, That a Member be added to the Committee appointed to hear the appeal against the sentence passed on the libel, John Barry, qui tam, &c., vs. the Sloop Betsey, &c., in the room of Mr. Rutledge.

The Member chosen, Mr. Chase.

Congress being informed, that there are two Ensigncies vacant in the German Battalion, proceeded to elect persons to fill up the same; and the ballots being taken,

George Howard and Jacob Laudermilk were elected.

The Committee of Treasury reported, that there ought to be advanced to Colonel James Livingston the sum of 2,000 Dollars, for which he is to account with the Commissioners for auditing the Accounts in the Northern Department:

That there is due to Edward Rutledge, Esq., for Cash he paid, by order of Congress, to Joseph Beck, an express to South-Carolina, with despatches, intercepted with Kirkland, &c., the sum of 133 30-90th Dollars, and for the expenses of himself, Doctor Franklin, and Mr. Adams, a Committee to Staten-Island, there and back, 71 30-90th Dollars; the whole amounting to 204 60-90th Dollars:

To Joseph Baldwin, for Ferriage of Militia, &c., over Neshaminy Ferry, 6 54-90th Dollars:

To Samuel Pugh, for victualling Troops of the Flying-Camp, on their march, 8 Dollars:

To John Jarvis, for Ferriage over Neshaminy, 12 21-90th Dollars, and Horse-hire to different expresses, 10 36-90th Dollars, the whole 22 57-90th Dollars:

That there should be paid to the Board of War, to be by them sent to Benjamin Harrison, Jun., Esq., Deputy Paymaster-General in Virginia, the sum of 300,000 Dollars, for the use of the Army in that Department:

Ordered, That the said Accounts be paid.

Congress resumed the consideration of the Report of the Board of War of the 13th instant: Whereupon,

Resolved, That the Commissary-General, or his Deputies, make regular Weekly Returns of all Rations issued or paid to the Officers and Privates of any Regiment, Troop, or Company, in the service of the States, to the Adjutant-General or his Deputies, to be by him inserted in the General Returns of the Army, and transmitted to Congress monthly:

That, on any sick or disabled non-commissioned officer or soldier, being sent to any Hospital or sick-quarters, the Captain or Commandant of the Troop or Company to which he belongs, shall send to the Surgeon, or Director of the said Hospital, or give to the non-commissioned officer or soldier, so in the hospital or quarters, a certificate, countersigned by the Paymaster of the Regiment, if he be with the Regiment, of what pay is due to such sick non-commissioned officer or private, at the time of his entering the hospital or quarters; and the Captain or Commandant of the Troop or Company, shall not receive the pay of the said soldier in hospital or quarters, or include him in any pay abstract during his continuance therein. And, in case any non-commissioned officer or soldier shall be discharged from the hospital or quarters, as unfit for farther service, a certificate shall be given him, by the Surgeon or Director, of what pay is then due to him; and the said non-commissioned officer or soldier, so discharged, shall be entitled to receive his pay at any Pay-Office, or from any Paymaster in the service of the United States; the said Paymaster keeping such original certificate, to prevent impositions, and giving the non-commissioned officer or soldier his discharge, or a certified copy thereof, mentioning, at the same time, his having been paid:

That this Resolution be transmitted to the Commanders-in-Chief in the several departments, to be by them given out in orders, and then delivered to the Directors of the Hospitals in each department, who are to cause the same to be fixed up in some conspicuous place, or places, in every Military Hospital, for the information of all concerned:

That Letters be immediately sent to the Councils of Safety, Conventions, or Legislatures of Pennsylvania, and the States to the southward thereof, desiring them, forthwith, to lay up magazines of Military Stores, Ammunition, and Salt Provisions, in the safest and most convenient places in the said States, respectively, for the use of such Continental Troops and Militia as it may be necessary to bring into the field in the ensuing winter, for the defence of these States:

That some proper person be appointed to act in the capacity of Armourer, to assist the Commissary of Stores in inspecting, superintending repairs, and taking care of all the Continental Arms in the publick magazines at Philadelphia.

Congress deem it necessary, upon every principle of propriety, to remind the several States, how indispensable it is to the common safety, that they pursue the most immediate and vigorous measures to furnish their respective quotas of Troops for the new Army, as the time of service, for which the present Army was inlisted, is so near expiring, that the country may be left in a condition, in a great measure, defenceless, unless quickly supplied by new levies.

Resolved, That Major Stewart, who brought the late intelligence from General Gates, and who is recommended as a deserving officer, have the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel by brevet, and be presented with a Sword of the value of one hundred dollars.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,
Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Wednesday, November 20, 1776.

Resolved, That 40,000 Dollars be advanced to Mr. J. Mease, for the publick service; he to be accountable.

The Keeper of the Publick Prison, having informed Congress, that he has discovered a plot among the Prisoners to effect an escape, which one of them has accomplished; and that he has good reason to believe horses are purchased in Philadelphia, and kept ready for them, when they shall have escaped from prison: It was, thereupon,

Resolved, That the Gaol-Keeper be directed to keep the Prisoners in his custody close locked up till further orders:

That it be recommended to the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, to examine Mr. Jewell, the Gaol-Keeper, respecting this matter, and to take every measure in their power to find out the accomplices in the plot, if any there are.

A Letter, of the 18th, from Brigadier-General Lord Stirling, was read.

The Board of War, to whom were referred the Memorials from Captain Lockwood and Captain Oswald, brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That such parts of the said Memorials as relate to their Pay, be referred to the Board of Treasury.

A Letter, of the 2d, from Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, President of the Council of Safety of Maryland, was read, and referred to the Board of War.

A Letter, of the 6th, from General Lee to Doctor Franklin, having been sent to the Board of War, and by them opened, was laid before Congress and read:

Ordered, That the Board of War prepare a Letter to General Lee, and report the same to Congress.

Congress proceeded to the election of Managers of the Lottery, and the ballots being taken, the following gentlemen were chosen, viz:

Sharp Delany, John Purviance, Owen Biddle, Francis Lewis, Jun., Jacob Barge, Jonathan B. Smith, and James Searle.

Resolved, That a Member be added to the Secret Committee, in the room of Mr. Bartlett, who is absent.

The Member chosen, Mr. Whipple.

Resolved, That the Postmaster-General be directed to remove Besonet, of Bristol, in Pennsylvania, from the office of Deputy Postmaster, and appoint some other trusty person, in that town, to that office:

That the Committee appointed to inquire into the circumstances of the loss of the packet from General Washington, be directed to apply to the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, to apprehend Besonet, of Bristol, and his bar-keeper, and bring them to Philadelphia, for examination, taking care to keep them apart, and that they have the assistance of the Continental Troops in Philadelphia, if necessary:

That the said Committee write to the Commanding Officer of the Continental Troops in New-Jersey, to make diligent search for one Wilkins, who was at the Tavern in Bristol when the packet was lost, and to send him, if found, under guard to Philadelphia.

Resolved, That the Board of War be empowered to administer oaths to persons examined by them.

The Committee of the Treasury report, that there is due,

To Lieutenant Smith, for his expenses with a party to escort money to Brunswick and to Fort Montgomery, a balance of 19 19-90th Dollars, the amount of his Account being 55 19-90th, of which he received from Robert Erwin, 32 Dollars, and from R. Dallam, 4 Dollars, remains 19 19-90th Dollars.

Ordered, That the same be paid.

The Board of Treasury reported farther Instructions to the Commissioners appointed for settling the Accounts of the Army, under the command of General Washington, which were agreed to, as follows:

That in adjusting the Accounts of persons, whose particular circumstances may have rendered them unable to procure vouchers, or who, by unavoidable accidents, have lost the same, or any part of the Publick Stores committed to their care, the Commissioners endeavour to obtain the best information from the General Officers or other persons relative to such Accounts, and use a discretionary power in administering oaths or affirmations previous to their settling the same:

That the Commissioners send to the State of Virginia, and the States northward and eastward thereof, for their Accounts against the said Army, if such Accounts should not be forwarded, agreeable to a Circular Letter from the Board of Treasury to the said States:

That the Commissioners use every precaution to prevent the loss of any Publick Books or Papers that may be in their possession; and, for this purpose, that they apply to the Quartermaster-General for a Wagon and Horses, to be under their direction:

That they consider the Flying-Camp as part of General Washington's Army, and adjust the Accounts accordingly.

The Marine Committee, to whom was referred the bringing in of a plan for increasing the Navy of the United States, brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That there be immediately undertaken,

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| In New-Hampshire, | 1 ship of 74 guns. |
| In Massachusetts-Bay, | 1 ditto of 74 ditto. |
| | 1 ditto of 36 ditto. |
| In Pennsylvania, - | 1 ditto of 74 ditto. |
| | 1 brig of 18 guns, and a packet-boat. |
| In Virginia, - - - | 2 frigates of 36 ditto, each. |
| In Maryland, - - | 2 ditto of 36 ditto, each. |

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,
Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Thursday, November 21, 1776.

Resolved, That 250 Dollars be advanced to Captain Gabriel Long, of the late Colonel Stevenson's Battalion, for the purpose of recruiting his Company; he to be accountable:

That Captain Long's Accounts be referred to the Board of Treasury.

As the necessity of obtaining an Army immediately, to oppose the designs of the enemy, is so evident and pressing as to render it proper to give all possible facility to that business:

Resolved, That each State be at liberty to direct their Recruiting Officers to inlist their men either for the war or three years, upon the respective bounties offered by Congress, without presenting inlisting rolls for both terms, according to a former Resolution; keeping it always in view, that, in the opinion of Congress, the publick service will be best promoted by inlistments for the war, if the recruiting business is not retarded thereby.

The Committee of Treasury reported, that there is due,

To Lieutenant Samuel Lockwood, for his pay as Assistant Engineer in the Army in Canada, from the 5th November, 1775, to the 18th of May, 1776, at 20 Dollars per month, 128 60-90th Dollars; and from the 19th of May to the 5th of November, at 30 Dollars per month, 167 Dollars; the whole, 295 69-90th Dollars:

To John Bates, for two fire hoods, shovel, tongs, &c., for the use of the Treasury Office, 16 36-90th Dollars.

Ordered, That the said Accounts be paid.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,
Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Friday, November 22, 1776.

A Letter, of the 20th, from General Mercer, was read:

Ordered, That an extract thereof be sent to the Assembly and Council of Safety of Pennsylvania.

Congress being informed that a number of sick Soldiers were sent to Philadelphia from the Flying-Camp, and lodged in the Barracks, and it being apprehended that their continuance in the Barracks may endanger the health of the Soldiers there,

Ordered, That the Medical Committee take charge of the said sick, and have them quartered in private houses and properly taken care of, and that they immediately attend to this business:

That Dr. Ludwig be directed to attend the said sick.

The Committee to whom was referred the Petition and Memorial of Mrs. Zedwitz, brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That Lieutenant-Colonel Zedwitz be removed to Philadelphia, and confined in the State Prison; and that due care be taken to prevent him from keeping up any intercourse or correspondence with the enemies of these States:

That the sum of 58 49-90th Dollars be paid to Mrs. Zedwitz, in full for services done for the Continent, as set forth in her Petition:

That the further sum of 80 Dollars be paid to the said Mrs. Zedwitz, in full of two months' pay due to her husband.

Resolved, That 100,000 Dollars be advanced to the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania; that State to be accountable.

Congress taking into consideration the present state of the Army, of which some parts have already disbanded, and others will probably do so when the times they are engaged to serve for shall expire, which must soon happen; so that there is danger that the enemy must be opposed either by unequal numbers, or by Militia, not only a more expensive but a less efficacious aid than regular forces; and there being good grounds to hope that vigorous efforts at this critical conjuncture, may bring the war to a speedy as well as happy conclusion:

Resolved, That blank Commissions be sent to General Washington, and that he be empowered to insert therein the names of such officers as he shall think fit, not revoking those appointments which have been made by Commissioners from any of the United States; and the General, Commissioners, and Officers are conjured to recruit, by all the means in their power, the Regiments now or lately in the Camp; and that a Committee of Three be appointed to repair to Head-Quarters, and, consulting with the General, assist in the accomplishment of this necessary business.

The Members chosen, Mr. Paca, Mr. Witherspoon, and Mr. Ross.

Ordered, That the said Committee make particular inquiry why the Troops are not paid, and that they inquire into, and redress to the utmost in their power, the just grievances of the Soldiers.

Resolved, That the sum of 166,666 2-3 Dollars be advanced to the State of Massachusetts-Bay, in part of their account against the Continent; the said State to be accountable.

Ordered, That a copy of the Resolutions respecting the Lottery be delivered to the Managers, and that the said Managers proceed immediately in carrying the Lottery into execution.

Congress took into consideration the Report of the Committee on the application from the Convention of New-York, respecting the waste of Hides in the Army: Whereupon,

Resolved, That the Commissaries in each Department, be directed to employ proper persons to take immediate charge of the Hides and Tallow in their respective Districts; that the former may be tanned into Leather, or, at least, so far cured as to prevent their being spoiled, and the latter rendered into kegs or casks, that there be no waste of those valuable articles, but that they may be stored for the use of the Continent, and be subject to the orders of Congress; and that the said Commissaries be strongly urged to pay due attention to this Resolve, it being a matter of considerable importance.

Resolved, That two months' Pay be advanced to Dr. Ludwig, of the German Battalion; he to be accountable.

A state of the inconveniences to which the Troops on the Eastern-Shore of Virginia are particularly subject, was laid before Congress and read:

Ordered, That it be referred to the Board of War.

A Letter, of the 16th, from Joseph Trumbull, Commissary-General, was read, advising that he has, on that day, drawn on the President, at four days' sight, in favour of Mr. Matthew Irwin, for the sum of 20,000 Dollars, to purchase Pork and Flour, and desiring the same may be paid and charged to his (J. Trumbull's) account:

Resolved, That the President draw an order on the Treasurer for the payment of the said Bills, and that the money be accordingly charged to the account of J. Trumbull.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Saturday, November 23, 1776.

A Letter, of the 19th and 21st, from General Washington, was read:

Resolved, That 500,000 Dollars be sent to the Paymaster-General:

That 250,000 Dollars be sent to Richard Dallam, Esq.

Resolved, That a Committee of Five be appointed, with full powers, to devise and execute measures for effectually reinforcing General Washington, and obstructing the progress of General Howe's Army; and that they be directed to proceed immediately on this business.

The Members chosen, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Smith, Mr. Chase, Mr. Clymer, and Mr. Stockton.

Resolved, That the Board of War be directed to order the Virginia Battalion, on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, and the two Pennsylvania Battalions, commanded by Colonel Mackay and Colonel Cooke, to march, with all possible expedition, the former to Philadelphia, and the two latter by the nearest route to Brunswick, in New-Jersey, or to join General Washington wherever he may be; and that the said Board is empowered to use every means in their power to expedite the march of these Troops; and they are ordered to attend immediately to this business.

In order the better to oppose the progress of General Howe's Army,

Resolved, That General Washington be directed forthwith to order, under his immediate command, such of the forces, now in the Northern Department, as have been raised in the States of Pennsylvania and New-Jersey, and that the Commanding Officer in the Northern Department be directed to apply to the Legislatures of the Eastern States, to afford him such assistance as they may stand in need of.

Resolved, That General Washington be directed to propose to General Howe, an exchange of William Franklin, Esq., late Governour of New-Jersey, for Brigadier-General Thompson.

The Committee of Treasury reported, that there is due,

To the Committee of Northampton County, and to be paid to Jesse Jones, for sundry supplies of Provisions, Wagons, &c., to the Militia on their march to New-Jersey, and for supplies to Prisoners and Continental Troops, the sum of 1,337 54-90th Dollars:

To John Ashbe, for a Wagon, Horses, and a Negro Man, his property, lost in the service of the States at New-York, the sum of 786 60-90th Dollars:

To John Cox, for eight Rifle Guns, supplied by Edward Snicker, for the use of Captain Gabriel Long's Company, of Virginia Riflemen, 146 60-90th Dollars:

To Lieutenants Bogart and Ball, two Prisoners of the British Navy, and to be paid to James Smith, Esq., for their allowance, from 9th July to 19th November, 1776, inclusive, 19 weeks, at 2 Dollars a week, 76 Dollars:

To Brigadier-General Armstrong, for his pay and rations, from 1st March to 23d November, instant, inclusive, and his travelling expenses to and from South-Carolina, 1,781 63-90th Dollars:

To Dr. David Jameson, for sundry medicines and attendance to sick Soldiers of Captain Grier's Company, and Captain Nelson's Company, in Continental service, the sum of 290 24-90th Dollars:

To Colonel Jeremiah Dugan, for sundry supplies to the Army in Canada, for which he has now produced a voucher, the want of which prevented the same being reported the 19th of August last, the sum of 484 73-90th Dollars:

To the Board of War, for Richard Dallam, Esq., Deputy Paymaster-General, his draft, dated New-Brunswick, the 21st instant, in favour of Colonel Clement Biddle, Deputy Quartermaster-General, the sum of 10,000 Dollars:

That there should be paid to Richard Bache, Esq., Postmaster-General, as an advance, for the use of the Post Office, 2,666 60-90th Dollars:

Ordered, That the said sums be paid.

Resolved, That by any thing heretofore done, it is not intended to prejudice or strengthen the right or claim of the United States, or any of them, to any Lands in America, nor to determine in what proportion or manner the expenses of the war shall be raised or adjusted, except as to the first Three Millions of Dollars emitted by Congress, and a farther emission of Three Millions of Dollars, on December 26, 1775.

Resolved, That 20,000 Dollars be advanced to the Commissoners appointed by the Convention of Maryland, to raise their quota of Troops; they to be accountable.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed, Adjourned to ten o'clock on Monday.

Monday, November 25, 1776.

A Letter, of the 23d, from General Washington, at Newark, was read:

Ordered, That it be referred to a Committee of the Whole; and that General Mifflin, who brought the Letter, be desired to attend the said Committee.

Congress then resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole; and, after some time, the President resumed the chair, and Mr. Nelson reported, that the Committee have had under consideration the Letter referred to them, and have heard Brigadier-General *Mifflin on the subject; and thereupon came to sundry Resolutions, which he was ordered to report; but, that not having come to a conclusion, desired leave to sit again.

The Resolutions reported from the Committee of the Whole, being read, were agreed to as follows:

Resolved, That the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, be requested to call forth immediately the Associators in the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, and in the Counties of Philadelphia, Chester, Bucks, and Northampton, to continue in the service of the United States six weeks from the time they join the Army, unless sooner discharged by Congress:

That the Volunteers who shall enroll to serve the United States to the 10th of March next, shall, nevertheless, be discharged as soon as the situation of publick affairs will possibly admit; it being the intention of Congress to detain them no longer than the present emergency shall render it absolutely necessary:

That 35,000 Dollars be advanced to the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, for the publick service the said State to be accountable:

That 4,000 Dollars be advanced to Colonel Hausegger, for the use of his Battalion; he to be accountable:

That the Board of War be directed to order the German Battalion to march immediately, and join General Washington:

That the said Board write to Governour Henry, of Virginia, and request him to order the Light-Horse, in the service of that State, to march with all possible expedition, to join General Washington:

That the said Board order Brigadier-General Roche de Fermoy to repair immediately to General Washington, instead of going to the northward.

Resolved, That General Mifflin be directed to stay in the City of Philadelphia until General Washington shall require his attendance at the camp, and that General Washington be informed of this by the President.

Resolved, That Congress will, to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole, to take into consideration the state of the Army.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed, Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Tuesday, November 26, 1776.

A Letter, of the 8th, from George Morgan, at Pittsburg, and one, of the 21st, from the Council of Safety of Maryland, were read.

Resolved, That 1,000 Dollars be advanced to Robert Erwin, Wagonmaster-General, for the publick service; he to be accountable.

Congress being informed that some persons in the City of Philadelphia, governed by principles inimical to the cause of America, and with views of avarice and extortion, have monopolized and engrossed Shoes, Stockings, and other necessaries for the Army, whilst the Soldiers of the Continent, fighting for the liberties of their country, are exposed to the injuries of the weather, at this inclement season:

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Assembly of the State of Pennsylvania, to adopt such immediate measures for remedying this evil, as their wisdom shall suggest to be adequate to the present purpose, and for preventing like pernicious practices for the future.

The Board of War brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That a Regiment of Artillery, to be armed with muskets and bayonets, instead of fusees, be raised in the State of Virginia, on Continental establishment; the two Companies already raised there to be part of the said Regiment; which is to be composed of one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, one Major, and ten Companies, each to consist of one Captain, three Lieutenants, one Sergeant, four Bombardiers, eight Gunners, four Corporals, and forty-eight Matrosses.

Resolved, That 1,150 Dollars be paid to Gerard Wm. Beekman, or order, and charged to the account of Richard Dallam, Esq., Deputy Paymaster-General, the same being in full of a draft of the said R. Dallam on R. Peters, Esq., Secretary of the Board of War, in favour of the said Gerard Wm. Beekman, dated New-Brunswick, November 15th, 1776.

Mr. F. Lewis, Jun., having informed Congress that he cannot, consistent with his private engagements, undertake to be a Manager of the Lottery, and desiring he may be excused from that service,

Resolved, That he be excused; and that another be appointed in his room:

The ballots being taken, Dr. David Jackson was elected.

Ordered, That the Committee, who brought in the scheme of the Lottery, confer with the Managers thereof, in order that they may proceed on that business.

Congress resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole, to take into consideration the state of the Army; and after some time spent thereon, the President resumed the chair, and Mr. Nelson reported, that the Committee have had under consideration the matter to them referred, and have come to sundry Resolutions, which he was ordered to lay before Congress.

The Resolutions reported from the Committee of the Whole, being read, were agreed to as follows:

Resolved, That the Cannon Committee be directed to inquire what quantity of Cannon are on board the prize-ship that arrived yesterday in the Port of Philadelphia; and, if they are fit for Field-Artillery, to take measures to have them mounted on proper carriages, and sent to General Washington:

That the Assembly of the State of Pennsylvania be requested to give immediate direction, that the brass Field-pieces, with the Artillery companies, or the Field-pieces singly, if there be no such Companies belonging to this State, be, with all possible expedition, sent to General Washington's Army in New-Jersey, and that they be assured that, as soon as the situation of our affairs will admit, they shall be returned, or others in lieu of the said Field-pieces:

That Mr. Mease, the Continental Commissary in the City of Philadelphia, be directed to go to the several shops and stores, in the said city, and purchase, for the use of the Army of the United States, such articles as are necessary for them, at this and the approaching season of the year; and that he be empowered to employ as many persons as he shall judge necessary to assist him in this service:

That the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania be requested, with all possible expedition, to cause application to be made to the House-keepers and others in the said State, for as many Blankets and Woollen Stockings as each can spare for the use of the Soldiers under the immediate command of General Washington, in New-Jersey; and that they be delivered, as fast as collected, to Mr. J. Mease, the Continental Commissary:

That it be recommended to the said Council of Safety to appoint persons to appraise the Blankets and Woollen Stockings, so collected as aforesaid, that the value of them may be paid:

That the Committee, who are sent to the Camp, be directed to make particular inquiry into the abuses in the Medical Department in the Army, and report thereon to Congress.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Wednesday, November 27, 1776.

A Memorial from Thomas Denef was read:

Ordered, That it be referred to the Board of War.

The Board of War brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That Congress appoint the Officers of the Artillery Battalion, agreed to be raised in Virginia.

A Petition and Memorial from John Sergeant was read:

Ordered, That it be referred to the Committee on the Letter from Thomas Cushing, Esq.,* and that the Report on that subject by them made, be recommitted.

Resolved, That the Delegates from the four New-England Governments be directed to take the most effectual measures to have, at least, 10,000 pair of Shoes, and 10,000 pair of Stockings, purchased in those States, and sent forward to General Washington's Head-Quarters, with all possible expedition, for the use of the soldiers under his command.

That a Committee of Three be appointed to procure a translation into the German language of the Treaty between the Courts of London and Hesse, for Troops to be employed in America. That the said Committee be fully authorized to pursue means the most effectual in their judgment for communicating to the Hessians the said Treaties, and for accomplishing the views of Congress in their Resolves of the 14th and 27th of August last.

The Members chosen, Mr. Wilson, Mr. R. H. Lee, and Mr. S. Adams.

Ordered, That the Secret Committee take proper and effectual measures to procure a quantity of Hard Money, not less than 20,000 Dollars, to be lodged in the hands of the Commander-in-Chief, for the purpose of secret services.

The Committee who were appointed, in conjunction with the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, to examine Bessonet and his Bar-keeper, having reported, that after the most diligent inquiry, they find nothing proved against Mr. Bessonet, and that the Council of Safety and said Committee are of opinion he ought to be discharged:

Ordered, That the said Committee inform the said Council of Safety, that Congress have no objection to their discharging Mr. Bessonet.

The Committee appointed to repair to the Northern Army, having returned, made a Report,* which was read:

Ordered, That the same, together with the Papers accompanying it, be referred to a Committee of Five, and that the said Committee be directed to sit from day to day, and report as soon as possible to Congress.

The Members chosen, Mr. S. Adams, Mr. Clymer, Mr. Livingston, Mr. Wythe, and Mr. Harrison.

Resolved, That the sum of 2,500 Dollars be paid to Mr. Abraham Livingston, and charged to the account of Jonathan Trumbull, Jun., Esq., Deputy Paymaster-General, the same being in full of his draft in favour of the said A. Livingston, dated Albany, 14th November, 1776.

* Report of the Committee sent to the Northern Department.

[That supplying the Army by contract is practicable. Estimates and calculations by General Gates, Schuyler, and for articles, &c., enclosed. Read and referred to Committee of Five, 27 November, 1776.]

The Committee appointed by Congress to go to Ticonderoga, beg leave to report, that after having obtained all possible information in their power respecting the nature and extent of the important subject of supplying the Northern Army by contract, they (your Committee) are of opinion, that at present the measure cannot be adopted under any idea of promoting the publick service. Your Committee have entered into this subject in conversation with your present Commissary-General, and with your Majors-General Schuyler and Gates, and also with two gentlemen who offered themselves as contractors. The lowest terms on which a contract could be obtained have been fully considered by your Committee, and after the most exact calculations, have been compared with the present mode of supplying the Army; the result of all which, in the opinion of your Committee, is, that the present mode ought to be continued, under such farther regulations as shall appear proper to be made: and your Committee beg leave to recommend your present Commissary-General as one of the most diligent and able officers, and by any means to be retained in your service. Your Committee also beg leave further to report, that they have visited the General Hospital for the Northern Army, situated at Fort George; that there is a range of buildings erected convenient for the purpose, which on the 20th of October last contained about four hundred sick, including those wounded and sent from General Arnold's fleet; that they were sufficiently supplied with fresh mutton and Indian meal, but wanted vegetables; that the Director-General in that department obtained a large supply of medicines, but that the sick suffered much for want of good female nurses, and comfortable bedding; many of those poor creatures being obliged to lay upon the bare boards. Your Committee endeavoured to procure straw as the best temporary expedient; but they earnestly recommend it to the attention of Congress, that a quantity of bedding be speedily furnished, agreeable to a note in paper No. 1. A Hospital, in the opinion of your Committee, should be continued at Fort George, for the reception of persons infected with contagious disorders; but your Committee are clearly of opinion that the General Hospital for the Army stationed at Ticonderoga ought to be erected on the opposite grounds, called Mount Independence, Fort George being at much too great a distance. Your Committee recommend that a quantity of vegetables be sent to Ticonderoga, without delay, agreeable to a note in paper No. 2. And also, they are of opinion, that extensive gardens should next spring be made on Mount Independence, from whence the Army might be supplied with vegetables at a much more certain and less expensive rate than otherwise. Your Committee cannot omit mentioning under this head, the complaints which they have received from persons of all ranks, in and out of the Army, respecting the neglect and ill-treatment of the sick. It is shocking to the feelings of humanity, as well as ruinous to the publick service, that so deadly an evil hath been so long without a remedy. Your Committee do not undertake to determine from what quarter this mischief hath arisen; but they most earnestly recommend that a strict inquiry be immediately made into the conduct of the several Directors-General of Hospitals, their Surgeons, other officers and servants, and that exemplary punishment be inflicted on all such as shall be found to have neglected their duty.

Your Committee are also of opinion, that the number of troops, five thousand, mentioned in paper No. 2, should be garrisoned and cantoned in the Northern Department during the next winter; and they recommend to the consideration of Congress the other particulars contained in paper No. 2, and also those contained in papers No. 3 and 4, and in an especial manner the note in page 10 of paper No. 3, respecting the building of some large vessels on Lake Champlain.

Your Committee also beg leave to recommend to the immediate atten-

* Report of the Committee appointed to consider of the Letter from Thomas Cushing, Esq., concerning the Indian Missionaries.

[Recommitted November 27, 1776.]

The Committee to whom the Letter from Thomas Cushing, Esquire, was referred, have examined the matter thereof, and come to the following Resolutions thereupon, viz:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that Mr. Samuel Kirkland and Mr. Aaron Crosby, whom the Commissioners at Boston, appointed by the Society for Propagating the Gospel among the Indians, had employed as Missionaries for that purpose, the former at Oneida, and the other at Onaquaughe, be continued in their offices one year from the expiration of that for which they are now engaged; and that each of them be allowed a salary of four hundred and sixteen dollars and two-thirds of a dollar, equal to one hundred pounds sterling, to be reimbursed by the said Commissioners when they shall receive money sufficient from the said Society.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the United States ought not to contribute to the support of a Missionary to the Mohickon Indians, of whom some reside at Stockbridge, in the State of Massachusetts-Bay, and others, at several places in the State of New-York.

An Appeal having been lodged against the sentence passed in the Court of Admiralty for the State of Virginia, on the libel, "Levin Jones, qui tam, &c., vs. the Sloop Vulcan:"

Resolved, That the hearing and determining the said Appeal be referred to Mr. Wythe, Mr. Paine, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Hooper, and Mr. Chase.

| A, 2,000 iron spades. | 300 augers, of different sizes. |
| A, 2,000 iron shovels. | 150 handsaws, adzes, and other carpenters' tools. |
| A, 3,000 felling-axes. | |
| A, 500 pick-axes. | 30 dozen of files, of different sorts. |
| A, 1,000 bill-hooks. | 40 dozen gimlets. |
| A, 200 stone hammers. | 20 dozen nail hammers. |
| A, 200 mason's trowels. | 800,000 10d. nails. |
| A, 20 crow-bars. | 300,000 6d. do. |
| 300 broad-axes. | Ten casks of 20d. nails. |
| 50 iron squares. | Spikes and other nails as the service may determine. |
| 100 pair of compasses. | |
| 100 pair of framing chisels. | A, a large quantity of bar iron. |
| 400,000 feet of inch pine board. | Steel. |
| A large quantity of plank and timber for gun carriages. | A, 60,000 feet of 3-inch oak plank, for platforms. |

The following works are most suitable to be done during the winter should there be men sent to do it:

Making one hundred platforms for cannon.

1,000 handbarrows. Repairing of the old wood axes.

Pickaxes, shovels, spades, &c. Making carriages for cannon.

To secure the old Fort with plank, by way of blinds to prevent surprise.

Building of three block-houses on the southeast part of Mount Independence.

Building of a block-house east of the old Fort, near the General's Quarters, or back of the store, by the wharf.

Building of a block-house on the height of the old French lines.

Driving piles through the ice across the Lake, to strengthen the boom.

---

Memorandum of Works to be done near TYCONDEROGA next spring.

Building a Fort on Mount Independence, with four bastions and a covert way, on the east and south sides.

Finish the barbet battery with merlons and close the rear.

To repair the old Fort with stone and lime, and build a block-house on the southwest hill across the Lake.

JEDUT'N BALDWIN, Engineer in the Northern Army.

---

List of the wants of the Northern Army.

2,500 officers and soldiers for the winter garrison at Tyconderoga and Mount Independence.

2,500 officers and soldiers to be cantoned upon the Mohawk and Hudson's rivers, Albany therein included.

2 large Floating Batteries to be prepared to be built, one to cover the boom, the other the bridge of communication and to rake the bay on the south side of Tyconderoga.

20 good iron eighteen-pounders, to be sent from Salisbury works as soon as the snow will answer to transport them.

10 brass six-inch howitzers, with shells and an attrail.

A plan of a good Fort upon Mount Independence to be fixed upon and approved.

As there is an excellent bridge over Otter Creek, at Rutland, and a good road cut from Mount Independence thither, abundant supplies might in the winter be thrown in from the Eastern Governments by that road.

The recruiting the new establishment be pushed with vigour, when the money wanted and voted the 21st October arrives.

The General Hospital for the future to be upon Mount Independence, except in case of a contagious disease. Then that at Fort George to be used.

A quantity of vegetables and antiscorbutics should be sent to Tyconderoga as soon as possible, as the scurvy is apt to be fatal there in the spring of the year without such remedies.

[No. 3.]

ALBANY, November 6th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your request, I do myself the honour to communicate to you my opinion of what preparations I conceive necessary to be made the ensuing winter, and what measures to be adopted, effectually to prevent the enemy from penetrating into this country by the northern or western communication.

If the enemy are not able to dislodge our troops from Tyconderoga, or penetrate to the Mohawk river this fall, they will probably attempt an expedition in the winter, Canada being able to furnish them with such a number of sleds as will suffice to transport all their artillery and provisions, if their number should be ten thousand; nor will our garrison of Tyconderoga or Fort George be any obstacles, as they can easily pass by the former in sleds at such a distance as to be out of reach of our cannon, and the latter is too insignificant to make any resistance so as much to retard their progress. It is therefore of the last importance that as much of the Army as can be kept together should be cantoned in the vicinity of this place, of which the enemy will be informed, and it will probably deter them from the attempt; but should they remain quiet in Canada until next spring, it is reasonable to suppose that they will then make the most vigorous exertions to penetrate either by Tyconderoga, or, what is much more likely, by Fort Stanwix. Both communications, therefore, claim our attention. The fortifications at Tyconderoga should, in my opinion, be as much contracted as possible, and a fort built on Mount Independence to cover batteries near the lake side and the redoubt on the Tyconderoga side, so as that the pass may be defended with a few men.

Resolved, That three Members be added to the Committee appointed to revise the Resolutions relative to Captures:

The Members chosen, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Hooper, and Mr. Chase.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Legislatures of

The navigation should be effectually stopped by sinking cassoons at small distances, and joined together by string pieces, so as at the same time to serve for a bridge between the fortifications on the east and west side. This work should be executed in the winter; but as these fortifications would not prevent the enemy from drawing their small craft over land from the Three Mile Point into Lake George, the passage of that lake should be also obstructed, either by cassoons from island to island in the Narrows if practicable, or by floating batteries. Whilst a part of the Army is employed in this service, another body of troops should be sent to Fort Stanwix to strengthen that fortification, and to make some others at such places near the Mohawk's river as may be deemed best for the purpose of retarding the enemy should they make themselves master of Fort Stanwix. And that we may be well prepared and every department put in order, I conceive it necessary that the commanding officers of artillery should be directed to procure every necessary in his department, that we may not have to seek it when the campaign opens. That the Chief Engineer be directed to do the like. That the Quartermaster-General do the same; and the like order be given to the Commissary-General. That all the batteaus now on Lake Champlain and Lake George should be put into the best repair as early as possible, in the months of February or March, at farthest. That one hundred batteaus be built in those months at Schenectady. That a quantity of boards and plank should be collected at Fort George.

That a sufficiency of pitch, oakum, and whatever may be necessary for building and repairing vessels, floating batteries, or batteaus, be collected and conveyed to Fort George, Fort Ann, Skenesborough, and Schenectady, in the course of the winter.

That provisions for five thousand men, for eight months, be immediately brought to Albany, and carried in winter to Fort Ann, a like quantity to remain in store at Albany, to be sent to the westward, if there be occasion. This is a matter that ought immediately to be attended to, and therefore a sufficient quantity of salt should directly be sent to Albany.

That a large train of both heavy and light artillery should be sent in the course of the winter, part to remain at Albany, and as much as may be necessary for Tyconderoga and Fort George to be sent there. This must be done in winter, at once to save a vast expense and that we may not be embarrassed in the spring with the transportation of articles so extremely difficult to move.

That a laboratory should be established at Albany to fix all the ammunition necessary for the campaign.

That fifteen companies, to consist of a captain or overseer, and thirty men, be engaged for the batteau service, and to be employed on the highways and other necessary work in the Quartermaster-General's department. It not only ruins soldiers to employ them in such business, and is more expensive, but also weakens the Army too much. That four companies of carpenters, to consist of an overseer and twenty-five each, be engaged to attend the Army. If more are occasionally wanted, they can be procured in Albany or its vicinity.

I have taken the liberty to enclose a list of some articles that may be absolutely necessary, as also copies of the orders I have given for the Commissary Department, so far as relates to the receiving, issuing, and delivering provisions.

I wish you to mention to Congress the necessity of attending to the request of the Six Nations, respecting the Nautikoke Indians.

The giving certificates by officers for carriages employed by them, is the source of much confusion and unnecessary expense. Congress might ascertain the number of carriages that should be allowed to each company, and strictly prohibit the hiring of carriages for the publick service without application to the Quartermaster-General or some of his deputies. I have enclosed a draft of an order for the purpose.

The duty of the Paymasters should be clearly pointed out to them. Who is to appoint Paymasters to those regiments who yet have none?

What is to be done with the remainder of Livingston's, Hazen's, and Duggan's Canadian corps, and with the Canadian refugees now in Albany?

Are Nicholson's and Elmore's regiments to be completed? if so, who is to grant warrants for recruiting them?

The bedding for the troops should be sent as soon as possible.

Congress has referred the settlement of the accounts of the people engaged in taking Tyconderoga and Crown Point to the Committee of Albany, but has not furnished them with the accounts, which I transmitted to Congress last winter, and without which, and an account of what money has been paid by the Massachusetts and Connecticut, those accounts cannot be settled.

I daily expect some of the Indians; but have nothing to give them. I wish some provision to be made for them.

Be so good as to send me a draft of the Schuylkill Ferry scows with their dimensions. I wish to have this as soon as possible.

If fulled woollen caps could be procured at Philadelphia, a quantity should be sent up to the Army.

The whipsaws which Congress has ordered should be sent up immediately.

Glass for the barracks is much wanted.

Although the enemy's fleet on Lake Champlain is formidable, would it not be well to construct very large and strong vessels this winter? If Congress should resolve on doing it, a very large number of carpenters should be sent up immediately, and guns and carriages provided.

If shelter can be provided for twenty-five hundred men at Tyconderoga, I propose that number to remain there, four hundred at Fort George, one hundred at Skenesborough, one hundred at Fort Ann. Barracks are building at Fort Edward for four hundred, at Saratoga for one thousand. Those in this place will contain about five or six hundred. At Schenectady barracks are building for six hundred, about two hundred to be kept at John's town and four hundred at Fort Schuyler, making in all about six thousand two hundred men.

As the expense in transporting of heavy cannon in wheel carriages amounts to about twenty shillings a mile, the difference in bringing them from Jersey or from Mr. Livingston's furnace, will amount for eighteen-pounders and upwards to about £150 apiece. Perhaps it may be well to send a skillful person to examine Mr. Livingston's works, and if they are found capable of being employed in casting cannon, the United States, respectively, to pass such laws as will most effectually tend to prevent the counterfeiting or forging of the Tickets of the publick Lottery.

A Letter from Mr. Ross, Mr. Paca, and Mr. Witherspoon, was read, informing that they have appointed an Assistant Quartermaster and Commissary, to provide for a number of sick, and take care of stores sent to Princeton.

Ordered, That the President inform them that Congress approve of the appointments.

Ordered, That the Board of War, in conjunction with a member of the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, seize the immediately to agree with him, and send up a sufficient number of people that understand the business.

You will please to mention to Congress that the military chest in this department is almost exhausted, and that considerable sums will be wanted to clear with the Army.

The Deputy Adjutant-General, Deputy Quartermaster-General, and Deputy Mustermaster-General, have not received their commissions. They wish to have them sent up.

Who is to give the instructions to the Deputy Mustermaster-General?

I am, gentlemen, very respectfully, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

Messrs. Stockton and Clymer, Commissioners of Congress.

Whereas great abuses have been committed by troops taking carriages when on a march from one place to another, without applying to the proper officers for the same, to the great grievance of the inhabitants and detriment to the publick service: To remedy which for the future the following orders and regulations are to be strictly observed:

1st. Every company shall be allowed on a march two wagons, each drawn by two horses, or an ox-cart, drawn by four oxen; two wagons to the Colonel, one to the Field Officers, and one to the Staff of the regiment.

The commanding officers of every regiment, troop, or company, that shall be ordered to march shall be provided with carriages, agreeable to this regulation. The Quartermaster or Commissary furnishing the carriages shall give to each driver a written or printed paper, in the following words:

"The bearer, A. B., is loaded at this place with baggage of Colonel C. D.'s regiment. J. H., A. D. Q. M. General.

"ALBANY, October , 1776."

When the carriage is discharged, the commanding officer of the regiment or party shall certify on the back thereof as follows:

"The bearer, A. B., has conveyed baggage of the regiment or party under my command from Albany to this place, and is this day discharged.

"FORT GEORGE, October , 1776. L. M., Colonel."

In case a carriage should break down, horses or cattle die, or be lost on the march, and be unable to proceed, it shall be discharged as above, and the commanding officer shall apply to the nearest Quartermaster or Commissary for one to replace it, and if no such Quartermaster or Commissary is at hand, he shall be at liberty to hire one, certifying under his hand to the next Commissary or Quartermaster at any post in his route, that he hired such a carriage at such a place in lieu of one broken down, or the horses of which were dead, lost, or unable to proceed, and such Quartermaster or Commissary shall give the driver a paper as above directed.

If any officer or non-commissioned officer shall employ more carriages than as above allowed of, or they so employing them shall pay the customary price, and in default of making such payment shall, upon conviction thereof before a Court of Inquiry, be fined in treble the sum, for the use of the owner of such carriage, which fine shall be paid by any Quartermaster, on the certificate of the President of the Court-Martial, who shall transmit an account thereof to the Paymaster-General, that it may be stopped from the Paymaster of the regiment, who is to deduct it.

If a body of troops be ordered to march from any place where no Quartermaster or Commissary is stationed, which can very seldom happen, the General or officer giving the order for marching shall order the commanding officer to hire wagons agreeable to the above regulation, and to give certificates; and if any stores are to be moved not immediately belonging to the regiment, the officer shall in the certificate specify what things were carried in each carriage.

To which it is proposed to add:

No Quartermaster, Commissary, officer, or soldier, shall presume to impress any horse or team. If they cannot be hired, application shall be made to the civil magistrate, who is hereby directed to impress only such as shall, in his opinion, be necessary for the then service; which horses or teams so impressed shall be subject to the above regulations.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Whereas great abuses have heretofore prevailed, as well in the returns made for the drawing provisions and in issuing the same, as by embezzlements of those employed in the transportation: In order to prevent which for the future, the following orders are to be strictly and minutely attended to and complied with:

The Deputy Commissary-General and his Deputies to keep exact accounts of all stores, of what kind soever by him forwarded from one place to another, specifying the particulars sent, the time when, and the person or persons by whom; delivering at the same time a copy of such account to the person taking the provision or stores in charge. Upon the delivery whereof, such person shall receive a certificate from the Commissary or person to whom the same was to have been delivered; but if there shall be a deficiency in any of the articles, the Commissary, or person to whom the same shall be delivered, shall mark such deficiency on the certificate, and charge the person to whose care the provisions or stores had been delivered with such deficiency, in a book to be kept for that purpose, and transmit a monthly return thereof to the Deputy Commissary-General, who shall immediately send a copy thereof to the Deputy Paymaster-General, that he may, and he is hereby required to, deduct the amount out of the pay of such person into whose care the provisions and stores were delivered; provided always, that if any provisions or stores shall be lost by unavoidable accident, and the same can be proved to be so by sworn witnesses, before any officer commanding at the post where such provisions or stores were intended to be sent to, such officers' certificate, with the proofs annexed, shall be a sufficient voucher to the Commissary to cancel such charge, by writing over against the charge, "Cancelled by orders of , commanding here."

No provisions to be issued to any troops but upon a return signed by the officer commanding a corps, or by the Quartermaster, or by the officer or non-commissioned officer commanding a party thereof when detached.

And whereas it has frequently happened that troops who had been victualled at one post to a certain time, and were ordered from thence, and arrived at another post before the time to which they were victualled was expired, and have, nevertheless, on their arrival at such post, drawn provisions as though they were entitled to it; to prevent which, whenever any corps moves from one place to another, the commanding officer shall procure a certificate from the Commissary, signifying to what day inclusive such corps was victualled.

The commanding officer of every party shall do the same; and if a detachment is composed of men from different corps, and who are victualled to different days, the return shall be made, and the certificate shall specify the time to which each was victualled, and no Commissary at any post shall revictual such men unless such certificate shall be produced; but lest, by the negligence of any officer in not procuring the certificate, the men should suffer for want of provisions, and the service be obstructed, the Commissary is permitted to victual the corps or party, and to charge the officer commanding therewith, and make return, that the same may be deducted out of his pay, as in the preceding article; provided, that if such certificate be procured and delivered within thirty days after the drawing of such provision, without certificate, the Commissary shall cancel the charge in manner before directed.

Every Commissary to keep the accounts of provision issued to every corps, or parts or detachments of corps, separately, that it may be readily compared with the monthly returns as a check upon the provision returns.

All provision returns, or orders to issue provisions, to be by the Commissary numbered and endorsed with the date and number of men victualled, and carefully filed, to be produced when called for.

A weekly return to be made to the Commander-in-Chief of the department, and to the General or officer commanding the troops at , of what provisions are in store at every place in the Northern department.

The Commissaries to apply to the commanding officers at every post for working parties to assist in securing the provisions and stores; and such commanding officers are hereby required to give such working parties, and afford all kind of assistance in their power to secure the provisions and publick stores. Every Commissary in the Northern department to keep these orders continually posted up in his issuing store, that no person who may be concerned in the execution of them may plead ignorance.

The officers commanding at the different posts to have copies of them posted up in one or more of the most publick places about their posts.

Whereas the Commissaries cannot at all times furnish every species of provisions agreeable to the orders of Congress, they are in future to take receipts specifying the quantity of each sort of provisions which they may deliver, that if there should be a deficiency, the soldiers may have credit for it on a settlement, or be accountable if they have drawn too much.

[No. 5.]

ALBANY, November 10, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Among our other inquiries respecting the Army in the Northern department, we have asked about the disposition of the hides of the cattle which have been killed during the last campaign, and we are much concerned to find that your Deputies here and at Tyeonderoga have, without any directions from you, contracted for the sale of them at prices exceedingly inadequate to their real value, and also to the sums which they would have readily brought.

Mr. Avery, it seems, contracted with Mr. Ogden, of Elizabeth-Town, for two thousand hides, at a medium price between seven and ten shillings to the whole of the hides; afterwards with other persons for thirteen shillings and four pence, then for fifteen shillings, and since for twenty or twenty-two shillings. Mr. Avery tells us that the hides would have spoiled in the summer without the extraordinary care of a purchaser, and for that reason he sold them at so low a price. In this he is certainly mistaken; or, if he is not, a person should have been appointed to take such care; and, at all events, these gentlemen should not have proceeded in so capital an article without orders. The common price for a hide during this season has been three dollars here. You will therefore immediately perceive the great loss the Continent will sustain. We have directed Mr. Avery to proceed no further with such contracts, those which he has made extending to the end of this month; and we have desired him to write immediately to Mr. Jansen to desist.

person and papers of Monsieur Bonvolour; and having examined him and them, report to Congress.

Resolved, That the Board of War be directed to detain such of the Companies of the German Battalion as have not already marched.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Thursday, November 28, 1776.

Resolved, That 300 Dollars be advanced to William Whitely, Lieutenant-Colonel of Colonel Richardson's Battalion of the Flying-Camp, from Maryland, for the use of some sick Soldiers of said Battalion, in Philadelphia, for which he is to be accountable.

Resolved, That William Bradford, Second Lieutenant in Captain Smith's Company, of Colonel Stevenson's Battalion, be promoted to the rank of First Lieutenant, in the room of the First Lieutenant of the said Company, resigned.

A plan of an Artillery Yard being laid before Congress:* Ordered, That it be referred to a Committee of Three:

You will be pleased to enforce these orders in such a manner as you may think most proper; and it seems to us at present that the best method to make the most of the hides will be to have them carefully hung up, and upon their being dry, to send them down to Albany by the returning batteaus and wagons, which are obliged to bring them without expense to the publick. They can then either be sold here or sent elsewhere, as Congress may direct.

With much respect, we are, sir, your most obedient, humble servants,

RICHARD STOCKTON,
GEO. CLYMER.

To Mr. Commissary Trumbull.

That novices, on their first inlistment to learn the Artillery service, shall be allowed soldiers' pay.

That as soon as the Master shall report to the Board of War, that any of the said novices are qualified for the respective duties of matrosses, gunners, or bombardiers, they shall thereupon be advanced to the pay of such characters respectively.

* November 28, 1776. Report of the Committee to whom was referred the Report of the Committee lately sent to the Northern Army—last article postponed.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the Report of the Committee lately sent to the Northern Army, beg leave to make report, and pray that they may be allowed to sit again.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that a Letter be sent to Governour Trumbull, desiring him to order twenty Cannon, carrying shot of eighteen pounds weight, to be cast at Salisbury Iron-Works, and transported to Ticonderoga with all possible expedition.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that skillful persons be sent to examine the Salisbury and Mr. Livingston's Founderies, and if it be found that a sufficient number of Cannon may be cast there, that proper artificers be forthwith employed on that work, an agreement being first made with Governour Trumbull and Mr. Livingston for that purpose.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Commissary-General be directed to procure Provisions sufficient for five thousand men, during eight months, to be sent to Albany, and from thence to Fort Anne, and the like quantity to remain in Albany, and be removed elsewhere as occasion may require; and that the Commissary be directed to send a sufficient quantity of Salt.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that one thousand good Blankets, and five hundred Mattresses and Pillows, be purchased or otherwise procured, and sent to Albany, for the use of the Hospital in the Northern Army.

Resolved, That 100,000 Dollars be advanced to the Delegates of South-Carolina, the said State to be accountable.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Friday, November 29, 1776.

A Letter from S. Purviance, and one from J. Connolly, and a Petition from J. Sullivan, were read:

Ordered, That the Petition from J. Sullivan be referred to a Committee of three, and that they be directed to inquire minutely into the facts relative to the capitulations entered into by Major Sherbourne and Major Butterfield in Canada; that they be empowered to send for persons and papers, and to examine witnesses on oath, and that they report to Congress.

The Members chosen, Mr. Chase, Mr. Harrison, and Mr. Wythe.

Ordered, That Mr. Mease supply the sick Soldiers, in the House of Employment in Philadelphia, each with one Shirt.

A Petition from Major John Lamb was read: Whereupon,

Resolved, That the General be directed to include Major Lamb in the next exchange of Prisoners.

The Committee on the affairs of the Northern Army, brought in a farther Report,* which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That the Medical Committee be directed to provide sufficient quantities of Antiscorbutics for the use of the Hospitals in the Northern Army:

That the Hospital at Fort George be continued for the reception of Soldiers labouring with contagious diseases, and that there be a General Hospital erected on Mount Independence:

That a suitable spot of ground for a Garden be enclosed in the neighbourhood of the General Hospital, to supply the Army with Vegetables; and that labourers be hired to cultivate it, under the direction of an overseer, to be appointed by the General or Commanding Officer:

That the General or Commanding Officer, in each of the Armies, cause strict inquiry to be made into the conduct of the Directors of the Hospitals, and their Surgeons, Officers, and Servants, and of the Regimental Surgeons, that if there has been any just ground of complaints in those departments, the offenders may be punished:

That the Colonel or Commanding Officer of every Regiment, make frequent inquiry into the health of the men under

* Report November 29, 1776, on the Northern Army; agreed to.

The Committee to whom the Report of the gentlemen who were directed to repair to Ticonderoga, and the Papers therein mentioned, were referred, have come to several other Resolutions thereupon, viz:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Northern Army may be supplied more advantageously and conveniently in the present mode by the Commissary-General governing himself by such regulations as have been, and may be from time to time ordained, by the General or Commander-in-Chief, than by contractors.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Commissary-General be directed, without fail, to supply the Northern Army this winter with Vegetables twice in every week, or more frequently, if possible, and that they be well supplied with Vinegar.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that two large Floating-Batteries be built on Lake Champlain to cover the Boom and the Bridge; and that General Schuyler be desired to contract with builders for this purpose in New-York or Massachusetts, or both, and that General Schuyler provide the materials.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Committee for supplying Cannon be directed to procure ten brass six-inch Howitzers, with shells and a proper attrail, for the use of the Northern Army.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that a Fort be constructed on Mount Independence; that the navigation of the Lake near that place should be obstructed by caissons to be sunk in the water at small distances from one another, and joined together by string pieces, so as at the same time to serve for a Bridge between the Fortifications on the east and west sides; that to prevent the enemy from drawing their small craft over land beyond Three Mile Point into Lake George, the passage of that lake be also obstructed in like manner by caissons from island to island in the Narrows, if practicable, or by Floating-Batteries; that Fort Stanwix be strengthened, and other Fortifications be made at proper places near the Mohawk's river; and that General Schuyler, or the commanding officer of the Northern Army, execute these works this winter; and that the Commanding Officers of Artillery, Chief Engineer, Quarter-master-General and Commissary-General, provide and perform whatever things in their respective departments are necessary, or may contribute to the accomplishment thereof.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of the Committee, that the General Court or Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay be requested to procure such a quantity of Oakum, or any other articles, as General Schuyler, who is desired to write to them on the subject, shall require, and to forward the same to such places as he shall direct.

his command, and report the state thereof, with any negligence, mal-practice, or other misconduct of the Surgeons or others, to the General and to Congress, delivering copies of such reports to all persons therein accused:

That the General, or Commander-in-Chief of the Northern Army, direct all the Batteaus on Lakes Champlain and George to be immediately repaired:

That 100 Batteaus be built at Schenectady, so as to be ready for use in February or March next, at farthest; and, for this purpose, that Boards, Pitch, Oakum, and other necessary materials, be collected, and artificers employed by the General or Commanding Officer:

Resolved, That the Committee have leave to sit again.

The Committee of Treasury reported that there is due,

To P. E. du Simitiere, for designing, making, and drawing a Medal for General Washington, 32 Dollars:

To John Dunlap, for printing sundry Resolves of Congress, Commissions, Proclamations, &c., 654 66-90th Dollars:

To John Bates, for Camp-Kettles, delivered to Robert Towers, Commissary, 80 Dollars:

To Joseph Greenwold, for porterage of Powder to the Magazine, 37 45-90th Dollars:

To James Anderson, for ferriage of Virginia Troops, Wagons, and Militia, over Susquehanna, 27 18-90th Dollars:

To the Estate of Captain Spring, for storage of Continental Powder, 111 38-90th Dollars:

To the following Prisoners from Canada, and to be paid to Mr. Ross, the sum of 229 77-90th Dollars, viz:

To Captain Thomson, expenses of himself and baggage from Albany to Trenton, 11 55 Dollars, and his allowance from 26th April to 28th November, inclusive, 31 weeks, at 2 Dollars a week, 62 Dollars:

To Alexander M'Culloch, expenses of himself and baggage from Albany to Trenton, 10 35-90th Dollars, and his allowance from 26th April to 28th September, inclusive, 31 weeks, at 2 Dollars a week, 62 Dollars: And

To William Goodwin, his expenses of family and baggage, from Albany to Burlington, 14 27-90th Dollars, and his allowance from 27th March to 27th November, inclusive, 35 weeks, at 2 Dollars, 70 Dollars:

To John House, for his account of ferriage of Troops, Wagons, and Horses over the River Potomack, 30 30-90th Dollars:

Ordered, That the said Accounts be paid.

Resolved, That the Secret Committee be directed to provide, as soon as may be, Arms and Equipage for 3,000 Horse.

Resolved, That a Committee of five be appointed to consider and report a proper method for establishing and training a Cavalry in this Continent:

The Members chosen, Mr. R. H. Lee, Mr. Paine, Mr. Middleton, Mr. Nelson, and Mr. Floyd.

A Petition from Alexander Mercer was read, and referred to the Board of Treasury.

The Committee appointed to confer with the Managers of the Lottery, brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration:

Whereupon, Resolved, That the Prizes only be drawn:

That the Managers be authorized to employ as many Clerks to assist in numbering the Tickets, as may be necessary for expediting the business:

That two Presses be employed for printing the Tickets.

Ordered, That the remainder of the Report be recommitted.

Resolved, That to-morrow be assigned for appointing the Officers of the Regiment of Artillery ordered to be raised in Virginia.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Saturday, November 30, 1776.

A Letter, of the 27th, from General Washington, with a list of the Prisoners taken by the enemy during the campaign of 1776; and one of the same date, from the Council of Safety of New-York, were read:

Ordered, That the same be referred to the Board of War, and that they confer with Colonel Miles, who is come from New-York on his parole to expedite the exchange of Prisoners.

Resolved, That 1,000 Dollars be advanced to Robert Erwin, Wagonmaster-General, for the publick service; he to be accountable.

Resolved, That the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania be requested to have eight Carriages for Field-Pieces got ready, with all possible expedition, at the expense of the Continent, to be delivered as fast as made to the order of the Board of War.

The Commissioners for Indian Affairs, in the Middle Department, having transmitted to Congress the Minutes of their Proceedings,

Ordered, That the same be referred to the Standing Committee for Indian Affairs.

The Committee appointed to confer with the Managers of the Lottery, brought in a farther Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That the gratuity to the Managers of the Lottery, for their trouble in the conduct of that business, be left to the future judgment of Congress:

That the Managers be authorized to appoint Agents for the sale of Tickets in the several States, and offer them one-tenth per cent. on the Tickets or Billets by each respectively sold:

That the publick be at the risk of conveying the Tickets or Billets to the Agents in the different States:

That the Agents pay the Money received by them for the sale of Tickets or Billets to the Commissioners of the Loan Office of the State where they are sold, taking receipts therefor, and transmit them to the Managers of the Lottery at Philadelphia.

Resolved, That the State of New-York be empowered to raise another Battalion on the Continental establishment:

That the Convention or Council of Safety of New-York be empowered to appoint an Aid-Major to each of the Battalions raised by that State, the pay or expense of which to be borne by that State.

Agreeable to the order of the day, Congress proceeded to the election of officers for the Artillery Battalion, ordered to be raised in Virginia; and the ballots being taken, the following were elected:

Charles Harrison, Esq., Colonel; Edward Carrington, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel; Christiern Holmer, Major; Samuel Denny, William Pierce, Nathaniel Burwell, Buller Clairborne, Joseph Scot, William Murray, Spotswood Dandridge, Matthew Smith, Sen., John Pettus, and William Waters, Captains.

Resolved, That the Governour and Council of Virginia be requested to recommend proper persons for Subaltern Officers.

Resolved, That the Board of War be directed to purchase for the publick service, six Wagons, with four Horses and proper Harness to each Wagon, and to employ suitable Drivers.

An Address from Nicholas Biddle, John Barry, Thomas Read, Charles Alexander, and John Nicholson, was laid before Congress, and read:

Ordered, That it be referred to the Marine Committee, who are directed to pursue such measures as they shall think proper in consequence thereof.

The Assembly of Pennsylvania having, by Mr. Morris, informed Congress that they have appointed a Committee of their body to confer with a Committee of Congress, on the requisition of Congress, to call forth immediately the Associators of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, and of the Counties of Philadelphia, Bucks, Chester, and Northampton:

Ordered, That the Board of War confer with the Committee of the Assembly of Pennsylvania on this subject, and agree on such measures as shall be deemed most for the publick service.

The Committee of Treasury reported, that there is due,

Ordered, That the said Accounts be paid.

Resolved, That 1,000 Dollars be advanced to the Committee for procuring Cannon for the publick service; the said Committee to account for the expenditure.

Resolved, That for the more speedy and effectual discharge of business, the following Rules be invariably observed:

That Congress be opened every morning at ten o'clock, Sundays excepted:

That Mr. President take the chair precisely at that time.

Agreeable to the order of the day, the Indians were introduced, and the following Speech was delivered to them:

"Brothers of the Six-Nations, Delawares, and Shawanees:

"We, the Delegates of the Thirteen United States of America, are extremely pleased to see you. We take you by the hand, and bid you welcome to our great council-fire.

"Brothers: You say that God Almighty has been pleased to bring us together. You say well. He superintends and governs men and their actions. He now sees us. He judges of the sincerity of our hearts, and will punish those who deceive.

"Brothers, Sachems, and Warriors: You have heard what our Commissioners have said to you at Pittsburg by our directions. You have listened to their arguments; and your own reason will suggest, that the conduct they have recommended to you must be productive of your happiness and welfare. We think that you must be fully convinced that your safety, as nations, depends on preserving peace and friendship with the white people of this island.

"We are sorry to hear of the death of your great men, and are well pleased that our Commissioners have wiped the tears from your eyes, and covered the graves of our departed friends.

"Our hearts are good towards all the Indians in the woods, who have friendly disposition towards us.

"We love peace, and wish that the chain of friendship between us and you may contract no rust. On our part, we will do every thing to keep it bright and strong.

"But should we be attacked by any tribe of Indians in the woods, we hope to convince them that we can repel their attempts with ease. Friendship, however, with you, is what we earnestly desire; our Commissioners have told you so, and they have not deceived you.

"We now inform you, that we wish to sit down with you under the same tree of peace; to water its roots and cherish its growth, so that it may shelter us and you, and our and your children.

"Brothers: We have prepared some presents for you, which our Commissioners will deliver before your departure."

The Indians having returned thanks for the Speech delivered, informed Congress they had something to say on Monday next, and withdrew.

Resolved, That the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania be desired to suspend the farther execution of the request made to them on the 2d instant, to procure one thousand Wagons:

That the Wagons procured in consequence of the said request, be sent to the Quartermaster-General.

Resolved, That Mr. Mease be directed to return to Mr. Levy the goods he had from him, and receive back the money advanced on that account: the said goods being sent for by the State of New-York, on whose account, and by whose order, they were purchased.

The Committee of Treasury reported, that there is due,

To Brigadier-General Thompson, for his pay for the months of October and November, 250 Dollars:

To Lieutenant Ross Currie, of the Second Battalion of Pennsylvania regular forces, for the balance of his pay from March to November, inclusive, 90 Dollars:

To Samuel M'Kinzie, Surgeon to the Second Battalion of Pennsylvania regular forces, for 4 months' Pay, at 33 Dollars per month, 132 Dollars.

Ordered, That the said Accounts be paid.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock on Monday.

Monday, December 9, 1776.

A Letter, of the 8th, from General Washington; one, of the 22d November, from General Ward, enclosing one of the 9th of the same month, from General Gates; one of the 18th of the same month, from G. Morgan, at Pittsburg; and a Petition and Remonstrance from the Captains and Subalterns of Colonel Mackay's Battalion; a Letter, of the 17th November, from Lieutenant-Colonel Wilson, of the said Battalion; and a Letter of the 22d November, from John Avery, at Boston, were read:

Also, a Letter of the 25th November, from Colonel Moses Hazen, was read, and referred to the Committee on the Northern Army.

Resolved, That another Member be added to the said Committee.

The Member chosen, Mr. R. H. Lee.

The Indians being introduced, spoke to Congress; but having said nothing relative to matters between them and the United States, no notice was taken of it, and they withdrew.

Resolved, That the sum of 117 11-90th Dollars be paid to Colonel Haussegger, in full of his Account for Boards, &c., bought for the publick service, and for his expenses.

Resolved, That 1,000 Dollars be advanced to Major Ottendorff, for the purpose of recruiting his Companies; he to be accountable.

Resolved, That Houelman Arnold be appointed a Lieutenant of the Company commanded by Major Ottendorff:

That 2,000 Dollars be advanced to the Delegates of New-Jersey, for the publick service; they to be accountable:

That 50,000 Dollars be advanced to Mr. J. Mease, for the publick service; he to be accountable.

Resolved, That Mr. Risberg, the Assistant Quartermaster in Philadelphia, be directed to send by water to Christiana Bridge, the Military Stores sent from the Army, and that they be safely lodged there till farther orders.

Resolved, That 5,000 Dollars be advanced to Mr. Carpenter Wharton, for the publick service; he to be accountable.

Resolved, That the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania be requested to give the Continental Officers, and all others, employed in removing the publick stores from Philadelphia, whether by land or water, all the assistance in their power.

Resolved, That a Committee of three be appointed to prepare an Address to the Inhabitants of America, and a recommendation to the several States, to appoint a day of Fasting, Humiliation, and Prayer:

The Members chosen, Dr. Witherspoon, Mr. R. H. Lee, and Mr. Adams.

Resolved, That Mr. J. Mease be empowered and directed to settle and pay the arrears due to Colonel Hay's Battalion of the Flying-Camp.

Resolved, That Thomas de Naif be appointed a Lieutenant of Artillery under Mons. Romand de Lisle.

Resolved, That a Committee of three be appointed to inquire into the state of the Prisoners sent from New-Jersey.

The Members chosen, Dr. Witherspoon, Mr. Clarke, and Mr. F. L. Lee.

Whereas, in consequence of many complaints that engrossers had distressed the publick, by raising Salt to an exorbitant price, the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, with the approbation of Congress, took the management of the affair into their hands, and have endeavoured, by as just and equal a distribution as possible of the Salt imported from time to time, to supply the different parts of the country; yet, it is found upon trial, either from the artful conduct of interested persons not discovered, or from the impossibility of the thing itself, that the remedy has been ineffectual; and, on the contrary, Salt continues scarcer and dearer in this port, than where no regulations have been tried: Therefore,

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, to take off all restraint upon the sale of Salt; and give publick notice that it shall be lawful for any person to import and sell it, in such manner, and at such prices, as shall suit voluntary purchasers.

Resolved, That 200 Dollars be advanced to Mr. William Govett, Assistant to the Auditor-General; he to be accountable.

Resolved, That in case this Congress shall be under the necessity of removing from Philadelphia, it shall be adjourned to Baltimore.

Whereas, General Washington hath repeatedly applied, and hath yesterday renewed his application, for an immediate reinforcement for the defence of Philadelphia, and the State of Pennsylvania:

Resolved, That the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania be requested, this day, to send expresses, that can be relied on, to the several Counties, earnestly requesting that they march what Troops they can collect, armed and provided in the best manner possible, to the Army under the command of General Washington.

Resolved, That Mr. J. Mease be directed to furnish Captain Henderson's Company, of the Eleventh Pennsylvania Battalion, with Blankets and Stockings.

Resolved, That Expresses be immediately sent to the Committees of the Counties of Cæcil, Baltimore, Hartford, and Frederick, in Maryland, requesting that they apply, without delay, to the Militia of their respective Counties, to send forward, immediately, for the defence of the City of Philadelphia, and the reinforcement of General Washington's Army, as many Troops as possible, informing the said Committees that some assistance, in the way of Arms, may be furnished here, to such as have no Arms to bring with them:

That an express be sent to the Council of Safety of Delaware, requesting them to send forward, as fast as possible, for the defence of this City, and the reinforcement of General Washington, as many Troops as possible, informing the said Council that some assistance in the way of Arms may be furnished here to provide such as have no Arms to bring with them.

Resolved, That the Board of War be directed to take care of the Arms belonging to the Continent, and have them properly secured.

Resolved, That William Chambers be appointed Captain, Alexander Wilson First Lieutenant, and Adam Hoops, Second Lieutenant, in the Third Battalion of the Regiment commanded by Colonel Moses Hazen.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Tuesday, December 10, 1776.

A Letter, of the 8th, from General Lee, at Morristown; one of the 9th, from General Washington, with a Letter of the 6th, from General Heath, were read.

Resolved, That the Prisoners sent from the State of New-Jersey by General Washington, and ordered to Fredericktown, in Maryland, be conveyed there by Captain Mountjoy Baily, with a guard of eighteen Soldiers:

That the said Guard be furnished with Arms, Cartridges, Knapsacks, and Blankets:

That 1,000 Dollars be advanced to the Committee of the Middle District of Frederick County, to defray the charges of conveying the Prisoners there, and the expense of furnishing Rations to the Prisoners and the Guard; the said Committee to be accountable.

Resolved, That General Mifflin be directed to repair immediately to the neighbouring Counties, and, by all the means in his power, rouse and bring them in, to the defence of Philadelphia.

As the Congress deem it of great importance to the general good and safety, that General Mifflin should make a progress through the several Counties of the State of Pennsylvania, to rouse the freemen thereof to the immediate defence of this City and County,

Resolved, That the Assembly be requested to appoint a Committee of their body to make the said tour with General Mifflin, in order to assist him in this good and necessary work.

Resolved, That the President return to Congress the 25,000 Dollars received for the use of the Marine Committee.

Resolved, That Major-General Putnam be directed to have the several Recruits, and other Continental Troops in Philadelphia, immediately paraded, and that he proceed, without delay, to make the proper defences for the protection and security of this City:

That the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania be requested to give Major-General Putnam all the assistance in their power, for the execution of the above necessary business, by calling forth the inhabitants, and by any other means in their judgment proper.

Resolved, That 2,000 Dollars be advanced to the Delegates of Georgia, for the use of that State, which is to be accountable.

Resolved, That 135 1-3 Dollars be paid to Robert Patton, for his services as Messenger, from the 15th of May to the 4th of December, instant.

The Committee appointed to prepare an Address to the Inhabitants of America, brought in a draft, which was read; and being debated by paragraphs, was agreed to.

Ordered, That the said Committee have it published and dispersed.

The Committee of Treasury reported, that there should be advanced to Mrs. Stevenson the sum of 200 Dollars on account of her husband, James Stevenson, one of the Commissioners of Accounts; he to be accountable:

That there is due to John Montgomery and Jasper Yates, Commissioners of Indian Affairs for the Middle Department, for their account of Debts due to sundry persons on the visit of the Indian Chiefs from Pittsburg to Congress, the sum of 1,178 24-90th Dollars:

To the Rev. Mr. Fowler, Indian Missionary, being a balance due to him for his services at the treaty with the Indians at Pittsburg, 36 Dollars:

To John Gibson, Esq., for eight months' House-Rent for the Treasury Office, as Auditor-General, to the 9th instant, Wood for the use of the Office, &c., &c., the sum of 369 61-90th Dollars:

To St. Lake la Corn, Captain Frazer, and Major Campbell, for the allowance for themselves and three servants, from 24th September to 3d December, 90 Dollars; the same to be paid to Colonel Donald Campbell:

Ordered, That the said Accounts be paid.

Resolved, That the President write to General Washington, and desire him to send a party to watch the roads leading from New-Jersey to Philadelphia, above Trenton, and give Congress the earliest notice of the enemy's motions.

Resolved, That 2,000 Dollars be advanced to Lieutenant-Colonel Antil, for the purpose of recruiting the Battalion commanded by Colonel Moses Hazen; he to be accountable.

Resolved, That two of the Continental Battalions, now raising in Connecticut, be stationed for the defence of the said State in such parts thereof as Governour Trumbull shall judge most conducive to that purpose, till Congress shall order otherwise.

Resolved, That the Treasurer, upon the order of the Government of Connecticut, pay out of the first moneys which shall be received into the Loan Office in that State, 40,000 Dollars; the said State to be accountable for the expenditure thereof.

Resolved, That Antoine Seelim be appointed a Captain of a Rifle Company in the Corps commanded by Major Ottendorf.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Wednesday, December 11, 1776.

The Committee appointed to prepare a Resolution for appointing a day of Fasting and Humiliation, brought in a Report, which was read and agreed to, as follows:

"Whereas, the war in which the United States are engaged with Great Britain has not only been prolonged, but is likely to be carried to the greatest extremity; and whereas, it becomes all publick bodies, as well as private persons, to reverence the Providence of God, and look up to him as the Supreme Disposer of all events, and the Arbiter of the fate of nations: Therefore,

"Resolved, That it be recommended to all the United States, as soon as possible, to appoint a Day of Solemn Fasting and Humiliation; to implore of Almighty God the forgiveness of the many sins prevailing among all ranks, and to beg the countenance and assistance of his Providence in the prosecution of the present just and necessary war.

"The Congress do also, in the most earnest manner, recommend to all the members of the United States, and particularly the officers civil and military under them, the exercise of repentance and reformation; and further, require of them the strict observation of the articles of war, and particularly that part of the said articles which forbids profane swearing and all immorality, of which all such officers are desired to take notice.

"It is left to each State to issue out Proclamations fixing the days that appear most proper within its bounds."

Ordered, That the above be published by the Committee who brought in the Report.

A Letter, of the 10th, from General Washington, at Head-Quarters at the Falls of Delaware, was read.

Whereas a false and malicious report hath been spread by the enemies of America, that the Congress was about to disperse:

Resolved, That General Washington be desired to contradict the said scandalous report, in General Orders, this Congress having a better opinion of the spirit and vigour of the Army, and the good people of these States, than to suppose it can be necessary to disperse. Nor will they adjourn from the City of Philadelphia in the present state of affairs, unless the last necessity shall direct it.

The Committee appointed to examine the Prisoners sent from New-Jersey, reported, that they have performed that service, and find some considerable distinction between them: Whereupon,

Resolved, That the said Committee be empowered to discharge from Gaol such of the said Prisoners as do not appear to have been engaged in measures against the United States of America; the said Prisoners first signing a Declaration, that they will not hereafter engage in such measures, nor give the enemies of America aid, information, counsel, or assistance, in any way or manner whatsoever; and that such as the said Committee judge proper, give security not to depart the City of Philadelphia without leave of Congress.

Resolved, That General Putnam be directed to order parties of active, spirited men, with proper guides, to cross from Philadelphia into New-Jersey, and, under the conduct of good officers, to act as harassing parties, and to get the best intelligence of the motions and situation of the enemy, directing them to send frequent daily intelligence through him to Congress, of the discoveries they shall be able to make of the enemy's movements and situation.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Thursday, December 12, 1776.

A Letter, of the 11th, from General Washington, was read:

Ordered, That it be referred to the Board of War.

Resolved, That 20,000 Dollars be advanced to Gustavus Risberg, and charged to the account of Richard Dallam.

That 50,000 Dollars be advanced to the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, for the publick service; the said Council to be accountable:

That 5,000 Dollars be advanced to Dr. Nicholas Way, of Wilmington, for the publick service; he to be accountable.

Resolved, That the two Companies raised in the Town of Westmoreland, be ordered to join General Washington, with all possible expedition.

Resolved, That the Continental Apothecary be directed immediately to pack up all the Continental Medicines, and send them to the Quartermaster-General:

That the Quartermaster-General be directed to remove all the Medicines belonging to the Continent in Philadelphia to a place of security:

That the Frigate Randolph and the Sloop Hornet be put under the direction of the Continental General commanding in Philadelphia, to act as he shall direct, for the defence of this City, and preventing the enemy from passing the Delaware.

Resolved, That 53 1-3 Dollars be advanced to Mr. Sproat, Clerk at the War Office, for his services; he to be accountable.

Mr. Walton, a Delegate from Georgia, attended, and produced a Letter from the Secretary of the Convention of that State, informing him of his appointment, with others, to represent that State for the ensuing year:

Resolved, That he be admitted to a seat.

Resolved, That Elisha Sheldon be appointed Lieutenant-Colonel Commandant of a Regiment of Cavalry on the Continental Establishment, with the rank and pay of a Colonel of Foot; and that General Washington be authorized to appoint the other officers to the said Regiment; and that the Colonel, with his officers, proceed, without delay, to raise and discipline the said Regiment; and that they repair to and join the Army under the command of General Washington, by Companies, as soon as each Company shall be complete:

That General Washington be empowered to advance to Colonel Sheldon such sums of money as may be necessary for the service.

Resolved, That the Marine Committee be directed to employ one or more fast-sailing Vessels, to proceed immediately on a cruise off the Capes of Delaware, and give notice to all Ships and Vessels inward bound of the state of this Port, in order that they may proceed to some other place or places of more safety.

Resolved, That General Putnam be directed to send Dr. John Connolly under guard to Baltimore, in Maryland, there to be confined.

Resolved, That General Putnam, or the Commanding Officer in Philadelphia, be directed to appoint suitable persons to make proper provision of combustibles for burning such of the Frigates, and other Continental Vessels as may be in immediate danger of falling into the enemy's possession, should this City come into their hands.

But when it shall happen that the General has no further occasion for the use of the Frigate Randolph, for the defence of this City, if the same should fall into the enemy's hands, should Captain Biddle in that case carry the said Frigate safely to sea, and thereby save her from falling into the enemy's hands, this Congress will reward him and his people with a present of 10,000 Dollars.

Resolved, That the Continental General commanding in Philadelphia, be directed to defend the same to the utmost extremity, against the attempt of the enemy to get possession of it; and that, for this end, he apply, from time to time, to the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania for their aid and assistance.

Resolved, That Mr. R. Morris be empowered to borrow a sum not exceeding 10,000 Dollars, for the use of the Marine Committee; and Congress will indemnify him.

Resolved, That Timothy Dod be released from confinement.

Resolved, That the Arms, Ammunition, and Clothing, in or near the City of Philadelphia, be put under the direction of General Putnam; and that Mr. J. Mease, and all other persons having Continental Stores in care, make immediate return of the same to General Putnam, of the quantities and kinds of each, and where the same are placed, that the General may take order therein, whether for safety or use, as he shall judge proper.

Resolved, That General Putnam be authorized to employ all the private Armed Vessels in this Harbour, for the defence and security of the City; and that he take the most effectual measures for manning them, and putting them in fit condition for the above purpose.

Major-General Putnam and Brigadier-General Mifflin being called to a conference, and having, by strong arguments, urged the necessity of the Congress retiring, it was, thereupon,

Ordered, That Mr. Wilson inform the Assembly and Council of Safety of Pennsylvania of the proposed adjournment of Congress, and the place to which they have resolved to adjourn; and acquaint them, that Congress will, at all times, on their application, be ready to comply with their requisitions for the security of this City and State against the common enemy.

Whereas the movements of the enemy have now rendered the neighbourhood of this City the seat of war, which will prevent that quiet and uninterrupted attention to the publick business, which should ever prevail in the great Continental Council:

Resolved, That this Congress be, for the present, adjourned to the Town of Baltimore, in the State of Maryland, to meet on the 20th instant, unless a sufficient number to make a Congress shall be there sooner assembled; and that, until the Congress shall otherwise order, General Washington be possessed of full power to order and direct all things relative to the department and to the operations of war: and that the several matters to this day referred, be postponed to the day to which Congress is adjourned.

Baltimore, Friday, December 20, 1776.

Congress met according to adjournment.

The Delegates from Georgia produced the Credentials of their appointment, which were read as follows:

"In Convention, Savannah, October 9, 1776.

"The Convention proceeded to ballot for Delegates to represent this State in the Continental Congress for the year ensuing: when, on closing the poll, it appeared that John Houston, Lyman Hall, Button Gwinnett, George Walton, and Nathan Brownson, Esqrs., were duly elected, and declared so accordingly.

"A true copy from the Minutes.

"EDWARD LANGWORTHY, Secretary."

Sundry Letters were laid before Congress and read, viz:

Three from General Washington, of the 12th, 13th, and 15th; one, of the 13th, from General Sullivan; four, from R. Morris, at Philadelphia, of the 13th, 14th, 16th, and 17th: one, of the 8th, from General Wooster:

Ordered, That they be referred to a Committee of four:

The Members chosen, Mr. R. H. Lee, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Harrison, and Mr. S. Adams.

Resolved, That Benjamin Griffith be appointed to supply the Prisoners from North-Carolina with Provisions, Clothing, Blankets, and Fuel, sufficient to protect them from the inclemency of the weather; and that the apartments in which they are confined be glazed, and in other respects secured from the weather, so that the health of the Prisoners may be preserved, and they experience that humanity which hath ever marked the conduct of this Congress to its Prisoners.

Resolved, That the President send to the Council of Safety of Maryland a copy of the Resolution passed the 9th, and forwarded to the Committee of Cecil, &c., and inform the said Council of the reasons that induced Congress to send the same to the Committees, and request the Council of Safety to exert their utmost endeavours in forwarding the reinforcements.

Resolved, That the President write to General Washington, and desire him to send a Flag to General Howe, and inquire in what manner General Lee, who has been taken prisoner, is treated: and if he finds that he is not treated agreeable to his rank and character, to send a remonstrance to General Howe on the subject; and farther, to inquire of General Howe whether he will grant permission to send General Lee such supplies of money as may be necessary to support him, during his confinement, in a manner suitable to his rank in the service of the United States of America:

That the President also write to Mr. R. Morris, and request him to send 100 half-johannes to General Washington, for the use of General Lee.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Saturday, December 21, 1776.

A Letter, of the 1st of October last, from S. Deane, Esq., also, one of the 19th, from the Committee of Frederick County, with sundry Resolutions passed by the said Committee, respecting the marching of the Militia of that County, to join General Washington, were read.

Congress being informed that a number of Prisoners were arrived at Baltimore from Philadelphia:

Resolved, That the Committee of Baltimore Town be requested to secure, in a convenient room, under a guard, the said Prisoners, except the two Goodriches, who are to be committed to Gaol; that Mr. B. Griffith be empowered to supply them with Provisions and other things absolutely necessary for them, until farther orders of Congress.

Resolved, That 6,000 Dollars be advanced to Colonel Thomas Price, for the purpose of recruiting his Battalion; he to be accountable.

The Committee of Treasury reported, that they have had under consideration the Account of Colonel W. Richardson, for guarding the Continental Treasury from Philadelphia to Baltimore; that the expense of the Guard, with the Provender for the Teams, amounts to 378 83-90th Dollars; that he credits 300 Dollars received by a Warrant on the Treasurer, and that there remains due to the said Colonel W. Richardson, 78 83-90th Dollars:

Ordered, That the said Account be paid.

A Letter, of the 15th, from General Armstrong, at Philadelphia, was read:

Ordered, That it be referred to the Board of War.

The Committee to whom were referred the Letters from General Washington and Mr. Morris, brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That Mr. President inform General Washington by Letter, that Congress approve his conduct in not publishing in General Orders the Resolve of Congress of the 11th instant.

Resolved, That proper Magazines of Provisions for the Army be immediately formed in or near Pennsylvania, and that Congress approve of the General's sending General Armstrong to fix upon the most secure and convenient places for such Magazines, to animate the Militia, and facilitate the recruiting service in Pennsylvania:

That Congress approve of General Washington's sending General Smallwood to Maryland, to encourage and promote the speedy raising of the New Levies therein; and that General Smallwood be requested to use his utmost endeavours in executing that business:

That Robert Morris, George Clymer, and George Walton, Esqs., be a Committee of Congress, with powers to execute such Continental business as may be proper and necessary to be done at Philadelphia:

That 200,000 Dollars be immediately sent to Mr. Commissary Mease, subject to the disposition of the said Committee, for providing the Militia going into service; for paying the Soldiers from Ticonderoga, and for such other publick uses as they shall think proper:

That if the above sum should be insufficient, the said Committee have power to call on the Commissioner of the Loan Office, in Pennsylvania, for such farther sums as the Continental service there may demand:

That the said Committee keep up a regular correspondence with Congress, informing them, from time to time, of their proceedings herein:

That the Resolve respecting the appointment of this Committee, and its powers, be transmitted to Messieurs Morris, Clymer, and Walton, by Mr. President; and that he inform the said gentlemen, that Congress approve their care of the publick business as signified in Mr. Morris's Letters. Also, that Mr. Morris be informed, that Congress highly approve his plan of fitting the Continental Frigates at Philadelphia regularly for sea, with all possible expedition:

That Mr. Secretary Peters be directed, by the Board of War, to repair to Baltimore as soon as possible.

Resolved, That 19,000 Dollars be advanced to Mr. John Boyd, Paymaster of Colonel Mackay's Battalion, for the use of the said Battalion; he to be accountable.

Resolved, That two Chaplains be appointed to Congress, and that Monday next be assigned for electing them.

Congress took into consideration the Letter from the Committee of Frederick County: Whereupon,

Resolved, That 18,000 Dollars be transmitted to the Committee of Frederick, for the use of the Militia of the Counties of Frederick, Washington, and Montgomery, who march to reinforce General Washington; the said Committee to be accountable:

That the said Committee transmit to General Washington a particular account of the Money advanced to the Militia.

Resolved, That Officers of Troops inlisted for three years, or during the war, receive pay on the new establishment, from the time of their being appointed by their respective States, in consequence of the Resolution of Congress passed the 16th of September last.

Resolved, That such alteration be made in the Rations of the Virginia Troops as the Governour and Council of that State shall direct, provided the expense does not exceed that of the Ration established for the Continental Army.

Resolved, That 3,000 Dollars be advanced to Colonel W. Richardson, for the purpose of recruiting his Regiment; he to be accountable.

Resolved, That Mr. Hooper be empowered to examine into the state of the North-Carolina Prisoners, and have such of them as are sick, removed to a private house, and kept under guard; and that he provide a Physician to attend them.

Resolved, That General Washington be directed to pay the Militia that may reinforce his Army, in the same manner as his other Troops are paid; and that, on their discharge, one penny a mile be allowed in lieu of rations, to support them on their march to their respective places of abode.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,
Adjourned to ten o'clock on Monday.

Monday, December 23, 1776.

Agreeable to the order of the day, Congress elected the Rev. Mr. P. Allison, and the Rev. Mr. W. White, Chaplains.

Ordered, That Mr. Witherspoon, Mr. S. Adams, and Mr. Hooper, be a Committee to inform the said gentlemen of their appointment, and desire their attendance.

Mr. Hooper having reported that the present situation of the Prisoners is very disagreeable and dangerous to their health, on account of the Prison being much out of repair: Whereupon,

Resolved, That until the apartments in the Jail of the Town of Baltimore shall be repaired, and put in such a condition as not to endanger the health oft hose who may be confined in them, the Prisoners from the State of North-Carolina be removed from thence to different rooms in the Court-House, or wherever else they can be procured, and there safely locked up and secured; and that the Committee of Inspection of the said Town be requested to direct proper apartments for their reception, and from time to time to keep up a good and sufficient guard over them; and, in order to secure them more effectually, that the Prisoners, agreeable to their own voluntary proposal, shall be upon their parole not to make any attempts to escape from confinement, nor interfere in the present war with Great Britain, by carrying on any correspondence, conversation, or otherwise, with the enemies of America; and that during this confinement, Benjamin Griffith, who, by a late resolve of Congress, was directed to supply the Prisoners when confined in Jail, continue to supply and accommodate them with necessaries for their support.

Resolved, That Robert Patton be appointed Doorkeeper, and James Long Messenger, to Congress.

Resolved, That to-morrow be assigned for appointing skillful persons to be sent to examine the Salisbury and Mr. Livingston's Founderies, agreeable to the Resolution of the 28th of November last.

The Committee of Secret Correspondence having applied for Instructions to enable them to return an Answer to the Letter read yesterday from Mr. Deane, Congress took the said Letter into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That the Committee of Secret Correspondence be directed to inform the Commissioners at the Court of France, that Congress have received no advices concerning the proceedings of Portugal, but what they have seen in the newspapers, the authenticity of which may be doubtful. That Congress desire exact information from the Commissioners whether any American Vessels have been prohibited entering, or have been confiscated in the Dominion of Portugal, and on what principles.

That they be directed to remonstrate in the firmest tone with the Portuguese Ambassador on these subjects so soon as they shall have well-informed themselves of the facts above-mentioned.

That the Commissioners be authorized to arm and fit for war any number of Vessels, not exceeding six, at the expense of the United States, to war upon British property; and that Commissions and Warrants be for this purpose sent to the Commissioners, provided the Commissioners be well satisfied that this measure will not be disagreeable to the Court of France.

Resolved, That Mr. John Boyd, the Paymaster of Colonel Mackay's Battalion, be empowered to receive from Mr. William Smith, at Hanover, such a number of Shoes as may be wanted for the use of the said Battalion.

Resolved, That the Assemblies, Conventions, Committees or Councils of Safety, and other persons that are or may be entrusted with Money for the Militia reinforcing the Armies of the United States, transmit the receipts of the Officers receiving the same to the Paymaster or Deputy-Paymaster General of the respective Armies; who are hereby directed to make proper stoppages, and give Certificates of the delivery of such Receipts, specifying therein the names of the persons signing them, the dates and sums mentioned in the same, and the persons to whom the Receipts were given; which Certificates shall be received by the Commissioners of the Treasury as sufficient vouchers for discharging the respective accounts from the sums expressed in the same.

Resolved, That the Commissioners of Congress at the Court of France be authorized to borrow, on the faith of the Thirteen United States, a sum not exceeding Two Millions Sterling, for a term not less than ten years.

That if the Money borrowed cannot be obtained at a less interest than six per centum, the Commissioners be permitted to engage for that rate of interest, and that they stipulate for the payment of the interest at periods not less than annual.

That if the Commissioners can contract for the payment of the principal and interest in the products of North America, to be delivered here, it will be very agreeable to Congress.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,
Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Tuesday, December 24, 1776.

Morris*; one of the 3d, from General Schuyler, at Saratoga; one from Henricus Godet, of St. Eustatia, of November 30th; one of the 18th, from Richard Dallam, Deputy Paymaster-General, at Newtown, in Bucks County, Pennsylvania; one of the 5th, from Jonathan Trumbull; one of the 25th November, from Joseph Trumbull; also a Petition from Faneuil and others, to the Assembly of Massachusetts-Bay, and a Resolution passed by the said Assembly in consequence thereof.

The Committee on the state of the Army, brought in their Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That a Brigadier-General of Artillery be appointed. And the ballots being taken,

Colonel Henry Knox was elected.

Resolved, That General Washington be empowered to use every endeavour, by giving Bounties and otherwise, to prevail upon the Troops, whose term of inlistment will expire at the end of the month, to stay with the Army so long after that period as its situation shall render their stay necessary:

That the New Levies in Virginia, Maryland, the Delaware State, Pennsylvania, and New-Jersey, be ordered to march by Companies, and parts of Companies, as fast as they shall be raised, and join the Army under General Washington, with the utmost despatch:

That the foregoing Resolution be transmitted by the President to the Executive Powers of the States before mentioned, who are requested to carry it into execution; to appoint Commissaries to precede the Troops, and procure Provision for them on their march; and that they be empowered to draw money for this purpose from the nearest Continental Paymaster:

That General Washington be empowered to appoint a Commissary of Prisoners, and a Clothier-General for supplying the Army; to fix their salaries, and return their names to Congress:

That General Washington be requested to fix upon that system of promotion in the Continental Army, which, in his opinion, and that of the General Officers with him, will produce most general satisfaction; that it be suggested to him, whether a promotion of Field-Officers in the Colonial line, and of Captains and Subalterns in the Regimental line, would not be the most proper:

That the Committee of Congress at Philadelphia be desired to contract with proper persons for erecting at Carlisle, in Pennsylvania, a Magazine, sufficient to contain ten thousand stand of Arms and two hundred tons of Gunpowder, and also for erecting a Laboratory adjacent to such Magazine:

That the Council of Massachusetts-Bay be desired to contract with proper persons for erecting, in the Town of Brookfield, in that State, a Magazine sufficient to contain ten thousand stand of Arms and two hundred tons of Gunpowder, and also for erecting a Laboratory adjacent to such Magazine:

That Congress approve of General Washington's directing the Quartermaster-General to provide Teams for each Regiment, and for other necessary purposes:

That the Committee of Secret Correspondence be desired to direct the Commissioners at the Court of France to procure if possible from that Court an hundred thousand stand of Small-Arms:

That the Second and Seventh Virginia Regiments, with all the convalescents from the other corps left in that State, and now fit for duty, be ordered to march and join the Army under General Washington, with the utmost despatch, leaving the Arms that they have at present, with the Governour and Council of that State, as they will be provided with others at the Head of Elk:

That three Regiments, upon the new establishment, in North-Carolina, be ordered to march immediately to join General Washington:

That the State of Virginia be empowered to call into service, at the Continental expense, three Regiments of Militia or Minute-Men, if such a measure shall, by that State, be judged necessary.

The unjust, but determined purpose of the British Court to enslave these free States, obvious through every delusive insinuation to the contrary, having placed things in such a situation, that the very existence of civil liberty now depends on the right execution of military powers, and the vigorous, decisive conduct of these being impossible to distant, numerous, and deliberative bodies:

This Congress, having maturely considered the present crisis, and having perfect reliance on the wisdom, vigour, and uprightness of General Washington, do, hereby,

Resolve, That General Washington shall be, and he is hereby, vested with full, ample, and complete powers to raise and collect together, in the most speedy and effectual manner, from any or all of these United States, sixteen Battalions of Infantry, in addition to those already voted by Congress; to appoint Officers for the said Battalions; to raise, officer, and equip three thousand Light-Horse, three Regiments of Artillery, and a Corps of Engineers, and to establish their pay; to apply to any of the States for such aid of the Militia as he shall judge necessary; to form such Magazines of Provisions, and in such places as he shall think proper; to displace and appoint all officers under the rank of Brigadier-General, and to fill up all vacancies in every other department in the American Army; to take wherever he may be, whatever he may want for the use of the Army, if the inhabitants will not sell it, allowing a reasonable price for the same; to arrest and confine persons who refuse to take the Continental currency, or are otherwise disaffected to the American cause; and return to the States of which they are citizens their names, and the nature of their offences, together with the witnesses to prove them:

That the foregoing powers be vested in General Washington, for and during the term of six months from the date hereof, unless sooner determined by Congress.

Resolved, That the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania be requested to take the most vigorous and speedy measures for punishing all such as shall refuse Continental currency, and that the General be directed to give all necessary aid to the Council of Safety for carrying their measures on this subject into effectual execution.

Mr. Hillegas having returned the names of persons by him employed to superintend the Press, and to sign the Bills of Credit, they were agreed to; and are,

Superintendents of the Press: Thomas Harrison, William Smithe, and John Merryman, Junior.

Signers of Money: William Asquith, John Griffith, Hercules Courtney, John Cockey, James Kelso, Richard Cromell, James Colhourn, George Welsh, Theodore Barrel, Thomas Donnellan, John Boyd, Benjamin Levy, Samuel Hillegas, and William Govett.

Resolved, That 266 2-3 Dollars be advanced to John Griffith, for the use of the sick Soldiers in Baltimore; he to be accountable.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Saturday, December 28, 1776.

Resolved, That a Committee of three be appointed to prepare a Circular Letter to the several United States, explaining the reasons which induced Congress to enlarge the powers of General Washington, and requesting them to cooperate with him, and give him all the aid in their power:

The Members chosen, Mr. R. H. Lee, Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Adams.

Resolved, That the Five Millions of Dollars, which, by the Resolution of the 2d of November last, the Treasury Board were ordered to prepare and have ready for emission, be now emitted on the faith of the United States.

Resolved, That the Council of Safety of the State of Maryland be, and they are hereby, requested to furnish Mr. John Griffith with fifty Blankets for the use of the Sick Soldiers in Baltimore, who stand in immediate need thereof.

Resolved, That 400 Dollars be advanced to Colonel Carvill Hall, for the use of his Battalion; he to be accountable.

The Committee to whom the Report of the gentlemen who were directed to repair to Ticonderoga, and the Papers therein mentioned, were referred, brought in a Report, which was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That in the opinion of Congress, the Northern Army may be supplied more advantageously and conveniently, in the present mode of the Commissary-General's governing himself by such regulations as have been, and may be, from time to time, ordained by the General or Commander-in-Chief, than by Contractors:

That the Commissary-General be directed, without fail, to supply the Northern Army this winter with Vegetables twice in every week, or more frequently, if possible, and to take effectual measures that they be well supplied with Vinegar:

That two large Floating Batteries be built on Lake Champlain, to cover the Boom and the Bridge; and that General Schuyler be desired to contract with builders for this purpose in New-York, or Massachusetts-Bay, or both, and that General Schuyler provide the materials:

That the Committee for supplying Cannon be directed to procure ten brass six-inch Howitzers, with Shells and a proper attrail, for the use of the Northern Army:

That a Fort be constructed on Mount Independence: that the navigation of the Lake near that place be obstructed by caissons, to be sunk in the water, at small distances from one another, and joined together by string-pieces, so as, at the same time, to serve for a bridge between the Fortifications on the east and west side; that, to prevent the enemy from drawing their small craft over land beyond Three Mile Point into Lake George, the passage of that Lake be also obstructed, in like manner, by caissons from Island to Island in the Narrows, if practicable. or by Floating Batteries; that Fort Stanwix be strengthened, and other Fortifications be made at proper places near the Mohawk River, and that General Schuyler, or the Commanding Officer of the Northern Army, execute these works this winter; and that the Commanding Officers of Artillery, Chief Engineer, Quartermaster-General, and Commissary-General, provide and perform whatever things in their respective departments are necessary, or may contribute to the accomplishment thereof:

That the General Court, or Council, of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, be requested to procure such a quantity of Oakum, and any other articles, as General Schuyler, who is desired to write to them on the subject, shall require; and to forward the same to such places as he shall direct.

The Committee appointed to prepare a Plan for obtaining Foreign assistance, brought in a Report, which was read:*

Ordered, That the same be referred to a Committee of

* December 29, 1776.—Report of Committee on a Plan for obtaining Foreign assistance.

The Committee appointed to prepare a plan for obtaining Foreign assistance, beg leave to report the following Resolutions:

Resolved, As the opinion of this Committee, That Commissioners be forthwith sent to the Courts of Spain, Vienna, Prussia, the Grand Duke of Tuscany.

That the several Commissioners of the United States be instructed to assure the respective Courts, that notwithstanding the artful and insidious endeavours of the Court of Great Britain to represent the Congress and inhabitants of these States to the European Powers, as having a disposition again to submit to the sovereignty of the Crown of Great Britain, it is their determination at all events to maintain their independence.

That the Commissioners be respectively directed to use every means in their power to procure the assistance of their Most Christian, Catholick, and Prussian Majesties, for preventing German, Russian, or other Foreign troops from being sent to America for hostile purposes against these United States.

That his Most Christian Majesty be induced, if possible, to engage with the United States in the present war with Great Britain.

That to this purpose, the Ambassadors be instructed to represent to the Court of France, that in case Great Britain should succeed against America, a military government will be established here, and the Americans, already trained to arms, will, however unwilling, be forced into the

the Whole; and that Congress do immediately resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to take the same into consideration.

Congress then resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole, to take into consideration the Report of the Committee on the Plan of obtaining Foreign assistance; and after some time spent thereon, the President resumed the chair, and Mr. Harrison reported that the Committee have had under consideration the Report to them referred, and made sundry amendments; but not having time to go through the whole, desire leave to sit again.

Resolved, That Congress will, to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole, to take into further consideration the Report of the Committee.

That the Board of War be empowered and directed to write to Philadelphia for accoutrements and necessaries to supply the six Troops of Light-Horse ordered from Virginia.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Sunday, December 29, 1776.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed to consider the Letter from General Schuyler, dated the 10th of December, be directed to send a suitable person or persons to Mr. Livingston, owner of the Foundery in the State of New-York, and to Governour Trumbull, under whose direction is the Foundery at Salisbury; also to the Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, to procure such Cannon and Ordnance Stores, as are required by the General in his said Letter; they being immediately necessary for the Northern department.

Congress then resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole, to take into consideration the Report of the Committee on the Plan of obtaining Foreign assistance: and after some time the President resumed the chair, and Mr. F. L. Lee reported, that the Committee have had under consideration the Report to them referred, and have made sundry further amendments, which he was ready to report.

Resolved, That the Report be received and taken into consideration to-morrow.

Resolved, That to-morrow be assigned for appointing more General Officers.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Monday, December 30, 1776.

A Letter, of the 21st, from Brigadier-General Lewis, was read; also two Letters, of the 26th and 27th, from Mr. R. Morris.

The Committee, appointed to consider the Letters from General Schuyler, relating to the Northern Army, brought in a Report: Whereupon,

Resolved, That General Schuyler, or the Commanding Officer of the Northern Army, be directed to cause an Elaboratory to be erected at such place as he shall judge most convenient, to fix all the necessary Ammunition for the ensuing campaign.

Resolved, That fifteen Companies, consisting of a Captain or Overseer, and thirty men each, be engaged, upon such terms as General Schuyler shall think just and equitable, for the Batteau service: and be occasionally employed on the highways and other works in the Quartermaster-General's Department; and that four Companies of Carpenters, to consist of an Overseer and twenty-five men each, be engaged in like manner to attend the Northern Army.

For the better regulating Wagons in the Northern Army,

Resolved, That two Wagons be allowed to each Company on a march, and one Wagon to the Colonel, one to the Lieutenant-Colonel and Major, one to the Staff of a Regiment, and one for the particular use of the Director of the Hospital. Each Wagon to be drawn by two Horses, (except that for the Colonel, which is to be allowed four Horses,) and subject to such orders as shall, from time to time, be issued by the General or Commanding Officer.

Resolved, That if any Commissioned or Non-Commissioned Officer shall employ more Carriages than are mentioned in the foregoing Resolution, he shall not be allowed to make a publick charge of it, but shall pay the customary price himself; and, on his refusal or neglect of so doing, he shall be subject to be fined by a Court-Martial in treble the sum; one third part of such fine to be for the use of the owner of the Wagon or other Carriage so employed, and the other two thirds to the Paymaster for the publick use; the part adjudged to the owner of the Carriage shall be paid to him by any Quartermaster on the certificate of the President of the Court-Martial, who shall transmit the whole fine to the Paymaster, in order that the same may be deducted from the pay of the delinquent.

Congress being informed that some of the Prisoners have broken out of Gaol, and made their escape,

Resolved, That the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County be requested to direct immediate and strict search for the Prisoners, who last night escaped from the Goal in Baltimore Town; and to offer a reward for the apprehending and securing the said Prisoners; and that the said Committee make inquiry into the conduct of the Gaoler, or any other person suspected of permitting or assisting their escape; and that they take such measures as they shall think proper to bring the offenders to punishment.

Resolved, That 200 Dollars be paid into the hands of the Committee appointed to consider the Letter from General Schuyler of the 10th of December, for the payment of the expenses of some suitable person or persons to be sent by them to Mr. Livingston, Governour Trumbull, and the Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, agreeable to a Resolution passed yesterday; the said Committee to be accountable.

The Committee appointed to prepare a Circular Letter to the several States, reported a draft, which was read, amended, and agreed to:

service of his Britannick Majesty, whereby his power will be greatly augmented, and may hereafter be employed to reduce to his government the French and Spanish Islands in the West-Indies.

That should the independence of America be supported, Great Britain, on the contrary, would at once be deprived of one third of her power and commerce; that this, in a great measure, would be added to the Kingdom of France, whose territories in the West-Indies would be less liable to molestation from Great Britain, and probably enlarged.

That the Commissioners be further empowered to stipulate with the Court of France, that all the trade between the United States and the West-India Islands shall be carried on by vessels either belonging to the subjects of His Most Christian Majesty, or of these States, each having free liberty to carry on such trade.

That should the proposals already made be insufficient to produce the proposed declaration of war, and the Commissioners are convinced that it cannot be otherwise accomplished, they assure His Most Christian Majesty that such of the British West-India Islands as in the course of the war shall be reduced by the united force of France and these States, shall be yielded in absolute property to His Most Christian Majesty; and the United States engage, so soon as the British arms shall be removed from their territories, to furnish and pay ten thousand men, to cooperate with the arms of France in making a conquest of said Islands, provided, nevertheless, that His Most Christian Majesty will be at the expense of transporting them to the West-Indies and back again.

That the Commissioners be likewise instructed to assure His Most Christian Majesty, that should his forces be employed in conjunction with the United States to exclude his Britannick Majesty from any share in the cod fishery of America, by reducing the Islands of Newfoundland and Cape Breton, and ships of war be furnished when required by the United States to reduce Nova Scotia, the fishery shall be enjoyed equally and in common by the subjects of His Most Christian Majesty and these States, to the exclusion of all other nations and people whatever, and half the Island of Newfoundland shall be owned by and subject to the jurisdiction of His Most Christian Majesty, provided the Province of Nova Scotia, Island of Cape Breton, and the remaining part of Newfoundland, be annexed to the territory and government of the United States.

That the Commissioners for the Court of France and Spain consult together, and prepare a treaty of commerce and alliance as near as may be similar to the first proposed to the Court of France, not inconsistent therewith nor disagreeable to His Most Christian Majesty, to be proposed to the Court of Spain, adding thereto: "That if His Catholick 'Majesty will join with the United States in a war against Great Britain, 'they will assist in reducing to the possession of Spain, the town and 'harbour of Pensacola, and in consequence of the unprovoked injury 'offered them by the King of Portugal, will declare war against the said 'King, if that measure shall be agreeable to and supported by the Courts 'of France and Spain."

That the Commissioners for the Court of Berlin consult with the France, and prepare such treaties of friendship and commerce, to be proposed in as shall not be disagreeable to their Most Christian and Catholick Majesties.

That the Commissioners at the Court of France be informed of the designs of Congress to send Commissioners to the Courts of Vienna and the Grand Duke of Tuscany, to cultivate the friendship of those Princes, and to form such treaties of commerce as may be beneficial to those countries and the United States, and directed that the Ambassadors from their Courts to that of France be made acquainted with this design, and in the mean time to solicit through those Ambassadors the interference of the Emperour and the Duke of Tuscany to prevent Great Britain from sending Foreign troops to this country, and to procure a recall of such Foreign troops as are already here.

Ordered, That copies be made, signed by the President, and transmitted to each of the United States.

It appearing to Congress that it will be extremely difficult, if not impracticable, to supply the Army of the United States with Bacon, Salted Beef, Pork, Soap, Tallow, and Candles, unless the exportation thereof be prohibited: Therefore,

Resolved, That none of the said articles, except such as may be necessary for the crew of any Ship or Vessel, be exported from any of these United States after the 5th day of January next, until the first day of November next, or until Congress shall take further order therein. And it is earnestly recommended to the Executive powers of the several United States, to see that this Resolution be strictly complied with.

Resolved, That the Board of War be empowered to agree with, and employ, as an Assistant Clerk, Mr. Nourse, late General Lee's Secretary.

The Report of the Committee of the Whole being read, the same was taken into consideration: Whereupon,

Resolved, That Commissioners be forthwith sent to the Courts of Vienna, Spain, Prussia, and the Grand Duke of Tuscany:

That the several Commissioners of the United States be instructed to assure the respective Courts, that notwithstanding the artful and insidious endeavours of the Court of Great Britain to represent the Congress and Inhabitants of these States to the European Powers as having a disposition again to submit to the sovereignty of the Crown of Great Britain, it is their determination, at all events, to maintain their independence:

That the Commissioners be respectively directed to use every means in their power to procure the assistance of the Emperour of Germany, and of their Most Christian, Catholick, and Prussian Majesties, for preventing German, Russian, or other Foreign Troops from being sent to America for hostile purposes against these United States, and for obtaining a recall of those already sent:

That His Most Christian Majesty be induced, if possible, to assist the United States in the present war with Great Britain, by attacking the Electorate of Hanover, or any part of the dominions of Great Britain in Europe, the East and West Indies:

That the Commissioners be farther empowered to stipulate with the Court of France, that all the trade between the United States and the West-India Islands, shall be carried on by Vessels either belonging to the subjects of His Most Christian Majesty, or of those States, each having free liberty to carry on such trade:

That the Commissioners be likewise instructed to assure His Most Christian Majesty, that should his forces be employed in conjunction with the United States to exclude His Britannick Majesty from any share in the codfishery of America, by reducing the Islands of Newfoundland and Cape Breton, and ships-of-war be furnished when required by the United States, to reduce Nova-Scotia, the fishery shall be enjoyed equally and in common by the subjects of His Most Christian Majesty and these States, to the exclusion of all other nations and people whatever; and half the Island of Newfoundland shall be owned by and subject to the jurisdiction of His Most Christian Majesty; provided the Province of Nova-Scotia, Island of Cape Breton, and the remaining part of Newfoundland, be annexed to the territory and government of the United States:

That should the proposals already made be insufficient to produce the proposed declaration of war, and the Commissioners are convinced that it cannot be otherwise accomplished, they assure His Most Christian Majesty, that such of the British West-India Islands as in the course of the war shall be reduced by the united forces of France and these States, shall be yielded in absolute property to His Most Christian Majesty; and the United States engage on timely notice to furnish at their expense, and deliver at some convenient port or ports in the said United States, provision for carrying on expeditions against the said Island, to the amount of two millions of dollars, and six frigates, mounting not less than twenty-four guns each, manned and fitted for the sea, and to render any other assistance which may be in their power, as becomes good allies:

That the Commissioners for the Court of France and Spain consult together, and prepare a treaty of commerce and alliance, as near as may be, similar to the first proposed to the Court of France, not inconsistent therewith nor disagreeable to His Most Christian Majesty, to be proposed to the Court of Spain, adding thereto, "That if His Catholick Majesty will join with the United States in a war against Great Britain, they will assist in reducing to the possession of Spain the town and harbour of Pensacola, provided the citizens and inhabitants of the United States shall have the free and uninterrupted navigation of the Mississippi, and use of the harbour of Pensacola, and will, provided it shall be true that His Portuguese Majesty has insultingly expelled the vessels of these States from his ports, or hath confiscated any such vessels, declare war against the said King, if that measure shall be agreeable to and supported by the Courts of France and Spain:

That the Commissioners for the Court of Berlin consult with the Commissioners at the Court of France, and prepare such a treaty or treaties of friendship and commerce to be proposed to the King of Prussia as shall not be disagreeable to their Most Christian or Catholick Majesties:

That the Commissioners at the Court of France be informed of the designs of Congress to send Commissioners to the Courts of Vienna and the Grand Duke of Tuscany, to cultivate the friendship of those Princes, and to form such treaties of commerce as may be beneficial to those countries and the United States; and directed to acquaint the Ambassadors from their Courts to that of France with this design, and in the mean time to solicit through those Ambassadors the interference of the Emperor and the Duke of Tuscany, to prevent Great Britain from sending Foreign Troops to this country, and to procure a recall of such Foreign Troops as are already here.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

Tuesday, December 31, 1776.

A Letter, of the 27th, from General Washington, and one, of the 28th, from the Committee of Congress, at Philadelphia, with sundry Papers enclosed, were read:

Resolved, That Doctor Mackenzie be, and he is hereby authorized, to purchase such Medicine as is immediately wanted for the sick Soldiers belonging to the Army of the United States, now in Baltimore, and return an account thereof to Congress.

Resolved, That General Smallwood be directed to exert his utmost endeavours, and give the necessary orders and instructions to expedite the raising the Levies in the State of Maryland; and that it be earnestly recommended to the Legislature and Council of Safety, the several Committees of Observation, the Civil, Military, and Militia Officers of said State, and every friend of liberty and the United States, to give General Smallwood every assistance in their power.

Resolved, That 300 Dollars be advanced to Lieutenant-Colonel Antil, of Colonel Hazen's Battalion, for the use of the said Battalion; and that the same be charged to the account of Colonel Hazen, who is to be accountable.

Resolved, That the requisition of General Schuyler for a supply of sixty tons of Cannon Powder, and thirty-four tons of Musket Powder, for the use of the Northern Army, be referred to General Washington; and that he be directed to furnish that Army with such quantities of that article as can be spared.

Resolved, That the Board of War be directed to inform General Washington of the quantities of Gunpowder, belonging to the Congress, on hand in the different parts of America, as far as may have come to their knowledge.

A Memorial from Lieutenant-Colonel Antil was presented to Congress, and read:

Ordered, That it be referred to the Board of War.

A Letter from William Kennon, of North-Carolina, to General Lee, was read:

Ordered, That it be referred to a Committee of three: The Members chosen: Mr. Hooper, Mr. Heyward, and Mr. Harrison.

Resolved, That any restrictions heretofore imposed upon the exportation of Staves and other Lumber, except to Great Britain, Ireland, and the British Islands, or any place under the dominion of Great Britain, cease.

Resolved, That a Letter be written to General Washington, desiring him to order the Clothier-General to send agents into each State, to buy up Linens, and other Clothing proper for the Soldiery; and that he give similar orders to the Quartermaster-General to pursue the same mode for procuring a sufficient quantity of Tent Cloth; and that they be severally directed to apply to the States to afford all necessary assistance therein. And whereas great expense hath heretofore arisen from publick agents bidding against each other, the General is desired to caution the Clothier-General and Quartermaster-General, that their agents aforesaid, fall not into the above mistake in time to come.

A Memorial from John Matthewson, and others, was read; also a Letter from Mr. Hughes:

Ordered, That they be referred to the Marine Committee.

An Appeal being lodged against the judgment of the Court of Admiralty for the State of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, in the libel, Esek Hopkins vs. Richard Derby:

Ordered, That it be received, that it may be prosecuted before the Committee on Appeals.

The several matters to this day referred being postponed,

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.
